Miami, Fla., April 8—Everything is within your reach in this country, if you care to find it, by rail, boat, automobile, or airplane. One night on the train, and the second morning you are awakened by a flock of wild parrots, squawking violently in the cocoanut palms, between your house and the water.

Here you are actually in the tropics, and at this season it is hot. When you walk barefoot along boards by the beach you lift and put down each foot gingerly, like a hen walking in the season's first snow.

Florida cannot have California's big mountains, or biggest ocean, but she is determined to have a summer season, the same as California.

Orville Rigby, city commissioner, and L. L. Lee, city manager of Miami, have flown to Chicago to open there an office in the Michigan building devoted to bringing summer tourists to Miami. Chicago might reply by opening a Miami office to lure Miami citizens to the edge of Lake Michigan, and on into Wisconsin's admirable lake region. Oconomowoc, for instance, close to Milwaukee, offers a summer resort for tourists not easily surpassed in this or any other country.

Miami deserves praise for trying experiments in the North. Only trying brings success. Many visitors come from Cuba to spend the summer months on this coast, and Florida says, "If California can do it, we can."

To draw tourists from Florida would be difficult, because here it is considered unpatriotic to go away in summer, and there is work to be done, every minute, getting ready for next fall's crop of northern innocents that leave their money with the horse and dog races, when they might be buying good real estate.

Florida, where the depression started first, is fast forgetting about it. There is more money piled up in the banks now than at the peak of the boom, ten years ago. Real estate transactions, according to Frank B. Shutts, Miami Herald, which prints this column, are resuming the old activity, running into millions a week. Perhaps the worst will soon pass elsewhere, as it has done here.

Myron C. Taylor's report to United States Steel stockholders of greatly increased tonnage is reflected in automobile production during the first three months of this year. The moment an American family feels more prosperous and secure it buys a new automobile. Many have waited for several years, since 1929, and when the financial "rain" stops, as it always does, and real buying starts it will set new records not hitherto imagined.

A country that used to buy two million buggies yearly, in the old days, will easily buy six million automobiles every twelve months.

Russia, according to Lloyd George, is the world's real flying nation, possessing, probably, the world's greatest fighting air fleet. It is certainly the country that takes flying most seriously, with eight million Russians trained in aeronautics, young Russian girls learning to pilot planes and dirigibles and make 20,000-foot parachute jumps, as your young girls learn new dance steps.

This makes important Russia's announcement that she is manufacturing airplanes on a mass production basis, using for air power "an ordinary light automobile engine." The planes, very cheap, using ordinary gasoline, will be supplied to collective farms.

Russia may be the first nation to do with flying machines what this country did with automobiles. American genius put this nation on wheels. If Russian engineering skill puts Russia on wings, it will make some other countries thoughtful.

The cheap planes, two seats, room for two fliers or one man and one bomb are not fast, only 70 miles an hour, as yet. But at 70 miles an hour you can go a long distance, if you keep at it.

Soldiers from the East formerly traveled toward Western Europe on shaggy ponies, about five miles an hour, eight hours a day. Seventy miles an hour, fifteen hours a day, is an improvement on that.

And Russia does not concentrate on cheap, mass production 70-mile an hour planes only. She has produced the only plane that can fly 7500 miles without landing or taking on fuel.

That plane ought to interest the world, even Washington, if it could get its mind off national "boon doggling."

A gentleman of Toledo, Ohio, named Silas E. Hurin, wrote to Senator Donahey, urging him to support United States entrance into the World Court. Senator Donahey sent an an-

CCC ORDERED TO ENROLL 4997 HERE

By International News Service

Washington, April 8—First official action under the new 4880-million-dollar work-relief bill was taken when the War Department radioed orders to directors of the CCC to enroll 110,756 men for replacements in the 1240 camps by April 15.

The orders, issued at the request of Director Robert Fechner, will bring the camps up to their maximum strength of 370,000 men.

Although the bill, which carries $600,000,000 for CCC, has not been signed by the President, Director Fechner fixed the enrolment date of April 15 in the expectation that the bill would be signed this week and executive orders issued by the President under it on continuance of CCC.

The replacements by corps areas will include: First Corps Area, headquarters Boston, 4997.

CANCELS "KILL" ORDER

The order cancelled the postponement order issued the last week of March, when Congress delayed action on the bill. The CCC camps have continued in "status quo" since April 1, without authority by law, because the old law of the last Congress, under which CCC was created, expired March 31.

Under orders of Director Fechner, food, medical care and maintenence has been maintained for the 260,000 men in the camps for the last week, with the understanding that in all these, reserve officers on duty and civilian employes, continued their jobs voluntarily, without obligations as to pay.

REPORT NEXT WEEK

Enrollments of the replacements are being conducted by the Labor Department, and the first of the men selected for the replacements will be directed to report one week from today. The War Department expects to have all replacements enrolled and in camp by May 1.

Decision as to enlargement of the camps, advocated by the President, to bring the camps up to an enrolment of approximately 600,000, will not be made until the President has returned to Washington.

Roosevelt Ship Docks

President to Attend Funeral of Robbins

Jacksonville, Fla., April 8 (AP)—Tanned and refreshed by his vacation at sea, President Roosevelt arrived here today aboard the naval destroyer Farragut.

The President was greeted at the docks by Governor Dave Sholtz and Mayor John T. Alsop, Jr.

A special train was waiting for the journey to New York, where he will attend the funeral of Warren Delano Robbins, United States minister to Canada, who died last night of pneumonia. Robbins was a first cousin to the President.

The President is expected to send to Washington the $4,880,000,000 work-relief bill and executive orders concerning the allocation of some of the funds. He may sign the measure into law while traveling north on his special train.

Word from Washington said Mrs. Roosevelt also will attend funeral services for Robbins.

The President's wife, now in New York, had planned to return to the White House tomorrow, but her secretary received word following the death of Robbins that Mrs. Roosevelt would remain for his funeral.

Bandit Fells Druggist

Hit With Gun, Revere Man Badly Hurt

A Revere druggist was seriously hurt today when he thwarted attempts of a gunman to rob his store. A blow from the bandit's gun may have fractured his skull.

The victim, George Small, 55, proprietor of the North Shore Pharmacy, North Shore road, Revere, was alone in his store when a young man entered and demanded money.

Small, say police, thought the man was joking.

Then the robber said:

"I'll show you I'm not fooling."

He hit the druggist over the head with the butt of his gun and fled.

Shouts from Small attracted a passerby who called police. Small was taken to Chelsea Memorial hospital.

U. S. REPORTS GAINS FOR INDUSTRY IN '35

By Associated Press

Washington, April 8—Government business statisticians reported today that industry was 12 per cent more active in the first quarter of 1935 than the same period a year ago when industrial concerns enjoyed their best days since 1930.

March business, said the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, held gains made in February.

"The peak of the present upward movement was probably reached early in February, after allowance for seasonal factors," it said, "but activity apparently has been maintained close to the level then reached."

Heralding a possible upswing in construction, data on permits showed somewhat greater activity in the fields of repairs and improvements.

There was little change in the volume of new construction, however.

It pointed to major gains in automobile, iron and steel, and glass manufacture, and an increase of 14 per cent in textile activity.

Declines were reported by the cement, lumber, tobacco and leather and shoe industries.

February gains in factory employment were placed at 3.2 per cent by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, while payrolls increased 7.8 per cent, both gains exceeding the usual seasonal increases for the month.

SOVIET CHILD CRIMINALS TO BE SHOT

By Associated Press

Moscow, April 8—Three more executions in Moscow were announced today, making a total of 54 carried out in Russia since the present anti-crime campaign was started, as the government decreed the full penalties of law against any criminal down to 12 years of age.

The decree provides that even children above 12, who are charged with crime, shall be tried in regular courts and that penalties including death shall be found against them if they are guilty.

The three persons executed today were part of a gang of robbers and one was the son of a policeman.

In the North Caucasian area, six schoolboys accused of robbing fellow pupils, and taken into custody just in time to escape the provisions of today's decree, will be hailed before the local education committee.

"To end crimes among children," the decree said, "all minors over 12 who commit theft, violence, mutilation, murder or attempt to murder will be held responsible before the criminal court and will be subjected to all measures of criminal punishment."

Existing laws provide for execution by shooting of persons convicted of murder.

Under today's decree, adults who encourage minors to commit crimes or become vagrants are liable to prison sentences.

Another regulation passed recently subjected parents who neglect the home education of their children to trial and punishment.

Until now, children under 14 were never taken to court for crimes, but could be sent to reformatories.

MILLIONAIRE Ends His Life

Orlando, Fla., April 8 (AP)—James Laughlin, 3d, millionaire sportsman and grandson of a pioneer Pittsburgh steel manufacturer, was found dead, a bullet wound through his heart, at his palatial estate, West End, near here, early this morning.

Officers said an automatic pistol was found lying near the body, and Justice of the Peace F. F. Weatherby of Apopka said no inquest would be held.

HOOVER AND 'AL' On Same Platform

New York, April 8 (AP)—Herbert Hoover will make a public appearance tonight before the largest audience to face him here since he was President. Sharing the platform with Al Smith, his associate as a life insurance company director and his Democratic rival in 1928, the former President will open the annual Salvation Army drive for funds.

WOMAN ASKS $8,000,000; ENEMY WILL BARE FEUD

District Attorney Warren L. Bishop today assigned two state detectives to investigate the death of Bowen E. Tufts, Boston financier, who left a suicide note giving a business rival "full credit for my death."

"I want to know the whole story behind that note," said Bishop.

"The man to whom it was adrressed will appear voluntarily at my office at 11 a. m. tomorrow."

Tufts, even in death, was named as one of the respondents, along with companies which he in part controlled, in an $8,000,000 equity court action today.

A Boston woman filed this equity suit.

IN $16,000,000 SUIT

Two das yago Tufts and some of his associates were named respondents in an equity suit, involving $16,000,000.

Tufts was found dead from carbon monoxide in the garage of his beautiful Winchester home Sunday morning.

Other developments today found Director John C. Hull of the state securities division issuing a report and Edmund J. Brandon, regional administrator for the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission, announcing a conference with Hull.

Tufts' suicide note read:

"You told me that you would keep after me until you got me. Now you can take full credit for my death."

The name of the addressee is being withheld.

The $8,000,000 equity action was filed today by Ida Gelfand of Boston through Attorney David Stoneman, who also filed the $16,000,000 suit.

TUFTS' SUICIDE LAID TO BIG BOSTON FINANCIAL FEUD

Bowen Tufts' Winchester Mansion

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

In the garage adjoining this Stratford road, Winchester, home, Bowen Tufts, Boston financier, died of carbon monoxide poisoning. His death was ruled a suicide by Medical Examiner William H. Keleher. In a note left by Tufts, another Boston business man was named as causing him to take his life.

FOE IN NOTE TO EXPLAIN THREAT

She asks a receiver for the Railroad Shares Corporation and states that the public invested $8,000,000 and that, on last December 31, the assets were only $503.79.

Medical Examiner William Kelleher delivered Tufts' suicide note to District Attorney Bishop today. Bishop assigned Detectives Sherlock and O'Neil to the case.

Tufts was a director of 49 corporations, a "self-made man," who had risen to great wealth from a start as an office boy at $8 a week.

He was a native of Lexington and a product of the Somerville public schools.

At the Tufts mansion in Stratford road, Winchester, the members of his family were consoling one another, shocked beyond words.

WIDOW FLIES HOME

Mrs. Tufts, prominent in the Red Cross, had flown home by chartered plane from Washington.

One son hurried home from Harvard. Another, a Yale student, was rushed home from a New Hampshire hospital where he had been under treatment for skiing injuries. Two daughters, one a high school pupil, were also there.

Director John C. Hull of the state securities division said he is at present engaged in an investigation of the affairs of C. D. Parker & Co.

He said he had forbidden the sale of shares by Seaboard Utility Shares Corporation and Railroad Shares Corporation, both of which came under the control of the Parker concern.

Hull's report in part was as follows:

"Upon all the evidence I find that both Seaborad and Railroad have been grossly mismanaged.

"The interests of their stockholders have been made secondary to the interests of C. D. Parker & Company, Inc.

DUTY TO INVESTOR

"This is too frequently the case when the broker and the corporation are in fact one and the same.

"Corporations like these, that take the public's money to invest, owe a serious duty to the investors.

"For the officers and directors to loan that money to a brokerage concern in which they have an interest, or to allow such a brokerage concern to become heavily indebted to their corporation, is a violation of that duty.

"Due to the fact that this investigation, so far as it relates to C. D. Parker & Co., Inc., is not completed, I will make no finding at the present time concerning C. D. Parker & Co., Inc., registered broker.

"From information disclosed or in its possession, this division is of the opinion that the sale of the securities of Seaboard Utilities Shares Corporation and Railroad Shares Corporation is fraudulent or would result in fraud and hereby makes a finding to that effect.

"Accordingly, such securities shall not be sold or offered for sale in the commonwealth of Massachusetts."

OWED $6,000,000

The order, previously unpublished, was issued March 13, this year.

The order also said:

"I do not know what information these investment corporations have furnished to their stockholders, but I find that the information furnished this division has frequently been evasive and misleading.

"When pressed as to why various accounts, notes, etc., due to the Railroad Shares Corporation and Seaboard Utility Shares Corporation had not been paid, the reply of C. D. Parker & Company, Inc., was that no demand had ever been made by either Seaboard or Railroad.

"I find this to be so and it is a fair inference that this lack of demand has been due to the unity of management."

Hull's report stated the latest balance sheet showed that C. D. Parker & Company, Inc., owed Seaboard Utility Shares Corporation more than $2,000,000.

The $16,000,000 equity suit was filed Saturday afternoon in behalf of William L. Sullivan, a minority stockholder of the Seaboard Utility Shares Corporation. Sullivan is not the man to whom the suicide note was addressed.

Medical Examiner Kelleher reached his finding of suicide before he found the note. And until the note was found the family of the dead financier refused to accept suicide as a verdict.

PLANNED VISIT

They pointed to the fact that Tufts had left a note in the Winchester house, saying that he intended to drive to North Conway to stay overnight with his son, Junior, who had been hurt in a skiing smash.

When his body was found on the floor of the garage, the front seat of the car was found to hold neatly folded underwear and such clothes and accessories as a man would take on a short trip.

The family pointed to those as signs that he had intended to make the trip, and had not planned to take his own life.

But the note silenced the doubters; if it did not convince them.

Tufts' body was found by a maid. He was lying face down a few feet from the exhaust pipe. The garage doors were closed tightly. The motor was ticking over smoothly. He was dead.

Mrs. Tufts was in Washington attending a national congress of the Red Cross, of which she was Winchester director.

When she left, she said, Tufts had been in exceptionally good spirits, which held until only a few hours before his death.

SIGNED TAX PLEA

Tufts' name appears with 20 others on a petition filed with the clerk of the Federal Court on April 3, 1934, seeking recovery of $35,599.44 from the United States Internal Revenue Division on taxes assessed to the Massachusetts Utilities Association.

The petition stated the plaintiffs were trustees of the Massachusetts Utilities Association, so-called, formerly, prior to September 1, 1928, known as Massachusetts Utilities Investment Trust, organized and operating as a Massachusetts voluntary trust association, under a declaration of trust executed March 31, 1927, and subsequently amended.

The other plaintiffs are:

G. Bramwell Baker, Edwin H. Barker, William C. Bell, Philip M. Childs, William C. Coburn, Frank D. Comerford, Guy W. Cox, George R. S. Denton, Thomas D. Dignan, Harry Hanson, C. S. Harriman, George F. Howland, Edwin C. Mason, Robert A. Montgomery, Chauncy D. Parker, James J. Phelan (deceased), Elwyn C. Preston, John West, Henry A. Wyman and B. Loring Young, trustees.

The case has not yet been heard.

SEEK TO EXTEND COTTON LOANS

By Associated Press

Washington, April 8—Chairman Smith of the Senate agriculture committee said today after a conference with Secretary Wallace that southern cotton senators may initiate legislation for continuation of 12 cent apound government loans on cotton.

Smith also said he would confer with the farm administrator tomorrow on a proposal for the government to buy back 250,000 bales of "actual physical cotton" which was disposed of by taking futures in its stead.

100 JEWS BEATEN IN BUCHAREST

By International News Service

Bucharest, April 8—An outburst of anti-semitism rocked Bucharest today, forcing the ministry of the interior to enforce strict police measures.

More than 100 Jews were beaten in the stretts, authorities estimated.

Thirty-eight attackers, including 22 students, were arrested.

Warning the public the disturbances must stop immediately, the ministry of the interior ordered out special police patrols.

At a performance last night of the play "Rain," anti-semitic students staged a demonstration of the erroneous supposition that the British author, Somerset Maugham, was a Jew.

Pope's Prayer

Vatican City, April 8—Pope Pius brought increased influence to bear in the cause of world tranquility through a vast demonstration for peace he himself led in the historic basilica of St. Peter's.

Some 30,000 worshippers joined the Pontiff in his prayers for good will among the nations of the earth.

The solemn occasion, attended by the German and French ambassadors accredited to the Holy See and by representatives of the British and Italian legations, came just four days before the conference of the powers at Stresa, where Europe's peace problems will be surveyed.

DANZIG NAZIS LOSE BY 17,594

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press

Danzig, April 8—The Nazis failed by 17,594 votes yesterday to create a dictatorship in the free city in their drive to unite it with Germany.

Final official figures in the election of the Volkstag, or Parliament, showed they polled only 59.1 per cent of the votes instead of the 66 2-3 per cent needed to gain control.

Official revision of the original announcement that the Nazis had scored 59.9 of the votes increases the percentage polled by Catholics, Poles and Socialists.

A German Nazi and a Pole were shot and another Pole beaten today in Brentau, a suburb of Danzig.

The stepson of a Polish employe of the gas company was shot in the chin and the Nazi was shot in the stomach and seriously wounded.

Poles claim that a band of Nazis entered the gas company employe's home in Brentau and beat him up and that the shots were fired in the ensuing fight.

ROOSEVELT KIN TO MARRY ITALIAN

New York, April 8—Margaret Christiane Roovevelt, 19, a relative of President Roosevelt, announced in a wireless message from the liner Conte Di Savoia that she is engaged to marry an Italian youth, Alessandro Pallavicini, whose father is a merchant in Rome.

MARGARET C. ROOSEVELT

Romance in Rome

Miss Roosevelt is en route home aboard the liner. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Emlen Roosevelt of New York.

Her father is a second cousin of the late President Theodore Roosevelt and a kinsman of the present Chief Executive. He is an investment banker.

Roosevelt Girl Met Youth While Studying

Rome, April 8—Alessandro Pallavicini, young clerk in a radio store operated by his father, said he would go to the United States in a few months to wed Miss Margaret Roosevelt, a relative of the President.

Pallavicini said he met the American girl here in September, 1933, and saw a great deal of her at that time. During her recent stay in Italy, he said, they were again much together and it was during this time that they became engaged.

LLOYD GEORGE TANGLES UP EUROPEAN PEACE PLANS

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

International News Service Staff Correspondent

(World Copyright, 1935, by International News Service) Reproduction in Whole or Part Strictly Prohibited.)

London, April 8—With two new minor catastrophes, one for Hitler and one for France, Europe entered another of its decisive weeks today in a state of greater confusion than ever since Germany's denunciation of the Versailles treaty.

The Nazis' failure to win in Danzig the two-thirds parliamentary majority necessary to change the constitution and establish a dictatorship is a blow to Berlin which, by curious chance, was balanced by the news that Captain Anthony Eden, British Lord Privy Seal, is so ill he cannot go to Stresa, Italy, for the three-power conference on Thursday.

On one hand, it is now possible to argue that the Nazis, in the Saar or Germany itself, would not win more than 60 per cent if elections were held under the same conditions as Danzig, where the population knew it would continue to enjoy protection of the League of Nations.

Cabinet in Session

This, however, is a very minor factor in that great issue of "peace by force" or "peace by agreement" which the Powers are about to debate at Stresa and which the British cabinet is today discussing.

Eden's illness is much more serious because, after meeting Hitler, Stalin, Pilsudski and Benes, he is known to be convinced that only a "league of force" can keep peace against rearmed Germany.

Behind the British indecision, now increased by Eden's dropping out, lies a web of British internal political intrigue which is already proving fateful for her foreign politics and hence for Europe.

David Lloyd George is the center of that web. The national government is afraid it won't get a big enough majority at the next elections, expected after MacDonald retires in favor of Stanley Baldwin, perhaps at conclusion of the King's jubilee in June.

Lloyd George, it is believed, could poll two million votes, so the government is thinking of bringing him into a reorganized cabinet, perhaps as foreign minister.

But Lloyd George heads a group in England which does not believe that "Germany means war" so Lloyd George as foreign minister would exclude Britain's adherence to a league of force against Germany.

Anglo-German Pact

Not long ago, Lloyd George sent his former secretary, Lord Lothian, to Berlin to probe Hitler's mind. Upon his return here Lothian urged an Anglo-German pact.

Lloyd George has not yet committed himself that far, but is known to advocate a policy of "let Germany only keep her hands off the West, and Britain does not care what she does in the East."

This policy is premised on the theory that the peace of Europe is divisible, and that war in the East need not necessarily mean war in the West.

All this is already having a profound effect, because Lothian is an intimate friend of the editor-in-chief of the London Times, Geoffrey Dawson, and the Times' editorial policy now represents the Lloyd George line.

So Germany, France and Italy get the impression the Times is speaking for the government, when, as today, it declares categorically Britain will not join an anti-German bloc.

MacDonald and Flandin to Attend Stresa Parley

By Associated Press

London, April 8—With Captain Eden, Lord Privy Seal, sick in bed with a heart strain, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, himself, has decided to go to Stresa, Italy, this week with Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon to confer with representatives of France and Italy.

The prime minister made the announcement himself in the House of Commons today.

Hitler Wires Eden Quick Recovery Hope

By Associated Press

Berlin, April 8—Reichsfuehrer Hitler today sent a telegram to Captain Anthony Eden, British lord privy seal, extending best wishes for a quick recovery from the heart strain which has compelled him to withdraw from his governmental activities.

Russia Pessimistic Over Stresa Outcome

Moscow, April 8—Notice that Soviet Russia will not consider any decisions reached at the Stresa conference of British, French and Italians binding upon her in case they collide with her views of Europe's peace needs was delivered by the official newspaper, Izvestia.

Taking a suddenly pessimistic view of the peace negotiations and charging a "conscious" effort to bury the project of an eastern security pact, Karl Radek, highly credited as a spokesman, declared in a signed article in the newspaper:

"Soviet Russia will consider as binding on her only decisions arising from negotiations in which she has taken part."

Mussolini to Attack Locarno Pact of 1925

Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press

Rome, April 8—Well-informed sources said today that one of Premier's Mussolini's projects to be submitted to the conference at Stresa Thursday will be the scrapping or complete re-writing of the Locarno treaty so as "to put more teeth into it."

The Locarno pact was concluded 10 years ago on the shores of Lake Maggiore where the Stresa Conference will be held. It provided that if Germany attacked France or France attacked Germany, Great Britain and Italy were to go to the aid of the invaded country.

U. S. Has No Plans for Observer at Stresa

By Associated Press

Washington, April 8—Secretary Hull said at a press conference today the United States has made no plans to have an observer at the Stresa conference, beginning Wednesday.

American envoys at London, Paris, Rome and Berlin will be relied upon to keep the State Department fully informed of the deliberations through the governments to which they are accredited.

WAR PERIL SEEN BY LUDENDORFF

Belief that mysterious hidden forces are agitating for a new world war in 1941 was expressed by General Erich Ludendorff today in an exclusive statement to International News Service on the eve of his 70th birthday. His signed statement follows:

By GENERAL ERICH LUNDENDORFF

(Copyright, 1935, by International News Service)

Tutzing, Upper Bavaria, April 8—I am no prophet.

But super-state wire-pullers desire a new war to annihilate Germany and Japan. The peoples of the world, however, do not want it.

General Ludendorff

Therefore, I believe that war will not come for the present.

Nevertheless, nations must be prepared, because the secret wire-pullers are at any rate pressing for war in 1941.

Those secret wire-pullers will know what I mean.

HULTMAN CASE AGAIN DELAYED

Again the ouster hearing against former Police Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman has been postponed, it was revealed today by Governor Curley.

At the request of Clarence A. Barnes, counsel for Hultman, the governor said he had put the hearing over until a week from Wednesday.

Barnes is still a hospital patient in Jamaica Plain, suffering from a throat ailment. In his request for a postponement he said it was the first case in 10 years on which he had sought delay.

swer that surprised the Ohio gentleman, who sent it for publication to a weekly called "The New Republic," telling the sympathetic editor that he considered Senator Donahey's reply "so much like mere piffle that it cannot be dignified by designating it as an argument."

Some citizens will find in Senator Donahey's reply exactly the answer that 90 per cent of Americans would have liked to send. They will thank the "New Republic" for making it possible to give the letter fairly wide publicity. This is the senator's letter, and THREE CHEERS FOR HIM.

"If Great Britain made the payment due us on the war debt, it would cost her 4.1 per cent of her budget. She says she can't pay us but she is spending 13 per cent of her budget on armaments.

"If France paid, it would cost her 2 per cent of her budget. She says she can't pay us, but she is spending 27.4 per cent of her budget on armaments. After the armistice was signed we loaned France more than a billion dollars and during the same period of time she loaned other European countries $700,000,000.

"If Italy paid us it would cost her 1.4 per cent of her budget. She says she can't pay, but she is spending 33.1 per cent on armaments.

"We spent $42,000,000,000 on their war. We loaned them $12,000,000,000 more. We conscripted 4,000,000 men for their war. We shipped 2,000,000 across the sea. We shipped almost all in British bottoms, and paid Great Britain $140 to $180 for the transportation of every boy. We paid them to transport our boys to their war.

"We are paying $800,000,000 a year interest on these debts that we contracted for them and that they now refuse to pay.

"If you subscribe to the greatest fraud of all time and condemn me for voting 'no' on World Court adherence, sign this statement and return it to me.

Paris Paper Says:

U.S. WILL STAY OUT OF EUROPEAN WAR

W. R. Hearst's Battle On Entanglements Cited

By Universal Service

Paris, April 8—The American people are by an enormous majority much more opposed today than in 1914 to participation in any European conflict, a front page article in the Journal Des Debats declares.

It cites the Hearst newspapers as foremost in the "most vigorous American campaign ever launched against entanglement in European affairs, and, more especially, in European wars."

Written by Georges Lechartier, former Washington correspondent for several leading French newspapers, the article predicts that President Roosevelt, in a forthcoming address to Congress, emphatically will express determination of the American people to stay out of any European war, and adds:

"He will also warn European nations not to expect any financial or industrial aid from the United States for belligerents."

WARNING OF HEARST

Lechartier said:

"To see how the American people of today are by an enormous majority much more opposed than they were in 1914 to any participation in European conflict it is necessary only to have followed recent debates on the World Court. Never has a more vigorous campaign been unleashed against entanglement in the affairs and more especially in the wars of Europe.

"Every day the Hearst newspapers by their blazing editorials, by their striking illustrations and by radio broadcasts placed the American people on guard against 'putting a finger in Europe's war mill.'

"The butchery of 1917 and 1918 was recalled. Photographs of the horrors of the last war were reproduced."

Stating the campaign had a "widespread echo through all states of the union" the article continues:

ROOSEVELT TO ACT

"Roosevelt must know that to keep the United States out of war he has but two alternatives. Either he must maintain a sufficiently strong army and navy to compel respect for the rights of neutrality; or he must cooperate with other nations wishing peace; at least with England in order to conserve peace by confronting any aggressor with a combined force greater than the aggressor.

"The recent naval program Roosevelt had Congress vote indicates a tendency toward the first alternative. We may expect in his forthcoming message a severe warning to militaristic Europe. But we may not expect a single word which might be interpreted as engaging even as the phalanx of an American finger in the European mill."

OFFICER HURT IN FIST FIGHT

In a fist fight that raged from curb to curb in Greenwood avenue, Hyde Park, one of four policemen was injured today and two alleged motorists were arrested on charges of drunkenness and attack on a police officer.

The men under arrest gave their names as Henry W. Bates, 28, of Brainerd road, Brighton, and Joseph Geary, 28, of Bowdoin street, Dorchester.

Police said the two were in a car which went out of control and dropped down a 15-foot embankment.

Robbed of Pistol

A valuable duelling pistol and a set of links and studs were stolen from Minot Pitman, a Harvard student, living at Dexter House, police said today.

BLUE BLOOD TELLS

Ciggies Lure Cabot

By Associated Press

New York, April 8—Telling the world how much they like a certain cold cream, cake flour, cigarette or monkey wrench is putting from nothing to $1000 into the pockets of celebrities.

Ten-thousand-dollar pay checks, say the testimonial advertising agencies, have been few in recent years.

A society name seldom gets more than $1000 and sometimes the pay is nothing flat or, if it be a woman, she may receive the gown in which she is photographed.

Queen Marie indorsed a brand of cosmetics for $2000. Alice Roosevelt Longworth's testimonial for a bed came higher. She is said to have received $5000.

Not many years ago the Vanderbilts shunned this type of advertising, fearing the displeasure of the Dowager Mrs. Vanderbilt, and commercial firms sought in vain the indorsement of a Boston Cabot.

Cabot Yields

But in the last few months, a Vanderbilt name—that of Murial Vanderbilt Phelps, granddaughter of the late W. K. Vanderbilt—appeared in a cold cream advertisement, and Mrs. Powell Cabot of Boston endorsed a cigarette.

The cold cream endorsers are one of the most exclusive sets in the world and some women desire "bids" just as they yearn for court presentations.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who is said to have received $1000, was one of the charter members. Then Mrs. Marshall Field, Sr. of Chicago, the Duchess de Richelieu and Lady Mountbatten joined the group.

More From Boston

Among this year's "debs" in the "cold cream aristocracy" are Mrs. Paul Revere 3d, of Boston, and Mrs. Alexander Cochrane Forbes, a grandniece of Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother.

Fully as imposing is the list of cigarette endorsers, which includes Mrs. Potter D'Orsay Palmer of Chicago, Mrs. Nicholas Biddle of Philadelphia, Mary Byrd of Virginia, and Mrs. James Russell Lowell of New York.

The feminine advertising aristocracy is much larger than the male. Most of the broad-shouldered Apollos who, in the ads, loll at the seashore, shoot grouse and stalk tigers are anonymous.

But men have given testimonials as far back as the early 1900's, when David Warfield and George Arliss blazed the trail.

Formula: 60 Years

'Quiet Life' Recipe for Marital Bliss

Chicago, April 8—Mr. and Mrs. William Kux not only know how to be happy, though married, but they have known it all along for 60 years.

Said he:

"Don't get excited about unimportant things."

She said:

"Just lead a quiet home life."

They expressed themselves when newspapermen asked their "formula" for domestic bliss on their 60th wedding anniversary yesterday. Three hundred guests attended a celebration.

PARIS TEACHERS

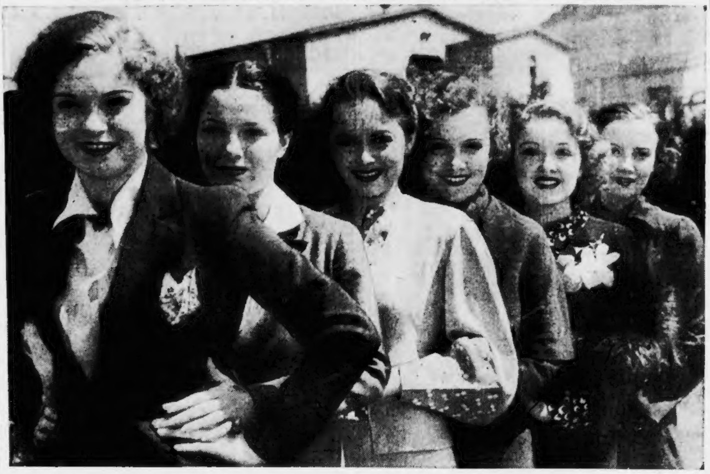
Two very distinguished French teachers will attend the celebration of Harvard University's 300th anniversary, according to word received here from Paris today.

Pierre Janet, professor of psychology at the College of France, and Marcel Aubert, curator of the National Museums, will represent the French Academy at the ceremonies, which begin September, 1936.

Little Film Starlets Headed for Movie Fame



JUNE MARTEL — JUNE TRAVIS — OLIVIA DE HAVILAND — NAN GRAY — MAXINE DOYLE — DOROTHY DARE

Warner Brothers executives have chosen these budding "Baby Stars" for intensive film training during the coming year. They are: June Martel and June Travis, Chicago; Olivia de Haviland, Los Gatos, Cal.; Nan Gray, Houston, Texas; Maxine Doyle, San Francisco; and Dorothy Dare of New York City.

(Pictures from International News Photograph Service)

Dorothy Dare, sole eastern representative among the Warner "Starlets," may have been number six in the six-girl lineup, but she's right up on the front row when it oomes to feminine pulchritude, as this close-up reveals. Her name will be in lights before long or we miss our guess.

Sweep Winner In Flight

Off to Erin to Avoid Marriage Proposals

Free from salesmen and marriage proposals, John J. Holden, winner of $70,000 in the Irish Sweepstakes last fall, heaved a sigh of relief as he leaned on the rail of the Eastern Steamship liner Acadia and saw Boston fading in the distance.

He was forced, he said, to go to Ireland to escape purveyors of hard luck stories and leeches who were out to get his money.

One woman wrote—a woman he had never met—that she "had worn out his picture kissing it."

Accompanying Mr. Holden are his brothers, Patrick A. and Thomas A. Holden; Patrick's wife, and Mary and Leslie Shea, neighbors of the Holden family in Newton.

They plan to visit in County Cork, where Mr. Holden's mother was born. The mother, despite entreaties to join them, refused to make the crossing because of her dislike for ocean voyages.

The group will leave New York on the liner Brittanic and return some time in May.

PILGRIM Rock, Water IN ROW

CAPE CITIES AIR PEEVE

Provincetown, April 8 — The hysterical historical row continues.

Dignified business men and city officials of both Provincetown and Plymouth are thumbing over old history books and mumbling in an effort to determine whether Plymouth or Provincetown was "the birthplace of American Liberty."

Jeremiah J. Lahey, secretary of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce, started it with the innocent remark that the Pilgrims could not stay in Provincetown because they could not find suitable drinking water.

Ralph S. Carpenter, prominent member of the Provincetown Board of Trade, did not think that this was a couth remark. In fact, he thought it very uncouth. He said so.

What, Goldbricks?

The good citizens have always been too refined and too gentle, he hints broadly, to "defame their names by a ballyhoo that associates them with such things as hens."

Having thus taken care of the famous Plymouth Rock hens at one fell swoop, he proceeds to demolish Plymouth Rock itself.

There is no evidence, he says sadly, that the Pilgrims ever landed on Plymouth Rock.

But in a noble burst of sentiment, he adds:

"We would not be so iconoclastic as to cause Plymouth Rock to glisten with the glint of a gold brick."

With a careless, easy gesture, he proves in a single declarative statement that American liberty was born here, grew here, and thrived here.

First Drink

"If you doubt it," he says, "visit our annual artists' ball."

Nor does Mr. Carpenter forget the water, which started the thumbing of history books and noses.

He trots out a quotation from an historical work:

"We sat us down and drank our first New England water with as much delight as ever we drank in all our lives."

There, fellow Pilgrims, the matter rests momentarily, though Provincetown would like to settle the matter with a public debate in Faneuil Hall.

JUDITH ALLEN

Providence, R. I., April 8—Judith Allen, the ex-Mrs. Gus Sonnenberg, announced that she is a "very, very good friend" of Jack Doyle, handsome boxer from County Cork, Ireland.

She added that Jack ought to give up his ring career and devote his efforts to singing and the movies.

Paper Plant Burns

A two-alarm fire in a waste paper plant on Ward street, Roxbury, did $2000 damage. The blaze was confined to the first floor of the four-story brick building.

'Trial Separation' To Test Love

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

Universal Service Society Editor

New York, April 8—That the blonde and beauteous Mrs. Allan A. Ryan, Jr., possesses a grand sense of humor is a known fact in the fashionable set that makes its metropolitan headquarters at a swanky restaurant here.

Now, society must take cognizance of still another of Janet Ryan's assets—brains.

Most of our young people who find matrimony not exactly what they expected it would be, rush off to Reno and "call it a day" in the divorce courts.

Drifted Apart

Not so with Janet! When she became Junior Allan Ryan's bride she realized it was the most important step of her life. She was deeply in love with the Ryan heir—and his affection for her could not be doubted.

Frankly, I think the couple still cherish those same feelings for each other. But, as happens so frequently here in Gotham, they have, in the last year or so, drifted apart.

And those of us who know and like Janet Ryan also know that she pondered long and carefully before she laid out the plan for a six months' trial separation from Allan.

Almost as soon as you read these lines the "trial separation" will be in effect—with Janet and Allan on the most cordial of terms. And both hoping their little domestic difficulties will be solved during the six months they are sheltered by separate roof-trees.

What a sensible arrangement—and I congratulate Janet and Allan.

If more of our younger marrieds would follow the same plan, there would be fewer divorces—and more reconciliations.

The critic who said "blondes lack brains" should meet Mrs. Allan A. Ryan, Jr.

Golden Rule Mothers' Day On May 12

By International News Service

New York, April 8—Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, has accepted the honorary chairmanship of the Golden Rule Mothers' Day committee, it was announced today.

Mrs. James Roosevelt

Observance this year falls on May 12, which is Hospital Day, and the anniversary of the birth of Florence Nightingale, and for that reason the purpose of the occasion has been changed from that of previous years. Not for one's own mother, but for the mothers in need is the observance intended. The slogan for the day, a paraphrase of the golden rule, is:

"Whatsoever you would that others should do for your mother if she were in need, and whatsoever your mother would do for the needy if she had the opportunity, do on Mothers' Day in honor of your mother and in her name for other mothers and children, victimized by the present-day social and economic maladjustments."

JIMMY'S Quick Rally CHEERS ALYCE

Fall River, April 8—In high glee, Alyce Jane McHenry, the upside-down stomach girl, learned today that Jimmy Neilson, the upside-down stomach boy, has rallied surprisingly.

From Jimmys' room, on the same floor in Truesdale Hospital, a bulletin came out in mid-morning which said:

"Temperature normal, pulse 100, respiration 21. Discomfort subsided. General condition good."

Thirteen-year-old Jimmy, it was learned, had been able to take and retain today a little orange juice and milk.

Jimmy, of San Jose, Cal., underwent virtually the same operation for diaphramatic hernia as that performed upon 10-year-old Aylce, who is from Omaha, Neb.

Mrs. Spreckles Not in Love

Romance With Cousin of Barbara Denied

By International News Service

Reno, Nev., April 2—There is no romance between Mrs. Lois Spreckels, wealthy San Francisco society matron, and Jimmie Donahue, cousin of Princess Barbara Hutton, friends of both women declared today when asked concerning the reported romance.

"Nonsense," said Samuel Platt, attorney for Mrs. Spreckels.

Mrs. Spreckels, wife of Adolph B. Spreckels, heir to the Spreckels sugar fortune, is the daughter of Lewis Latham Clarke, nationally known banker.

Although she and Miss Hutton are close friends, they have not visited each other since Mrs. Spreckels arrived in Reno last week.

Mrs. Spreckels, like Miss Hutton, is here preparatory to seeking a divorce from her mate.

Miss Hutton remained hidden in her temporary home here. Clinton Gardner, her chauffeur, denied published reports he had been implicated in a night club brawl because a stranger assertedly had made remarks which were considered unkind to Miss Hutton.

FRED PERRY

EX-RING STAR FACES TENNIS CHAMP

By Universal Service

Hollywood, April 8—Hollywood, famous for its one and two-blow battles, added another no-decision encounter to its long list when Joe Benjamin, former lightweight champion, and Fred Perry, world's ranking tennis player, met in the Trocadero Cafe.

Benjamin, now owner of a racing stable, said he was seated in the cafe with Mona Rico and Renee Torres, screen actresses, when Perry appeared. Declared Benjamin:

"Perry made some uncomplimentary cracks about American champions, including Dempsey, so I got sore. Perry gave me a push. I pushed him back. I might have slipped in a sock."

JOE BENJAMIN

Perry, British Davis Cup ace, vigorously denied he had belittled American champions. He said:

"I think they're a fine lot. I said nothing that would indicate I did not hold them in the highest esteem."

FILM BEAUTIES OBJECT OF COMBAT

Benjamin, once the husband of Marian Nixon, screen actress, denied he had thrown a cigarette into Perry's face. He said:

"I can still throw my fists. If Perry wants to act that way I'll tell the rest of the story—he intruded at our table and insisted on taking Mona home.

"So, after he pushed me, I let him have one. I didn't like him anyway."

Perry, who recently made a screen test at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, said the whole thing was "silly" and "rot" and that he was leaving Hollywood for Europe on Wednesday.

PRIEST'S STORY BLASTS BRUNO ALIBI CLAIM

By Associated Press

Milwaukee, April 8—Federal authorities today considered a new chapter in the life of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, a chapter purported to blast much of the Bronx carpenter's defense alibi to the kidnaping of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

The Rev. Michael J. Kallok, 48-year-old Catholic priest, told government agents that Hauptmann studied plans of Lindbergh's Hopewell, N. J., estate even before it was constructed, and that he had seen him often riding horseback in the woods of the Sourland Mountains.

While he was paster of St. Michael the Archangel church on the outskirts of Trenton, N. J., he said he became acquainted with Hauptmann as a frequenter of a riding stable owned by Leroy C. Thompson, who described Bruno as a "slick guy."

"LOOKING AT BLUE PRINTS"

On Thompson's place, said the priest, Robert A. Schumann, a Trenton architect, had a small office where he pored over plans of the Lindbergh estate, hoping for contracts on the work. The clergyman described a visit to the architect's office:

"Bruno was looking at some blueprints. I looked over his shoulder and saw what they were. 'Oh, that's the Lindbergh home,' I said.

"He folded them over so I couldn't see them. Schumann looked up and said to Bruno, 'O, never mind, he's all right.'"

Schumann died September 7, 1932, after being stricken with heart disease on a bus. The priest said he had been informed the architect was mysteriously robbed and slugged shortly before his death.

"MORAL DUTY" TO TELL

"Moral duty" spurred him, the priest said, to reveal his acquaintance with the man under death sentence for kidnaping the Lindbergh baby, despite his fear of notoriety and harm.

He was pastor of the Trenton church from 1926 to 1931, and since has been pastor of St. Joseph's Church in Cudahy, Milwaukee suburb.

Federal agents were to turn the priest's story over to Colonel Norman H. Schwartzkoff of the New Jersey State police, who will determine future steps.

In Trenton Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson, widow of the stable owner, who died in September, 1931, said she remembered her husband had told her the priest was a frequent visitor at the stable.

ROSS ORDERED OFF VOTE LIST

Notified today he was officially removed from the city's voting list, former Mayor Charles A. Ross of Quincy opened his battle to be eligible to run for re-election in the May 21 primaries.

But unless Ross' attorneys are successful in court action before that date, the ousted mayor will be unable to enter the race.

Notice that his name had been stricken from the list was served on him by City Clerk Emery L. Crane.

Crane's notice read:

"You are hereby notified that in compliance with what I regard my official duty under the decision of court in the ouster proceedings and the general laws, your name will be stricken from the roll of registered voters of Quincy on Tuesday, April 16, unless restrained by appropriate legislative proceedings."

Former Assistant District Attorney William P. Kelley and City Solicitor Charles R. Young of Quincy are representing Ross in his fight to be reinstated on the election list.

ETHIOPIA GETS Many New Guns

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, April 8 (AP)—What was reported to be the biggest consignment of munitions ever imported into Ethiopia arrived today from Belgium and Czechoslovakia.

Emperor Haile Selassie, himself, went to the station to inspect the shipment comprising 400 machine guns, 20,000 rifles, and 6,000,000 cartridges.

Transport of the munitions toward the borders of Italian Somaliland and Eritrea by caravans began immediately.

List Wives On City Jobs

Mayor Calls for Full Details Under Order

Department heads of the City of Boston were called upon today by Mayor Mansfield to submit a list of names of married women on the city payrolls, together with the names of their husbands, their positions and salaries.

The action came when Mansfield signed an order demanded by Councillor Henry Selvitella of East Boston who is campaigning against married women, whose husbands are working, holding city jobs.

Selvitella charges that wives of firemen, policemen, postmen and others on city and federal payrolls are also drawing salaries.

DENY 'QUODDY Survey for Army

Washington, April 8 (AP)—War Department officials denied today that the department would make a study of the Passamaquoddy Bay tidal power project in Maine at the request of the public works administration.

Reports published in New England said Major Phillip H. Fleming, deputy PWA administrator, had asked the War Department to study the proposal as a defense measure. PWA officials said no allotment had been made.

GIRL PILOT K. O.'S FRIEND TO SAVE HIM

By International News Service

New York, April 8—Battling with a panic stricken passenger who "froze" to the controls of her plane, Miss Annette Gipson, noted aviatrix knocked him unconscious with a fire extinguisher to save their lives high over Roosevelt Field it was revealed today.

Her gasoline low and darkness coming on, Miss Gipson tried three times to land her plane. Each time the frightened passenger—a friend whose name Miss Gipson declined to reveal—seized the double controls in a "death grip."

Each time she barely managed to exert enough strength to pull the ship up again. Finally she went up to 2000 feet, to make the last attempt.

Her passenger began pummeling her, and tearing at her hair. Miss Gipson seized the small fire extinguisher, struck the man a blow and knocked him out.

Then she landed the ship, revived her friend, and took him to the Long Island railroad station, where she put him on a train for New York.

It was not until she returned to the flying field later that she told the story.

Miss Gipson's nose was still swollen today, but she made light of the perilous battle.

RIEL GIRL ALIVE IS BELIEF

Worcester, April 8—Failure of the four-day hunt for the body of Etta Riel, concluded officially Saturday night, has only served to convince Lieutenant Edward J. McCarthy of state police the girl is still alive.

Lieutenant McCarthy is trying to find a young entertainer from Oxford, where the search for the girl's body was made.

The entertainer was on friendly terms with Miss Riel. When last heard from, he was in Mobile.

Police of Putnam, Ct., have been instructed to watch for the man, who usually pays a visit to relatives there after a winter in the South.

RUBBER STRIKE REGARDED NEAR

Akron, O., April 8—The unions and the rubber companies squared away today for a bitter struggle, which appeared certain to begin before the week is over.

While plants operated at high speed, union leaders mapped picket lines, planned flying squadrons, food supplies and the enlistment of volunteers in the impending struggle.

Workmen from the Firestone and Goodrich plants stood in line at union headquarters with ballots in their hands. Union leaders have predicted heavy majorities in favor of a walkout.

In Washington, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, put the responsibility for the threatened strike, which he called "imminent," on the companies.

"It could be avoided," Green said, "if the companies would permit their employes to hold an election and determine for themselves the union to which they wish to belong, as ordered and directed by the National Labor Relations Board."

WHY LYMAN RESIGNED TOLD BY CURLEY

The resignation of Arthur T. Lyman as State Commissioner of Corrections, dated last Saturday, was on the desk of Governor Curley in the State House today.

In accepting his resignation, the Governor said it was caused because of Lyman's refusal to dismiss five subordinates.

"I informed him," the Governor said, "that I could not understand why the work of classification could not be carried on by the parole board, assisted by the deputy commissioner of correction, in that way saving approximately $15,000 a year.

"I told him that I did not think the amount of money being expended was justified.

Frank Loveland Jr., one of those whose dismissal was supposedly asked by Curley, was at his desk as usual today. Loveland is head of the state crime commission at a salary of $5000 a year.

With the resignation of both Lyman and Warden James L. Hogsett of Charlestown State Prison both in the hands of the Governor, two of the most important prison posts in the state are open to office seekers.

Philip A. Chapman has been named as the most likely successor to Lyman, but he stated today that he is not a candidate.

Deputy Warden Francis J. W. Lanagan, it is understood, is the Governor's choice to succeed the veteran Hogsett.

Hogsett entered prison service as a guard on June 11, 1906, the night when the notorious Charles L. Tucker was executed. He has seen many famous convicts walk to the chair.

YOUTH SOUGHT In Girl Attack

Northampton, April 8 (AP)—State and local police began a wide search this morning for the second of two men involved in an alleged attack on a 20-year-old Northampton girl who is in Dickinson Hospital with painful but not serious injuries.

William Witherell, 22, was arrested as an accessory. The second young man escaped.

EVERY ITEM ON THE MENU NOW AVAILABLE AT A COMBINATION PRICE

THREE YEARS AGO Thompson's Spa broke a half century's tradition by putting combination lunches on the daily bill of fare.

This new departure was an instant success. From that day to this, the 40, 50 and 60 cent lunch combinations have steadily increased in popularity.

Boston has so emphatically endorsed the complete meal combination that we now extend it to give our patrons a still greater variety of popular-priced lunches.

This Is Life

ROBERT E. ROGERS

For some years most qualified poets and critics in this country have agreed that Edwin Arlington Robinson was our most distinguished poet.

That does not mean that he was necessarily a great poet. I, for one, do not believe that he was.

Robert E. Rogers

He did stand alone, however, as a poet of never-failing intellectual distinction, seriousness of purpose, high technical accomplishment, consistent self-respect as a man of letters, and equal consistency of achievement.

Thrice he won the Pulitzer Prize for the year's best volume of verse, in 1922, 1925, and 1927.

This last was for "Tristan," a retelling of the Wagner story, and the only one of his poems to be enthusiastically read for its own sake by the general public.

He had a year or two at Harvard in the early '90s, published a thin volume at his own expense in 1896, then, his family property vanishing, he lived in extreme poverty, always writing, holding down jobs like subway inspector et cetera.

That omnivorous reader, President Theodore Roosevelt, reviewed one of his volumes—"Captain Craig," I think, or "The Man Against the Sky"—and made the book's reputation.

Roosevelt did more. Following the fine old American tradition of giving public posts to literary men, he offered him a consular post in Mexico.

When Robinson still hesitated, for fear a job would interfere with his poetry, Roosevelt let him know obliquely that the hours need not be long nor the work hard.

Robinson accepted, and taking the President at his word seldom showed up at his office. To the faithful Republicans it must have seemed like a frightful waste of a good job.

Answered Critic

Once criticized to the effect that his poetry showed the world as a prison house, he replied: "The world is not a prison house but a kind of spiritual kindergarten where millions of bewildered infants are trying to spell 'God' with the wrong blocks."

I am indebted for this epigram to that admirable book of reference, "Living Authors" (H. W. Wilson Company) edited anonymously.

I met Robinson once for part of an evening in a friend's home in New York. It was about 20 years ago and I am ashamed to say how little I remember about him. True, he was not then generally recognized as one of the "big six" and his Pulitzer awards were yet to come.

Yet I had read his verse and should have been more observant.

In a brightly lighted Italianate drawing room on lower Fifth avenue, he seemed to be doing his best to get into the shadow.

Only about forty-five then, he gave the impression of being older, graver, than his age. A domelike forehead and thin face, short, dark moustache, large eyes, scholarly spectacles, a scholar's stoop, a tendency to silence, a gentle voice, the speech and bearing of an introvert, with nothing about him of the hearty successful American. I cannot remember his saying anything of importance, or even, of great interest.

His poetry was like that. It was tough reading, without any question, except his short epigrams in stanzas, little poems like "Richard Corey" and "Miniver Cheevy."

His Favorites

His favorite poems, apparently, since he came eventually to write no others, were the long blank verse monologues or dialogues, which told complexly and obliquely some story of New England conscience or morals or frustration.

In that respect his nearest artistic rival was the greater and elder Henry James.

Both had the same interest in difficult problems of casuistry involving a group of intellectual, sensitive, involved Yankee people. Robinson dealt with his in a very fluid, easy blank verse, easy in scansion but bothersome in its oblique period sentences.

He had little lyric sense. He did not sing.

He pondered and argued; he brooded, he reflected. He wandered through a labyrinth of New England cross-purposes, dropping occasional bits of colored rag for guidance or blazing a faint path through the trees.

Usually the path was lost in underbrush before one came to the end. I, for one, was always left behind, lost. I am not patient about my poetry.

He was the kind of poet who will be remembered indefinitely by a small group of idolators of taste, intelligence and zeal.

That is perhaps the best fate a poet can wish for. It is the safest and truest immortality.

That is why minor poets are often less mortal than major poets. To that safe company Edwin Arlington Robinson will belong.

NEW HARVARD LIST OMITS GROTON

Groton School, from which the Roosevelts were graduated, and famous Boston Latin School, are both missing from a list of schools to which Harvard gives preferred treatment in a new plan of admissions announced today.

There are 26 schools on the preferred list, half of them high schools.

Boys who stand in the upper seventh of their classes in these 26 schools will be admitted to Harvard without examination—a revolutionary change in the history of the 299-year-old institution of learning.

ORIGINAL WORK

This plan was devised "in order to co-operate with certain progressive schools which are doing original work in improving methods of teaching and content of curriculum."

The announcement continues:

"The general plan, which has been approved by more than 250 American colleges and universities, provides that a small group of selected secondary schools be set free by the colleges to engage in improvement of the work of the secondary school, and that the colleges agree to accept students from these schools without regard to the course and unit requirements now generally in force."

Richard Mott Gummere, new head of the Harvard committee on admissions said today:

"An experimental group has asked the committee on admissions for this privilege and they have been given it. One of the new features of the progressive method is co-ordination of subjects like English, French, and history.

"These schools have on the whole small classes; a large school having 40 pupils to a class would find it unfeasible to use this method.

"The schools themselves don't know yet how this experimental thing is going to work out. If a large school wants to use this method it may, but many of them don't want to. We shall try this out for eight years."

CHANGES DISCUSSED

Whether Boston Latin, Groton School, St. Mark's and other famous "prep" schools which are not on the list will change their curricula to come in the "progressive" group is being discussed in academic circles.

Boston Latin has always prided itself on the number of boys it sends to Harvard, a large proportion of them entering with honors. This preparatory school was founded a year before Harvard and in 17 days will have rounded out 300 years.

About 100 pupils a year go from Boston Latin to Harvard. At the Latin school the classics are emphasized, whereas, at Harvard, President Conant had already shifted the emphasis away from these subjects.

From Groton School were graduated not only Franklin Delano Roosevelt, but his sons, Franklin, Jr., and John.

Phillips Andover and Exeter Academies are not on the preferred list.

The only New England schools on the list are Milton Academy, Milton, and Beaver Country Day School, Chestnut Hill.

SOCIALITE

Heads N. Y. Welfare

New York, April 8 (AP)—Direction of the city's unemployment relief, now under an aldermanic inquiry, went today into the hands of Oswald Whitman Knauth, 47, social registerite, amateur yachtsman, war veteran.

His appointment was announced last night by Mayor F. H. LaGuardia along with the resignation of William Hodson as chairman of the emergency relief bureau which Knauth will head.

FIRST MACKEREL

Comes by Train

No matter how thin you slice it, it's still mackerel.

Today, the first mackerel of the season arrived by train at Fish Pier from Cape May.

Mackerel in the 131 barrels of 50 pounds each were caught by the schooner Serafina N. off Cape May.

OFFICIAL KILLED

In Night Club Fall

Washington, April 8 (AP)—A man identified by a companion as William R. Dooley of Bedford, Va., treasurer of Bedford county, was killed early today in a fall down a flight of steps at a night club here.

Accompanying him at the time of the accdeint was a man listed as John B. Oliver, also if Bedford, and a member of the Virginia House of Delegates.

Affirm Verdict

Emerson's Typical Girl

LIKES FISHING THROUGH THE ICE

MAKES HER OWN CLOTHES

By HELEN McPHERSON

She is typical of the college girls of today. Their interests are as varied as life itself, their hobbies often quite surprising.

Louise Monroe, selected as the typical student at Emerson College in the Back Bay, is the first girl I ever met who doted on fishing through the ice. To me it means only shivering and waiting for a bite in the center of a snowy landscape, when one might be snug and warm at home.

But Louise, whose home is at 43 Bellevue avenue, Melrose, doesn't stop at that. She plays tennis and golf, loves swimming and rides a horse well. She is quite a mountain climber and hiker. She makes her own clothes.

Still these are only pastimes. She studies voice culture and hopes to have a school of the drama of her own some day, and even before that, a children's theater.

In summer she is dramatic counsellor at a girls' camp in New Hampshire. Fall, winter and spring she adds to the attractiveness of life in the Emerson College sector, makes the dean's honor list regularly and is president of the student government association and of Phi Mu Gamma sorority.

TINKHAM MAPS NEW RED FIGHT

By Associated Press

Washington, April 8—Representative Tinkham (R., Mass.) disclosed today he plans to carry to the floor of the House his fight to put Congress on record as favoring withdrawal of recognition from Soviet Russia.

"The recognition obtained in 1933," he said, "was obtained on specific promises—a series of promises in writing. All of these have been violated, particularly the one regarding agitation and overthrow of established government."

A House committee investigating "un-American activities" found, he said, there was overwhelming evidence of official connection between the government at Moscow and the "increasing and perfected communistic activities to overthrow our government by force here."

Tinkham has offered a resolution to cut the diplomatic connection between the two countries, but Secretary Hull held this was an executive matter. The House foreign affairs committee was unwilling to hold hearings unless Tinkham promised not to repeat any of the discussions on the floor. This he declined to do.

MOTHER JAILS

Son for Beating

A small 60-year-old mother took the stand in Quincy court today and charged her six-foot stalwart son beat and scratched her yesterday while he was under the influence of liquor.

Mrs. Sadie Caselle brought charges of assault and battery against Richard Caselle, 27. Both live in Rockland street, Quincy.

Judge Nash sentenced the son to two months in the House of Correction.

Caselle denied his mother's charges.

GAY NOMINATED

For Exchange Head

New York, April 8 (AP)—The formal nomination of Charles R. Gay as the new president of the New York Stock Exchange was announced today.

At the same time, it was announced that Richard Whitney, president of the exchange for five years, had accepted a nomination for the governing board.

New B. U. Courses

Boston University will offer two new courses in radio production and advertising during the 1935 summer season, Director Atlee L. Percy announced today.

STOMACH UPSET

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged intestines or constipation.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets help the intestines in a soothing, healing way. When the bowels are performing their natural functions, people rarely suffer from indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Try Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All druggists, 15c, 30c and 60c.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief.

ROGERS

Will Talk on 'GAY NINETIES'

What effect the social forces of the last 50 years have had upon the American literature of that period is the subject of a series of lectures to be given by Professor Robert E. Rogers at the State House, beginning Wednesday evening.

Professor Rogers' course covers eight lectures, first of which is "The Gay Nineties." Classes will be in the Gardner auditorium, under the auspices of the University Extension division of the state.

HUEY'S OUSTER

Demanded by Women

New Orleans, April 8 (AP)—Mrs. Hilda Phelps Hammond, chairman of the women's committee seeking removal of Huey P. Long and John H. Overton from the United States Senate, said today petitions demanding an investigation of charges have been addressed to Congress by six national committeewomen from five states.

She said the petitions will be addressed to members of Congress each week by men and women of national prominence.

BRING BADGES FOR BIG EASTER X-9 EGG HUNT

With less than two weeks remaining before the second annual big Easter Egg hunt at Franklin Field by the Boston Evening American Secret Agent X-9 Club, the "Big Chief" reminded members today to have their badges and cards with them.

Every boy and girl member of the club, in order to be eligible to take part in the hunt and to compete for the hundreds of prizes, must have his or her insignia to show the starters and judges.

The "Big Chief" issued the warning in order that those boys and girls not now numbered among the nearly 100,000 members of the club might have time to join.

All that is necessary for membership in the club is that you come to the Boston Evening American circulation department personally and apply for membership, or that you send your application through the mails.

Each application should be accompanied by five cents, which is the cost merely of the badge and the card. There are no other fees, but the dividends are good fellowship and good times.

Last year, in the big Easter Egg Hunt at Franklin Park, more than 25,000 youngsters took part in the search for 300 hidden eggs on the broad playstead.

This year, for the hunt on April 20—the Saturday before Easter—even more members of the club, boys and girls, are expected. There are money and other prizes, and there will be more details from day to day.

Read the Boston Evening American for these details—but meanwhile, if you are not a member of the club, get your application in and become eligible for the hunt.

X-9ers' Egg Hunt Is Ready!

Better be getting organized, X-Niners. This is the crowd which assembled last year at the Secret Agnt X-9 Club's annual Easter egg hunt in Franklin Park. This year's crowd will be still bigger, with hundreds of prizes for winning contestants. Less than two weeks to go. Be sure you have your insignia. If you haven't joined already, do so immediately. You still have time. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

2000 HOMELESS BY FLOODS IN 5 STATES

By International News Service

Natchez, Miss., April 8—An estimated 2000 persons were homeless amid death and destruction in Southern states today.

Battered debris marked the trail of tornadoes which raged in Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas last night, and were felt to a lesser degree in Florida and Alabama, and took a toll of between 30 and 40 lives.

Property damage was estimated at a million dollars and hundreds were injured.

Gloster, Miss., where Red Cross workers fed victims at emergency kitchens today and civilian conservation campers and emergency relief administration workers aided in relief work, was the hardest hit.

At least eight persons were killed at Gloster. The howling tornado wrecked the water and light plants and demolished more than 150 homes. Through the night men worked like demons to free victims trapped under the debris of their homes.

FISHING LUCK!

Poor Before Crowds

New York, April 8 (AP)—The men who go down to the Bronx river for trout have a pretty good idea of how goldfish must feel.

Thousands of spectators stopped yesterday to watch 100 patient Waltonians. They hooked but few of the 560 trout recently released in the stream. Fishermen said the spectators frightened them—that is, the trout.

HOW TO SPEND THAT 4800 MILLION

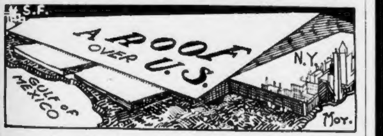
U. S. Gets 'Ideas'

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Washington, April 8—Uncle Sam will have little or no trouble spending the 4800 million dollars now appropriated by Congress. Ingenious Americans have already deluged him with fanciful schemes for work and relief.

An idea for a super-highway from New York to San Francisco has been proposed to P. A. Fellows, consulting engineer of FERA.

The author of this ambitious plan suggests that pneumatic tubes be built beneath the highway. In 10 hours mail would be shot underground through these tubes from the Atlantic to the Pacific.



Waxing more ambitious, the author suggested that the tubes ultimately could be enlarged to carry freight and passengers. A mere $850,000,000 would finance the whole thing.

Another "plan" is to erect a wooden roof over the United States "from sea to shining sea." Thus the climate could be regulated.

There would be machines on the roof to harness ultra-violet rays. These would be used, for benefit of the populace on dark days in lieu of sunshine. A super-sprinkler system, hooked up with each ocean, would provide a rainstorm.

The country could have 24 hours of daylight or rain, according to preference, but the author confessed that he had as yet failed to devise a substitute for snowstorms.

Fellows has been informed by a zealous young man that if he could get a few hundred thousand dollars out of FERA he would be glad to construct an "educational panorama" showing the water, power and transportation possibilities of a Great Lakes-St. Lawrence-Gulf of Mexico system.

An inventor has asked for $500,000,000 to develop a combination motorboat-automobile-airplane.

The inventor hoards his blueprints from prying eyes. But he insists that his machines could be sold to the public for $50 each and that prosperity would boom even if the accident hazards might be increased for a brief period.

Another brain-child proposes a national census of what every family would like to own.

A sociologist suggested a survey of all the living former Negro slaves. He admitted he was quite obscure as to where and how to begin.

SECURITY BILL FIGHT DELAYED

By Associated Press

Washington, April 8—A final decision in the House deadlock over what to do about the administration's social security bill was deferred again today until tomorrow.

Ways and Means Committee members had been scheduled to ask the rules committee for a "gag rule' permitting only committee amendments when the bill comes up on the floor.

But their appearance was postponed until tomorrow, forecasting delay until Thursday of initial debate.

Ways and Means committeemen want the "gag rule" while Speaker Byrns and other Democratic leaders oppose it, doubting if the House would accept it.

From Riches to Poverty, Death

Sutton Woman Dead of Poison at 84

Worcester, April 8—Miss Mary L. Riley once was among the wealthiest women in Worcester and Sutton.

Today, at 84, she died in Worcester State Hospital, a charity patient, after swallowing poison in her tiny room at an inexpensive hotel.

Miss Riley and her sister, the late Mrs. Fred Pratt, widow of a banker with huge interests, just a few years ago had a mansion, several cars, chauffeurs, servants and large holdings in stocks and bonds.

They lost their money, the mansion in Sutton and were reduced to poverty. Mrs. Pratt died and her sister was reduced to a hotel room.

Several months ago she went on the welfare rolls, and last Wednesday she was taken from the hotel to state hospital after admitting that she had swallowed the poison to die.

Dies in Philippines

Word of the death of Herbert P. Whitmarsh, 71, formerly of Boston and once governor of Benguet province in the Philippines, was received today from the Philippines.

He went to the islands in 1899 as a correspondent during the Spanish-American War.

U. S. WHISKEY Production Grows

Washington, April 8 (AP)—America started 1935 with less than 2,150,000 gallons of unsold four-year-old whiskey, though millions of gallons were stored for ageing during 1934.

Sworn statements to the Alcohol Control Administration on 1934 production showed stocks in the hands of distillers increased 65,000,000 gallons to 99,116,437 gallons during the year.

Whiskey production amounted to 108,051,325 gallons with more than 60,000,000 of this in the distillers' custody at the end of the year for ageing.

Mascots Salute Their Outfit

"Ten-shun!" Dickie Vinson and Barbara Chaulvin, both "going-on three," salute from an improvised reviewing stand as the Guard Independents of Worcester, military organization of which they are official mascots, parades past in the course of the Boston Arena Army drill competition sponsored by the Military Order of the World War.

OLD-TIME AUTO PHOTOS VALUABLE

Buried in the attic or tucked away in an album may be a picture worth $100 to you.

The Boston Evening American is seeking pictures of the "horseless carriage era," those gay days when some proud scion of wealth would roar down Tremont street at close to 15 miles an hour while hundreds stood in awe on the curbstones, inwardly fearful that these "horseless carriages will do the country no good."

Humorous as these old pictures may seen, they graphically display the history of the automobile and are valuable. So much so that the Boston Evening American has put up $200 in prizes for them—$100 first prize; $50 second prize; $25 third prize; $15 fourth prize and $10 fifth prize.

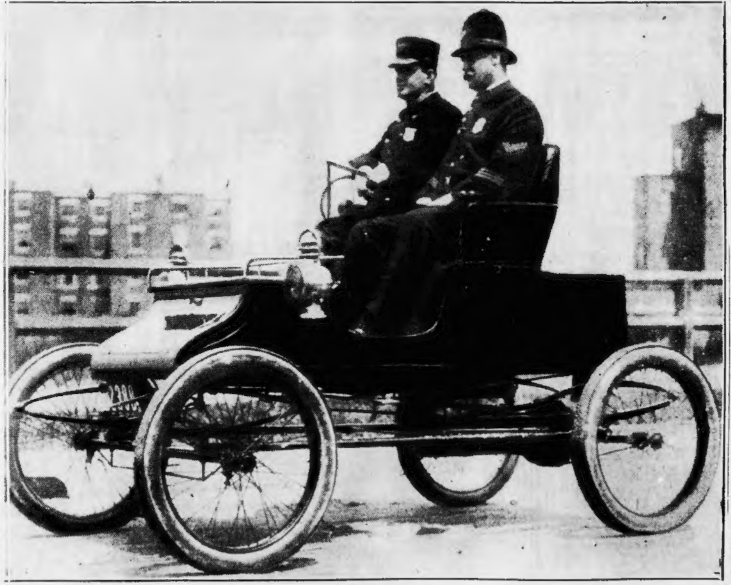
Deadline will be midnight Thursday in this picture contest. The committee will then go into a huddle and the winners will get their awards on Friday night at 9:30 p. m. at the General Motors spring show currently exhibiting at Mechanics building and continuing through Saturday April 13.

The committee to select the best photographs is composed of Frank M. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles in this state; C. S. Henshaw, manager of the Noyes Buick Sales Company; and George W. Grimm, promotion manager of the Boston Evening American.

The public is invited to attend the General Motors show for the small admission fee of ten cents. The ten cents will be turned over to the Emergency Relief Campaign.

Send your photographs to the Old Time Auto Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square.

'Calling All Cars!' With Police in the Good Old Days



Police radio cruiser? Well hardly, but this gas buggy was considered the height of class and beauty when these two officers went out for a whirl through the streets a generation ago. Plenty of fresh air in the front seat and you arrived at your destination if you were lucky. This picture, submitted by Helen A. Silva of Gledhill avenue, Everett, is one of the many in the $200 old-time auto photograph contest of the Boston Evening American.

BOARD OF THREE TO SPEND BIG RELIEF FUND

Washington, April 8—President Roosevelt is expected to create a new central authority to aid him in spending the 4880-million-dollar-work relief fund soon after he returns here tomorrow from his Suthern fishing trip

Although he is determined to control the purse strings, his close associates said today a key board of three or four members will be chosen to aid him.

Of the fund, $880,000,000 will be used for relief and CCC maintenance until July 1, the end of the current fiscal year.

The President, informed sources said, has already a list of projects on which men can be put to work in from 10 to 30 days.

The probable set-up for the unprecedented peace-time spending plan calls for a central board of three members.

These members would head three divisions, one on projects, another on relief, and the other on compliance or inspection.

Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator, is slated to head the relief division; Rear-Admiral Christian J. Peoples or Secretary of the Interior Ickes, the projects division, and either Ickes or Peoples might be chosen for the compliance or inspection division.

Duty of the projects division would be to investigate the best type of projects on which to put men to work. Hopkins, who already handles relief, is expected to say where work-relief is most needed.

The compliance or inspection division, it was explained, would see that states, cities and even federal authorities comply with Mr. Roosevelt's instructions by employing persons now on the relief rolls.

In addition, Mr. Roosevelt is expected to create an advisory board, to serve without pay and to be made up of prominent business men. General Robert Woods, head of Sears, Roebuck & Co., may head this advisory board.

The administration's hope, according to these informed sources, is to put at least 1,000,000 persons now on relief directly on new jobs. The remaining 2,500,000, it was said,, would be employed in factories and material plants.

DEATH PACT GIRL Goes With Mother

The Harry Van Alen suicide case has been officially closed in Boston.

Bea Leonora Bryan, the girl who lost her nerve and refused to carry out her part of the suicide agreement, was discharged from Psycopathic Hospital quietly Saturday, pronounced mentally sound.

She was turned over to her mother, Mrs. Winifred Stanton of Binghampton, N. Y. It is believed they are now in upper New York State.

Flee Hotel Fire

New Haven, April 8 (AP)—An early morning fire caused, City Fire Marshal Paul P. Heinz said, by a carelessly thrown cigarette, forced 153 guests at the Hotel Garde to leave their rooms temporarily today. Heinz placed the damage at not more than $2000.

MILLEN JURORS' 'FEAR' BARED IN APPEAL

Not a single juror dared go home on the night the verdict against Millen brothers and Abe Faber was returned in Dedham, the full bench of Supreme Court was told today.

George Stanley Harvey, counsel for Murton and Irving Millen, made the declaration in arguments for a new trial for his clients.

Immediately upon announcement of the verdict, declared Harvey, "the mob outside the courthouse was so vociferous that even Clerk Withington was startled."

The full bench took the petition for a new trial under advisement after Harvey and District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing had completed arguments begun Friday.

Dewing denied Harvey's claim that the Millens had "diseased minds" at the time of the Needham crimes.

The district attorney characterized the Millens as "scheming, daring, brazen killers who are not insane."

"The crime was carefully planned," said Dewing, "in a manner indicating full mental capacity. Society is on trial here."

NEW MOVE FOR MAINE PENSION

By Associated Press

Augusta, Me., April 8—Executive Councilor Clyde H. Smith said today he would take immediate steps to prepare a direct initiative bill to provide financial assistance for the aged of Maine.

Such a measure would require 12,000 signatures and if not enacted by the legislature would automatically go to the people.

His move followed by one day rejection by the legislature, now adjourned, of a bill providing for payment of $15 a month to persons 70 years or over who were in distress.

Maine has in its statute books a law, enacted by the previous legislature two years ago, granting old age pensions, but making no provision for payment.

6 BANDITS FAIL IN PLANT RAID

The mysterious raid by six armed bandits on a Brighton silk plant was believed solved today when a kit of safe breakers' tools was found by police in a field 500 yards from the factory.

The bandits bound the night watchman and handcuffed the engineer after beating him over the head with a revolver. They left, however, without disturbing anything in the plant.

The bag of tools was found off Antwerp street near the New England Spun Silk Corporation, where the raid took place. The bag included chisels, steel punches, concussion caps and a can of powder.

Police believe the gang was frightened away before they had a chance to tamper with the safe.

Victims of the raid were Michael Finn, the watchman, of Addison street, Brighton, and Patrick J. Dunn, the engineer, of Cygnet street, also Brighton

Not for an hour after it happened did anyone learn of the raid.

4 'LEFTY REDS' GET DELAY

Four alleged Reds charged with profanity were arraigned in Roxbury today and pleaded not guilty. The cases were continued until April 17.

The four men were actors in a Communistic play entitled "Waiting for Lefty," given in the Dudley Street Opera House Saturday night. The play went in the red and the alleged Reds were bundled off to jail, charged with profanity in public assembly.

Police laughed off the rumor that Communists would attempt to deliver their comrades from the clutches of the law, and, though there was no police detail, all was quiet.

The men to be tried are Philip Goldberg, Dorchester; John Lenthier, Long Wharf, Boston; Robert F. Allen, Rockport, and Richard Siegel, Marlborough street, Back Bay.

DARRISH HELD No Bail in Killing

Charged with the murder of Alvin E. Gilbert, Julius Darrish of Everett street, Chelsea, pleaded not guilty and was held without bail in Malden Court today. Date for the hearing on the murder charge was set for April 16.

Gilbert, of Paris street, Everett, was stabbed with an ice pick in Vail street, near Darrish's home. Police allege the murder occurred after a dispute over junk.

Darrish is a brother of gangster Jack Darrish, who was shot and killed in Revere last November.

CRIBS TO SWAP TWO ARE OFFERED

TWINS GIVEN CARRIAGE

The Swap Editor of the Boston Evening American, who sees the bitter poverty of life, has two cribs to swap.

One of them will be swapped for a rocking chair or good pictures; the other for cloth to be used for making underwear.

One woman, with four small children, asks for clothes for them. She has nothing to swap.

Most pitiful of all, however, was the well-dressed man with a twin carriage to give.

"About that woman who asked for a carriage for twins," he began hesitantly.

"We, that is, my wife and I would like to help her."

The words came in a rush then.

"You see, we had twins, but they died when they were a few months old. And we had bought a good many things for them, including a carriage."

Perhaps the woman, in all her poverty, was happier than the well-dressed man who turned over the carriage to her.

Little Kathleen tells her own story:

"I am a little girl 10 years old. I have been in bed six months with rheumatic fever and heart trouble. I must stay in bed six months more. I would like to have a radio. My father is dead and we can't afford to buy one."

A young mother writes:

"I have been sick all winter. Haven't gone out since Thanksgiving. There are five of us. We all sleep in the same bed. I have a new baby, five weeks old, and I haven't either a crib or a carriage to put him in."

Bullitt Sees Laval

Paris, April 8 (AP)—William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador to Russia, paid a courtesy visit today to Foreign Minister Pierre Laval. It was understood the general European situation was discussed. Bullitt was in Paris en route to Moscow.

Waldorf
AT THE SIGN OF THE W RED APPLE

They once were called a
'Stack of Wheats'

REMEMBER IN THE OLD DAYS, in those dubious restaurants almost of the old frontier type, when an order of griddle cakes was always termed "a stack of wheats?"

● Those were the times when griddle cakes were made before your eyes by a cook with handle-bar mustaches, who deftly and with no little skill flipped the cakes through the air, caught them on the plate and with a hoarse "all hot" banged them down on the counter before you. The syrup was in a glass pitcher with a metal top . . . sticky from much handling, always a thing of doubt.

● Such reminiscences may make you smile . . but I'll warrant they bring back poignant memories. There were always "wheats", whatever the ingredients from which they were made.

● How the once lowly-griddle cake has come up in the world! Now you receive them piping hot, fluffy light, daintily served with individual syrup containers. And the taste . . . how that has improved, also.

● Waldorf's griddle cake recipe is of southern extraction . . . a special flour, and a very special mix. You see a difference the minute you eat them . . . a delicate flavor and consistency, that together with the syrup and the fresh creamery butter makes them a delicious meal . . . whatever time of day!

Leaders Sponsor Musical Guild's Concert

By Betty Alden

ALMOST EVERY PERSON whose name is synonymous with good music and social position is being invited to serve as a patron or patroness for the concert which the Musical Guild of Boston is sponsoring on April 25 at Steinert Hall . . .

Many socialites who take a great pride as well as pleasure in lending a helping hand to deserving young artists will be especially interested in this concert as it marks the debut of Eleanor Washburn, a youthful musician . . . Mildred Erickson and George White will also be on the program . . .

We have had the last Morning Musicale of the season, the Mornings of Diversion are all over until next fall and our too brief season of grand opera is just a happy memory, so it is not surprising to hear that the English Speaking Union, another social organization which offers many pleasant hours of diversion to its members throughout the winter season, will have its last meeting soon . . .

Lecture on Friday

This week on Friday following a lecture by Sir Granville Bancock, an English composer and conductor, tea will be served in the high ceilinged dining room of the Union's old Commonwealth avenue mansion . . . Mrs. Charles E. Bacon and Miss Ellen Graves will be the hostesses for this occasion and the pourers will include Mrs. Samuel Cabot, Mrs. Richard C. Floyd, Mrs. Robert E. Peabody and Mrs. F. William Marlow, Jr. . . .

The entertainment at the annual meeting of the English Speaking Union, which is to be the final event of the season, will be an illustrated lecture by Hallam Movius, Jr., son of Mrs. A. L. West Movius . . .

Mr. Movius is an assistant professor at Harvard and has a very fascinating lecture to deliver on Recent Discoveries made by the Harvard Archaeological Expedition in Ireland . . . He went to Ireland with the expedition in 1932 but was not as fortunate as his good friend, Amory Goddard, who brought back a bride from the Emerald Isle . . .

This meeting and lecture will be held at the Junior League on April 25 and will be followed by tea . . .

Dancing Groups End Season

ANOTHER OMEN OF SPRING is the last dancing parties of all the assemblies . . . Nearly every one of these groups is ending its season this week with a fancy dress party, an occasion of much merriment . . . It is not only the youngsters who learn how to dance at assemblies . . . their parents belong to dancing classes, too, not to be outdone entirely by their younger generation . . .

On Friday evening those post-debutantes and young marrieds who can present THE correct social credentials, will dress up in the most airy-fairy, romantic, crazy or exotic costume they can find to wear to the last Junior Supper Dance at the Statler . . . After attending one of the many dinners being given that evening by fashionable Boston hostesses, these young people will dance into the wee small hours in the company of the cream of Boston society . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Royden Loring have been enjoying the early spring festivities at Hot Springs . . .

On Friday afternoon, Mrs. Bartlett Harwood will be hostess at tea to the ladies of the parish of Emmanuel Church . . . at her Commonwealth avenue home . . .

Warner-Locher Ceremony

A WEDDING WHICH TOOK PLACE in New York on Saturday united a daughter of one of New England's old families with Francis M. Warner of New York . . . The bride, who was Miss Anne Locher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Locher of Flushing, chose an afternoon service in the Church of the Ascension in the presence of the immediate families and a few friends, for her wedding ceremony . . .

The bride is a direct descendant of Thomas Joy who came from England to Boston in 1636 and who built the first State House in Boston and also the historic Ship Meeting House at Hingham, where he settled and made his home . . . She is also related to the Hawley and Sweringen families, early settlers of New England . . .

(Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer)

NATALIE NORTH CATHERINE CHAPPELL KATHERINE BAKER KATHLEEN KEVILLE

THE SOCIAL SEASON is near a close, but there are still a few benefits on the calendar. One of highlights of the spring season is the festival which debutantes and post-debs will conduct to benefit several charities. This quartet was snapped at the Barclay Club as they discussed plans for the coming festival. In the group are Miss Natalie North of Waban, Miss Catherine Chappell of Belmont, Miss Katherine Baker of Belmont, and Miss Kathleen Keville also of Belmont. They are planning many interesting innovations for the festival program.

Benefit Planned

"Living Pictures" Program

MRS. WILLARD F. RICHARDS of Newton leads the ladies committee of the Mount Pleasant Home for Aged Men and Women which is sponsoring an exhibition of "Living Pictures" on April 25 at the Hotel Somerset.

The proceeds from this benefit will be used to increase the useful service of the Home.

Descriptive music combined with a lecture by Dr. Frank Hardy Damon, concerning these old masters will add to the value of the program.

The members of the augmented ladies committee, which is sponsoring this affair are Mrs. Arthur W. Hurlburt, treasurer, Mrs. Walter Powers, secretary, Mrs. Arthur E. Barter, Mrs. Edith Washburn Clarke, Mrs. Alice I. Cobb, Mrs. Harry Cole, Mrs. Frank Hardy Damon, Miss Marion Decrow.

Breakfast at Kiley Home

ARRANGEMENTS FOR the May Breakfast which Mrs. John C. Kiley is giving at her Commonwealth avenue home next month to benefit the Guild of St. Elizabeth will be completed at a meeting to be held tomorrow noon at the St. Elizabeth Day Nursery in Roxbury.

Mrs. Kiley has named Tuesday, May 7, as the tentative date for this spring activity when her guests will gather at 10:30 for breakfast and remain until mid-afternoon for pivot bridge.

The annual May tea and pivot bridge of the Jeanne D'arc Circle will take place on Saturday afternoon, May 4, at 3 o'clock at Filene's restaurant.

Mrs. Alexander J. McInnis of 25 Brandon road, Milton, is supervising the plans this year, and will be assisted by Mrs. Thomas Cleary and members of the club. Reservations may be had through Mrs. McInnis.

The annual bridge and tea of the Tabernacle Society of the Convent of the Sacred Heart will take place on Saturday afternoon, April 27, at the Convent in Newton. Mrs. Frederick J. Driscoll, president of the society, is in charge of arrangements.

League Show

MRS. JOSEPH A. COLETTI, and Mrs. John E. Xerxa, are the delegates from the Boston Junior League attending the joint members exhibition of the 14 Junior Leagues which opened in New Haven, Conn., today.

In addition to the prize winners, whose names have been previously announced, the following members have sent work to be shown in the crafts division in New Haven: Miss Dorothy Hastings, Miss Josephine Emery and Miss Mabel Bell.

Curley Home Opened For Benefit Sale

THE HOME OF MISS MARY CURLEY, first lady of the State, will be opened on Friday afternoon for a sale to benefit the disabled veterans.

Handicraft will be displayed with Mrs. Edward Goode, Mrs. Eugene McSweeney, Mrs. James Duane, Mrs. Joseph Tomasello, Mrs. Thomas F. Sullivan and Mrs. Dorothy Whipple Fry in charge of arrangements.

Assisting at the sale will be Mary J. Ryan, Margaret Donovan, Kathryn Glynn, Mayline and Catherine Donnelly, Agnes Goode, Mrs. Stanton White, Mrs. Edward MacCourt, Mrs. Frank Long, Mrs. Richard Nolan, Mrs. Edward Sliney and Dorothy Mullen.

Fictional detectives had seemingly exhausted every possible technique of deduction, but Mr. Vestal presents an entirely new method with his character George Congreve.

Congreve a connoisseur of rare wines, has developed the theory that the proper wine, sipped at the proper time, produces a second sight for the solving of crimes.

A very pleasant theory, which he puts to the test when two murders are committed at Chauteau Rouet where he is a guest.

The solution of the mystery, with Congreve tasting the rarest of wines, makes a highly entertaining story.

Those who insist that the plot of a thriller must be one of iron-clad clue may find some fault with this work, but the less critical reader will find his thirst for adventure satisfied and his thirst for rare wine whetted.

Pageant of Colors

A pageant of colors will be presented by the Camp Fire Girls at the Hotel Bradford on Saturday afternoon. The girls, in costume, will represent different countries.

ADVICE on LOVE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX and NELL BRINKLEY

Youth Has Needless Heartbreak Over Trifles

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am 25, don't smoke or drink, and, like the rest of my girl friends sit at home many nights when I would love to be out with some nice boy.

About a year ago I met a boy at a dance and danced with him several times, but came to the conclusion that he was bashful. He asked for my picture and I gave it to him.

He came to see me several times, but as he had no money and was too proud to ask his mother for any, we always stayed at home or went for a walk.

About a month ago he stopped coming altogether, and when we meet now on the street he just passes the time of day and goes on. Don't you think he might stop and talk? BLUE.

Young people, through inexperience or bashfulness, often have quarrels which they can't explain. These are due generally to a lack of worldly knowledge. John thinks Mary has bowed to him coolly and Mary thinks John might have stopped for a word instead of just passing on. With years comes skill to avoid these little embarrassments. Young people who misunderstand and have their feelings hurt—when all the time there is really nothing wrong—have my deepest sympathy.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
My girl is as pretty as a picture, but she has the darnedest way of doing her hair. It looks like a "spit-curl" over either ear, and I'm ashamed to take her out with me because two or three fellows in the shop have laughed about it.

She's peeved and wonders why I won't take her out. I don't like to hurt her feelings by telling her.

MATT.

Why not try telling her she's too pretty to spoil her looks by following such an unbecoming fashion—if it is a fashion. I'm under the impression that that freakish coiffure went out some time ago.

Rails Against Fate

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The player who held the North cards in today's hand wrote me a letter in which he accused his partner, the gods of luck, and the new Culbertson 4-3-3-3 distributional notrump principle of getting them set at a contract of three notrump.

"First of all," he said, "why shouldn't my partner have bid one heart originally?

"Secondly, how could he criticize me for giving him a skip bid with my hand? Of course, it was hard luck to be set at three notrump, but we could have made a slam at hearts without a finesse."

West opened a diamond and East and West took the first six tricks and, while South proceeded to discard winners, North sat down to write his letter of protest.

Despite South's biddable heart suit, his one-notrump bid is entirely correct since his 4-3-3-3 distribution offers no advantage to suit play.

Correct, too, is North's decision to make a forcing response. The trouble was with his choice of suits. His correct bid is three hearts, over which South will bid three spades if he holds four of that suit. Actually South would have bid four hearts.

Six can be made by ruffing two diamonds and eventually discarding South's losing spade on North's Ace of clubs, losing only one diamond trick.

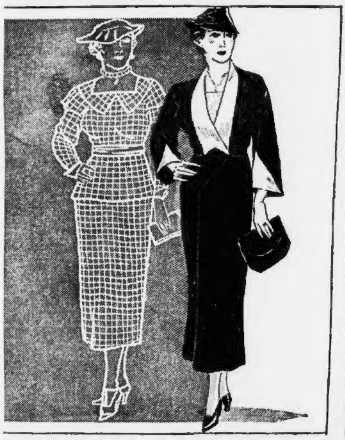
PERSONALITY AND DRESS



MAKE THE MOST OF YOUR GOOD POINTS

The Fountain of Youth? Yes, there is such a thing!

THE WHY OF IT

Mrs. Right has chosen a dress of a plain, dark color and easy fit. (A print in small all-over design would have been becoming also.) Other flattering features of her dress are: Its simple design in long up-and-down lines; its surplice closing merging into a diagonal skirt line; its soft, diagonally-bordered sleeves, and the graceful length of the skirt. The slightly high crown of her hat adds height; the narrow, upcaught brim (not so big as to detract from the impression of height) also flatters her. Her necklace is slender, becoming. She keeps rouge high on her cheeks, rubbing powder over it lightly to blend with the skin. Her shoes are fashionable but comfortable. Mrs. Right is obviously going somewhere—and she'll be welcome!

What's the matter with Mrs. Wrong? You've guessed it. Although she is exactly the same size as Mrs. Right, those checks make her look pounds heavier. So does the tight fit of the dress at waist, bosom, and upper arms. The shorter skirt, with its peplum and narrow width at the hem is also bad. The low, square-cut neck and heavy shoulder trimming add weight, too. Other wrong choices are: the flat hat; the choker chain of large beads that shorten the neckline; round ear drops instead of slender ones; bold spots of rouge low on the face; overdressy shoes with spindling heels that make the feet look uncomfortable; and stockings of a pinkish-brown cast, that makes legs look larger.

BOOKLET TELLS MORE

These right and wrong choices are vitally important, especially for the woman over thirty. So important that we have analyzed them in a 40-page booklet, BEAUTY FOR THE MATURE WOMAN. It is a book of inspiration—with many pointers to show that charm has no age. With it as a guide you'll be able to make more and more of your good points—add up a handsome total. Here are some of the topics:

Costume Color and Make-up
Young-looking Hands
Wrinkles A Clear Skin Diet
Exercise for Figures Fat in Spots
Correct Posture

CHAPTER 313

IF EVERY faculty of mine had not been focused upon the one question—what had become of my boys?—I think I should have fiercely resented Hugh Grantland's contemptuous manner, as he told me that I might stand beside Jim and himself as long as I was there anyway, but that I was to make no noise, "on my life."

For several minutes as we stood there we heard only the waking sound of the woodland, the chirping of waking birds, the scurrying of small furry creatures through the underbrush, the rustling of the autumn leaves in the freshening breeze.

And then I saw Hugh Grantland lean forward in a listening posture, while his hand made a mandatory gesture of silence to Jim and me.

At first I did not hear what he evidently heard.

Then there came to my ears a rustling louder than that made by rabbits or chipmunks—stealthy sounds which I concluded could only be made by human beings creeping through the underbrush, so thick around us as effectually to screen anyone until within a very few feet of where we were standing.

The rustling came nearer, and Hugh wheeled noiselessly and fixed his eyes upon the side of the path from which those stealthy sounds were coming.

"HANDS UP!"

My eyes followed his, and with a constriction of my throat I realized that I saw what he did, a slight movement of the leaves upon the bushes nearest us.

He tensed his muscles for a spring, but even as he did so I saw him straighten suddenly as from an unexpected blow, while there came to my ears a series of popping sounds like those made by paper bags first blown up and then exploded by timely blows.

He clapped his hands to his face, and I saw Jim do the same, while I distinctly jumped at the stinging impact of something like a small pebble that struck my cheek, and ricocheted off again.

The next instant Hugh had gripped my shoulder and forced me to my knees.

"Roll over to the side and lie down," he commanded in a whisper. "Shield your eyes, Jim," he added, "and come on."

I noticed that one arm was thrown across his own eyes, but the cautioning words were scarcely out of his mouth before there came a hoarse command from the bushes.

"Hands Up!"

"Don't move, or we'll drill you."

But this time there was something queerly familiar about the utterance, and as the ludicrous explanation of the whole episode flashed upon me I raised my head, regardless of Hugh's orders, and called softly:

Cocoa Butter for Face Hollows

Question: Can you tell me if cocoa butter would be helpful in filling in hollows and thin places in my cheeks? What can be the cause? R. R., Mattapan.

Answer: Cocoa butter would be helpful in filling in the hollows and thin places that you describe. The hollows under your eyes may be caused by lack of sleep. Try to get at least nine hours of sleep every night, and I think you will find that the hollows will disappear.

Question: Is it possible for a woman of 35 to roll a double chin away? I really do not consider that I am old enough to have a double chin, yet I have got a decided one within the past few years. I would appreciate any exercises or advice you could give.—Mrs. Louise L., Brighton.

Answer: It is really as easy as pie to roll a double chin into one if you keep at it long enough. You have not yet reached the age where chins should be abundant, so get busy right away. First of all, spread on a heavy massage cream, one that offers resistance. There are plenty on the market. Pick the flesh up in tiny folds, roll firmly between finger and thumb. This treatment dissolves the fat cells. Do it at night. Go to bed wearing a chin pad of gauze dipped in ice cold witch hazel and held up with a chin strap. Every morning sponge with cold water.

IT'S GRAND to see a little humor creep into the manufacturing of cosmetics! How much more fun to take a lipstick from your bag which will make the boy friend smile instead of scowl!

For no man under the sun could help smiling when he sees the latest lipstick to make its debut.

It's a very merry lipstick indeed, and has a face like Humpty-Dumpty's, suggested by white marks on its green, black, or red case.

If it doesn't seem quite in the old English tradition (it comes straight from Bond street), it's a lot of fun and you'll go quite mad over it.

Quite naturally, they have gone over big in Hollywood. The stars, who are always the first to take up the newest fad, have practically bought up the supply. For this new stick not only comes in gay spring colors, but the four shades of lip rouge which are offered for your choice are extremely flattering.

Doris Kenyon, who is very, very particular about her lip rouge and how it is applied, was fascinated, along with the other stars, by this saucy stick.

It is priced lower than most good lipsticks so even you can afford to go on a lipstick splurge!

After you make your choice, do a little experimenting with it. Draw thick lips, thin lips; darken the lower more than your upper lip; rouge only the upper and see which is most becoming to you. If you have difficulty in getting your rouge on smoothly, apply a bit of vanishing cream before your lipstick and at night use camphor ice on your lips.

To learn the name of this Humpty-Dumpty lipstick call Miss Shelby, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, Boston, enclosing a stamped-self-addressed envelope.

Cross-Over Gilet

By Annice Brink

NEAT AND SMART and very pretty—it has all, and more, than one should require of a budget around-sixteen frock. A new crepe of chamois-like texture is used in the fluting-edged cross-over gilet, on a frock of Panama sheer—so light it will be a mere nothingness on hot days. Under the chin is more fluting and two flowers. The patent leather belt has a trick disk buckle. It reverses its color scheme cleverly—you may have a light gilet on a dark frock, or vice versa. Dusky pink on black or navy frock, navy gilet on powder blue, or brown on rose . . . you'll have a hard time deciding. To be seen in a Boston shop; for details, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

HIGH SCHOOL TRAGEDY

By Maxine Canty

Julie Is Worried by Pen

CHAPTER XIX

"I SHOULD think," said Mother, "with one suspect escaping toward Canada and another picked up just this side of Mexico, that a good detective would come to some sound conclusions in the next few days."

"Yes," said Dad, "you would think so. But probably by that time something else will turn up."

The girls were quiet about Bruce when I went to school Monday. I suppose they thought that we would consider his running away a sort of family disgrace, since Dad had assumed more or less responsibility for him.

It made things awkward as I didn't want to bring up the subject, still feeling too badly over it, and yet I didn't enjoy their silence.

So it was a personal relief when Melvin came back to school Tuesday. That gave us plenty to talk about over our malted milks! He looked rather pale and very sullen.

"So the school's bad boy is back," began Helen.

"Yes. And Mother thinks it is just terrible that we have to associate with him," Patsy contributed.

"The great American democracy, as Allen would say," I added. Allen has a lot of unorthodox ideas and often gets into arguments with the social science department.

"Of course, no one has proved he is a murderer; the police let him go, which indicates they don't think he is guilty," Helen argued.

"Murderer or not, he is a gangster."

"Not quite. But of course, he carried a gun."

"And he has had bad companions, Dad said."

"Well, we've always known he was a bad egg," admitted Helen.

I took a hand in the discussion then; I don't know why, for I usually try not to say anything against anyone, even when I have proof. I guess I just wanted to forget about Bruce.

Two Girls Argue

"As a matter of fact," I stated with some authority, "the case against Melvin is as good, if not better than that against anyone else. He had a motive because Connie refused to sign his parole. He was known to have called on her at 8:30 that night, to have quarrelled with her and left angry indeed. He had a gun."

"Very true." Helen assumed her superior air, "but the gun was not that one that fired the fatal shot, so they say. And even if it were, it would have to have a silencer on it: if he threw that part away, why didn't he throw the whole gun out?"

"Of course, Melvin couldn't have come back!" was my sarcastic comment.

"There hasn't been much about Perky lately," Helen said ignoring me.

"You know," Patsy lowered her voice to a whisper, "between you and me, he's the one I'd picked."

"It looks to me," I commented, "as if the police agree with you, at least partially. They are undecided between Perky and Bruce Lloyd."

At last I had broken the ice. Both girls talked like mad after that. Bruce was the one they were all really interested in. Although, of course, they didn't know him as well as I did, and they didn't have that personal contact I had had, still they had sort of adopted him as an ideal, too. We figuratively wept on each other's shoulders over his disappointing development. We got real chummy again and forgot our differences.

Of course, they had picked up a lot of rumors and a lot of ideas about him and about this Bernice Carter. No one seemed to know who she was, but everyone had some opinion of her, none of them good.

Helen looked around the room and whispered to Patsy and me, "You know I overheard Dad and Mama talking last night, and they said that they didn't think this Carter woman was all she ought to be. Mama said their running away together like that proved it. Dad said something in French, one word of which I think was 'cherchez,' you know, meaning 'look for.' I couldn't get the rest."

"I know that one," Patsy whispered back. "It's 'cherchez la femme.' It's the same as saying, 'look for the woman in the case'."

"I suppose Dad meant, then," went on Helen, "that he thinks Bruce committed the murder and that this Bernice was the reason."

"Something like that," agreed Patsy.

"There's more than that to it," I said sadly. "All these older people don't want to tell us what they think; so that means it's bad. They think we're awfully dumb, I guess. Anyway, the whole mess is—is—sordid!" and I'll have to admit I was crying.

Helen patted my hand. She continued the conversation on a different track. "You know," she said, "they have completely disappeared into thin air. They were awfully clever about it. I heard that the police found the driver who picked up Bruce and Bernice up at the hotel Saturday night. He drove as far as Willits.

"There the bus stops for five minutes while there is a change of drivers. He saw them go across the street to a candy store. He himself went into the station, which is a corner of a drug store, to talk to the new driver. And that's the last that has been seen of them."

"Didn't they go on?"

"No. The new driver never saw them at all."

"What about their baggage?"

"There were only two small bags. All the passengers got off for candy, cigarettes, etc., and no one saw them take the bags, but they were gone."

"And no one in town saw them afterward?"

In Allen's Coat!

"No. The earth must have opened and swallowed them."

Whether luck was with them or Bruce showed a great skill in eluding detection, I have never decided. But they certainly got away clean.

The talk with the girls stayed on my mind. It made me feel even worse than I had before. When I got home that afternoon, I went right up to my room and I cried.

A year later as I look back, it seems silly. But it was the first time anyone I liked and admired like that had let me down. After half an hour, I began to feel hungry. I didn't want to go downstairs and have Mother question me about my red eyes; so I went into Allen's room to look for a candy bar. He usually has one around somewhere.

As I couldn't find any, I was about to leave when it occurred to me to look in the pocket of the coat he had worn the day before. I even looked in the inside pocket as boys are funny about the way they use their pockets.

All my fingers touched was a fountain pen. I pulled it out, intending to lay it on the table for him, but I dropped it instead. I would have been just as happy had I seen a snake lying on the floor.

There it twinkled up at me—the "CBS" of Connie Sinclair in glowing gold on the green barrel of the pen!

Yet all day, as the night before, I could think of nothing but Connie's pen lying in Allen's coat pocket.

As I thought back over the time which had elapsed since the murder, I could remember without much trouble that Allen had been extraordinarily nervous and irritable.

I could remember his leaving the room many times when we were discussing the mystery.

I could remember, too, how eagerly he listened to anything new Dad brought home or that appeared in the papers. It was only when the talk and speculation began that he left. He must have lived in an agony of fear of being found out.

I wondered that, with his slight strength, he had stood it as long as he had. His outburst about Bruce looked to me like the beginning of the end. He was going to break, and soon, I was sure.

It was not that I believed my brother guilty of the murder. But that he must be concerned somehow was evident. It was the uncertainty that drove me distracted.

That and the problem of what I was to do about it. I knew my duty was to report it immediately, or at least to tell Dad. But I didn't have the nerve. I just couldn't involve Allen in all the questioning and probing that would go on.

I knew without thinking that the Inspector would consider him a possible suspect. Had he not said that if we found the pen we might also find the murderer? I began to appreciate why innocent persons might not volunteer information in their possession.

I worked that afternoon about the office as usual. When a call came for me at 4:30 I was scared. I felt like a suspicious character myself!

It was the Inspector.

"Hello," he said, "Miss Julie?"

"Yes," I managed, weakly.

CHEESE PILAF

By MARTHA LEE
From Martha Lee's Monday Morning Broacast Over Station WAAB

"Welcome, sweet springtime
We greet thee with greens,
Lettuce and radishes
Carrots and string beans!"

Although asparagus is expensive at this time, the market is full of other attractions, such as dandelion greens, fresh young beets, carrots, string beans, spring cabbage, turnips, onions and mushrooms.

String beans we have the whole year around, but in the spring they are available at inexpensive prices. Cut in the French style, that is, in the long thin strips (and, by the way, there is a gadget on the market which will do this quickly and efficiently for you), and used as the center of a rice or carrot mold, you have a most attractive luncheon dish or vegetable. String beans to be fresh should snap easily and should not be too large or overgrown.

CHEESE PILAF WITH STRING BEANS

1 cup rice
1½ cups strained tomato
2 cups brown or chicken stock
Salt and pepper
3 tablespoons butter
2-3 cup grated cheese

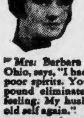
Make a pilaf by cooking in a double boiler, the rice with the strained tomato and the brown or chicken stock until tender. Season with salt, pepper and butter and the grated cheese. Pack solidly into a buttered ring mold. Set over steam to become thoroughly heated. Turn out on platter and fill center with string beans well buttered and seasoned. Or for the rice substitute carrots which have been cooked until tender, strained, riced and seasoned.

KEEP YOUR HUSBAND'S LOVE

THE best of men get tired of irritable, complaining wives. If you are weak, nervous and rundown you cannot do your share to make a happy home: Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Barbara Spears of Akron, Ohio, says, "I had no pep, and was in poor spirits. Your Vegetable Compound eliminated that awful tired feeling. My husband says I am my old self again."

Try Lydia E. Pinkham's VEGETABLE COMPOUND



Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman on Manners

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am about to "receive" for the first time since my marriage. Because my apartment is quite small, my reception must, necessarily, be rather semi-formal. I am inviting about fifty guests and asking them for different hours, some at three p. m., some at four (or should I say "between three and four, or four and five.")

2—When receiving I am not just sure what would be best. My husband's mother has not been well, and I am afraid would not be able to stand all the time in assisting me. My mother is dead, and in this case I do not know whether it is best for my husband's mother to receive with me, or perhaps it would be better for one of my sisters to receive with me also?

1—The customary way is to mention "between" hours—that is, "from four to seven," "from three to six," some thing like that. Since guests come and go at receptions, I hope that it will be convenient for you to have this mention of inclusive hours on your invitations.

2—I suggest that in any case you invite your husband's mother to receive with you, since this is a courtesy and friendliness that she will very much appreciate and value. Explain to her that you will perfectly understand if at any time she finds that she is too tired to receive with you any longer, or, better, that you will have her receive your guests sitting rather than standing.

Spring Shopping With Priscilla Price

Dearest Anne:

Aren't the new clothes simply thrilling? With Easter coming in just two weeks—there's not a second to lose in shopping for your Spring wardrobe—having your new spring permanent — and losing those extra pounds—

This Spring Let's Be Different!

If You Want Your Clothes Cleaned in a Hurry—
3-Hour Cleansing Service
Also Cleansing Specials 17c

There is only one way to protect delicate silks and woolens—proper cleansing. LET EXPERTS CLEANSE YOUR CLOTHES and they will last much longer — look so much better, and best of all, you feel so much better. The Original 3-hour service handle all garments expertly, returning them like new. There's no excuse now for not having all your sweaters, skirts, blouses and hats perpetually clean, at a nominal cost of 17c a piece. A value that you shouldn't miss! Original Cleansers & Dyers, 8 Winter St., 4th floor, Dev. 7398—39 Temple Place; 2 Winter Place, Opposite Conrad's.

Bewitchments—Such as These imported Glace Gloves, I discovered in Hovey's for $2.15, will have you planning costumes just for backgrounds for them! These grand novelty cuff gloves come in ten different styles, each one a copy of French Couturiere Creations, with all the fuss about details usually found only in originals. They're values that even Hovey's will find it hard to duplicate; so shop early, in person or by phone or mail. In sizes 5½ to 8, in black with white, white, brown, navy and nubiege. You'll find them in Hovey's Accessories Shop on the Street Floor.

Only the Skill

of an expert, only results that are thoroughly satisfying and permanent could build a reputation such as Miss Roche, well known Electric Needle Specialist, enjoys. Miss Roche uses the most modern multiple Needle Equipment, that clears even the larger surfaces quickly and permanently, yet her prices are no higher than you pay for single needle treatments. Miss Roche has many Physicians' references. No consultation Fee. Miss Roche, Salon 309, 26 West Street. Han. 9418.

To Women Who Think "Darn" Is a Horrid Word—

I bring glad tidings of a sock that wears 81% better than ordinary socks by test. How's that for saving on darning? Ten to one "Hubby" will be just as elated about these socks that "won't wear out at toes or heels" for, after all, he's the one that has to wear them after they've been darned. And you must admit that most of us aren't the expert needlewomen we should be—in fact, I think expert darning is a lost art. That suits us though because we never did like it anyhow—and now that we can buy "Linenized-Toe" socks at Filene's we can say goodbye to all that! Because these Linenized-Toe socks have linen threads woven across the toe making an extra strip—extra reinforcement for extra protection where wear is hardest. When Filene's introduced them yast year they thought them the one great improvement in men's socks. Men and women thought so, too—for Filene's customers bought 38,410 pairs in the year just past. Now—they introduce two more styles in these Linenized-Toe socks! They come in black, grey, brown, navy and white. Sizes 9½ to 12. Linenized-Toe socks of Lisle, 35c, 3 for $1—of silk, 39c (to sizes 13, 14)—of heavy silk, 55c, two for $1. Write or phone Hubbard 4250 till 9 P. M., except Holidays. Filene's Men's Store is on the Street Floor.

Lead the Easter Parade!

If you intend to make this your "best dressed" Easter I'll tell you how to do it without any damage to your budget. If it's inconvenient for you to pay cash you can still have that perfectly knockout Easter outfit you've been thinking about—just open a charge account through the famous Scott Unique Payment Club (registered), the only one in New England—and enjoy wearing your new Spring apparel while making small weekly or monthly payments. Isn't that grand? And, best of all, there are no extra or carrying charges for this service! Scott Furriers have the kind of clothes you've dreamed about! Have you noticed their exciting series of advertisements portraying the glamorous Scott First Fashions of famous couturieres? This week it's about Scott First Fashions after Molyneux—simply stunning dresses after Molyneux are priced at $12.75. Other First Fashion dresses, $5.95 to $22.75 and up. Swanky fitted or swagger suits after Molyneux are only $19.75. Other First Fashion suits are priced at $16.75 to $65 and up. Flattering furred coats after Molyneux are $29.75—other Furred coats, $19.75 to $95 and up. Another grand series Scott's are running is their advertisements for the "Forgotten Woman" who wears sizes 38 to 52. Their suits, dresses and coats, designed with interest and enthusiasm to give slenderizing lines, will delight any woman who wears sizes 38 to 52. See them tomorrow! Do you know that Scott Furriers Personal Shopping Service counsellors will help you select your Easter wardrobe? Scott Furriers Winter Street Store is open evenings until 9 o'clock.

Yvonne is a Step Ahead with the Most Remarkable ALL STEAM Permanent Wave

you have ever known! Oh, yes—you've heard of steam processes before—but this is really different! Even, Yvonne, that clever French hair stylist, whose experience in giving permanents dates back to the $1 a curl era, says: "It's the last word in permanents—I can guarantee to do even the most difficult heads with it." It's different and better because—only "live" steam comes in contact with the hair. NO ELECTRICITY—NO PADS! Because—the steam is generated from pure water, unmixed with any chemicals. Because—the special scalp protector and steaming box isolates the heat. Because—it gives new sheen and glow—leaves deep, lasting waves that push in miraculously! And ringlet ends without any "frizz!" And here's exciting news—Yvonne will continue to give this marvelous All Steam Super Curline Permanent for $5 one week more! This price includes a Re-Conditioning Oil Shampoo! Yvonne's Beauty Studio is at 127 Tremont St., 3rd floor, Opposite Park St. Tel. Dev. 7902.

Seeing Is Believing—

And all you "doubting Thomases" should see my room mate! I told her she should have a "before and after" picture—there's such a remarkable difference in her figure and posture after her visits to the Posse-Nissen Re-Conditioning Salon. She's lost thirteen pounds and tells me she will have to buy new girdles or take tucks in her old ones. If the weight you have been gaining lately has all gone to the wrong spots try their method of specialized exercises and skillful massage. Every bulky spot is treated separately! The electric cabinet bath melts away the pounds and the invigorating massage completes the treatment, stimulating the body to a vibrant tone. $3 single treatment, $12.50 series of 5—$50 series of 25. The Posse-Nissen Re-Conditioning Salon, Inc., is at 655 Boylston St., at Copley Square. Tel. Kenmore 6611.

Dunn's Sandor Cloth Shoes, $2

will make you believe in miracles again! I, for one, never expected to find shoes of Sandor Cloth, that grand fabric, so new, so smart, this Spring, for $2—or even twice that much! And such shoes! I'm simply mad about their Sandor Cloth sandals in blue—they're so cool and make my feet look so small and trim! And—here's some great news—all Dunn's shoes, including their De Luxe styles and famous "Lucky Lady" shoes are now priced at only $2! Mail Orders 15c extra. DUNN'S, 85 Summer Street, Boston.

Ooh! Violets in the Rain!

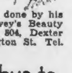
Ever smell violets in the rain? There's no perfume more intoxicating—more subtly feminine! That's why you'll go into rhapsodies over Roger and Gallet's Violette de Parme Toilet Water and Sachet—just out in a grand special combination package at a very special price! Violette de Parme is more than just a delicious toilet water—it's a tonic for tired nerves—sprinkled in the bath, used as a rubdown or splashed on any time to freshen up! This simply swell toilet water and sachet, a $1.75 value, is only $1 during April! Toiletries Shop, Street Floor, Jordan Marsh Company.

Mollie Rappport
Experience Counts!

If you're worrying about those unsightly hairs on your face, arms and legs—stop worrying—and do something about it. The electric needle in the hands of an expert is the only permanent way to remove this growth. But be sure to go to an expert like Mollie Rapport, who has 17 years' experience—the endorsement of physicians and the praise of her former patients as proof of her exceptional skill. She is also a teacher of Electrolysis. Miss Mollie Rapport is at 125 Tremont St., Room 310. Tel. Hancock 7286.

For a Lovely, Distinctive Permanent

try Harry Harvey, who is noted for his charming, individual coiffures. His natural looking, deep, lasting Permanent is $5.50 for a 9 o'clock appointment — or $7 other times. Let Harvey create an individual bob for you—only $1 for a cut and set. He cuts your hair—and supervises all work done by his expert staff. Harvey's Beauty Shop is in Room 804, Dexter Bldg., 453 Washington St. Tel. Devonshire 8032.



Say Goodbye to Superfluous Hair

Mme. Gardner, skilled electric needle specialist, is known from coast to coast for her ability to clear any face, no matter how thickly covered with hair. 28 years' experience, recommended by physicians. Listen in on WMEX, Tuesday evening at 7:59. Hancock 2080. Madame Gardner, E. D., 37 Temple Place.

There's not Another Skin Like Your Own

in the whole world—it's the one thing that's truly individual about you! But until Ann of London took it into her own clever head to analyze and make up creams by individual formulas for your particular skin this cosmetic business has been a hit or miss affair with most of us! Ann of London, spent many long hours in laboratories, working hand in hand with a gifted chemist, to learn the secret of cosmetics that would really give you and I that much talked-of but seldom seen "school girl complexion." She has her own portable laboratory with her, in White's, where she'll analyze your skin, prescribe for it, and make up your creams while you wait even to the final touch of putting your name on the jars! Sounds expensive, but it isn't—her prices are really most moderate! Consult Ann of London in the Walnut Room on the street floor of R. H. White's.

Know Why Lucille's Salon Is so Popular?

It's the same old story—when you do something a little better than the next one, people beat a path to your door! And so when smart girls discovered that Lucille gave truly remarkable permanents—and that her lovely Supreme Oil Permanent was specially priced at $5 they flocked to her charming Salon. This Oil method leaves your hair so much softer—so silky—gleaming with life and lustre! Lucille's Beauty Shop is at 453 Washington St., the Dexter Bldg., 11th floor. Tel. Liberty 0354.

Knitters! Save Your Eyes—

I know just how fascinating it is—I'm knitting, too! But—here's a tip—knitting is really a severe strain on the eyes so you should wear glasses prescribed by the Washington Jewelry Co.'s registered optometrists. Then you needn't fear wrinkles—or headaches caused by eye strain! Best of all you may buy your glasses and pay as low as 50c weekly, without interest charges, at the Washington Jewelry Co. Stores at 365 Washington St., near Bromfield, and 503 Washington St., near Temple Place.

Spring Brides

Do you know that the smartest 1935 Brides are cutting their wedding stationery expense just about 50 to 85 per cent by having it done in the Relief Process, which society acknowledges as correct. This Process makes it possible to produce correct wedding stationery, without the expense of engraved plates. For free samples and price list write, phone or visit the Relief Printing Corp., 87 Summer St., Boston. Tel. Liberty 9256.

HEAVEN HIGH—HELL' DEEP

By Norman Archibald

Six months after the United States declared war I was one of the lucky ones ordered abroad. At Issoudun, without any previous training, I started learning to fly the Nieuports, fastest and most dangerous of war planes. We talked, dreamed flying night and day. A test pilot was killed, but his death didn't cool my love for flying. Then suddenly Beauchamp and I were ordered to report to the First Pursuit Group. I was assigned to a beautiful new plane, a Spad. I saw a German pilot captured. Ordered out to fly low and fire into the enemy's trenches my friend, Beauchamp, was killed. I was heartbroken. Bill Russell, a daring flier, was always getting scolded for leaving the formation and, flying by myself, I saw him killed; then I crashed. For a time I could remember nothing. Later when I returned to my squadron I found my cot gone, all my belongings missing.

One of the pilots walked over. "Now listen, Archie!" he said tenderly, "don't get excited. Listen to me for a moment, I'll tell you where everything is."

"Well, go ahead," I agreed, softened by the tone of his voice and humiliated at my outburst but, as he started to explain, I noticed that he was wearing my sweatshirt, my only sweatshirt, which was stretched, soiled and had a tear, right in the front.

His lips were moving, he was talking. I tried to hear but could not, and choking with anger I roared at him. "Take off my sweatshirt! Take it off! Go on, take it off, or I'll tear it off."

He stood still.

"Take it off . . . take it off! . . . do you hear me?" and like a madman I rushed around demanding my things.

My blankets, on different cots, I tore off and threw into a pile on the floor. Some one or everyone followed me, trying to talk.

"Shut up!" I said, brushing them aside. "Shut up! Talking's no good. Give me my things! That's all . . . give me my things."

"Archie, your cot's in the other tent, I'll get it."

"Oh, no you won't," I sneered. "You don't need to help me, I'll get it myself," and rushed out, found my cot, dragged it in and set it up.

One Pilot Killed

The pilots, one by one, brought different articles of my wearing apparel and piece by piece each personal possession was returned. Glumly, I accepted them and disorder became order as, without comment, they were put in their proper places.

Paying no attention I made up my bed and poisoned from the madness which had gripped me sat down—exhausted. A hand touched my shoulder.

"Will you stay quiet now for just a moment?" The voice was behind me. "I'm sorry, Archie! . . . we all are. You see, we thought you were dead and, well, you know how it is. We were sure you would never come back so we divided up your things. Then when you just strolled in that way, well, it was a surprise and I suppose we did act like a lot of ninnies. But we're glad you're back. Archie, you know that, don't you. We just couldn't believe our eyes and that's a fact. That's why things went the way they did. You understand . . . don't you?"

"Yes . . . tell me some more."

"Well, two planes were seen to go down out of control. We heard that one pilot was killed. We waited and waited and when you didn't show up we thought it was you and so——"

"How long did you wait?"

"Why, Archie! . . . surely you know when . . . "

"Yes, yes . . . of course . . . sure I know . . . what a silly question . . . " and with an empty laugh: "Let me tell you something. If ever two planes are missing and I'm one of them, just depend on me; I'll come back."

"But where have you been? How did you get back?" He was insistent.

"Oh, it's a long story," feigning a yawn. "Tell you some other time; tomorrow; dead tired now," and I started to unbutton my blouse.

He looked at me and shook his head. "Of course you are," he said. "Have a good sleep. Good night."

"Good night."

Dreading further questions I hurriedly undressed and got into bed. Lights were out—sounds of heavy sleeping—wind flapping against the tent.

Remorse

I had acted like a lunatic, a wild lunatic. They thought I was killed; no fault of theirs; look how I raved and tore around. Of course they divided my things—always did—what of it? If dead I would want them to use everything.

An extra blanket was a luxury, and as for my flying clothes, who had a better right?

How could I have so misunderstood? Upset, I guess, and a little excited. My nice new toothbrush . . . that was damned decent . . . course they got a shock, but—"Where have you been and how did you get back?" tormented me. Imagine not asking the motorcycle driver where he picked me up. Of all the stupidity! Such a nice fellow . . . careful over the bumps and . . . thinking of the ride I came to a stone wall.

With the exception of sitting in the side-car and the scene in the tent every incident of my return was completely gone

We neared the aerodrome . . . of course . . . which direction? . . . where did we stop? . . . did I climb out? . . . where? . . . the coat . . . did I take it off . . . or did he? Good Lord! . . . maybe my mind was going . . . how did one know? Surely I thanked him . . . said goodbye . . . something . . . terrible to forget that. I was on fire! Maybe going crazy slowly, who could tell? Cold. Wet. Hot. Freezing. Better get my coat . . . put it over me . . .

"Archie!"

"Yes?"

"Everything all right—want anything?"

"No—I'm fine, thanks," and slipping deep into my bedding roll, decided to forget the whole damned business.

Alive—home—in my own cot. Better count my blessings and be grateful instead of worrying. Questions . . . could avoid them . . . they need never know . . . what did it matter, anyway? . . . soon I would be flying again over the lines.

But, hell, no . . . it did matter! No sense fooling myself. Might as well face it. Must find out somehow, how long I'd been gone. Could not just go on and on and never know. Must get the whole story! Would ask questions myself in a day or so, just in an offhand way, about who else was on the patrol—where we were going—how far over the lines—what position I way flying . . . and every damned thing about it . . .

The next morning, Sept. 8, Sunday.

A glorious sunny day and, up early, I went first to the operations tent, then to the hangar.

"We're going on a patrol at 8:30," I told my mechanic.

"Lieutenant! . . . Say! . . . Gosh, it's good to see you." They grinned and bustled around a plane.

"Put a full belt of incendiary gun," I instructed them.

Hungry and needing a shave I planned to have a snack of breakfast and clean up before we left, but was so happy preparing for a flight, talking shop and examining the ship that time passed swiftly, and, before I realized it, it was nearly half-past eight.

The planes were wheeled out, the motors were started, whirred in the sunshine and, oblivious of everything but flying, I climbed into my ship.

"Everything all right?"

"Yes, lieutenant. Good luck! and . . . be sure to come back."

"I'll be back all right," and thrilled with the day, the flight and unsolved problems ahead I took off with four others for a patrol over Watronville-St.-Mihiel.

Solo Patrol

Two planes, with motor trouble, dropped out, leaving Avery, Heinricks and myself, who climbed and headed for the Front.

The fever of flying suffused me and, in my element again, joy tingled to my very fingertips as we approached the lines at about 6000 feet altitude northwest of Watronville.

My motor, although running smoothly, was not turning up the required number of revolutions, so my ship did not climb as rapidly as usual and was gradually dropping behind and below Heinricks and Avery.

But, thinking it would function normally as soon as it warmed up—I followed along.

We continued into Germany about a mile, turned right and flew parallel to the front lines in the direction of St. Mihiel.

The air was still and, except for a speck of an observation lane at great altitude, too far away to attack, was void of enemy planes. We continued our course.

By now—decidedly lagging—I was a considerable and dangerous distance in the rear and beneath the other two, but, confident that when the motor warmed up more I could catch up . . . trailed merrily along.

Avery and Heinricks leveled out, increased their speed and flying swiftly far ahead, were rapidly disappearing. Gone. I was alone.

Crack! Crack! Crack!

Earsplitting explosions rent the air and puffs of black smoke, almost within reach, encircled my plane.

Bewildered by the intense barrage, its suddenness and the accurate aim of German anti-air craft I could not believe I was trapped in a terrific bombardment.

Crack! Crack! Crack!

Instinct told me to dive, but a split-second thought warned me that at low altitude, over the lines and harnessed with a weak motor I might be forced to land on enemy territory.

Anything but that! Anything but that! Crack! Crack! Crack! Crack! Never had I witnessed such violent anti-aircraft; never such aim; never so close.

What could I do? A light cloud bank above me. What a haven of refuge! I could climb! Crack! Crack!—hide in it and be safe from the Boche ground gunners.

Would I make it? Seconds seemed hours. Crack! Crack! Crack! Crack!

Holding up the nose of the sluggish plane I tried to climb, but either the cloud was further away than I had reckoned or my plane was climbing unbelievably slow.

"One of those shells will break righ under my seat in a minute," I thought. "That will be the end of me," but immediately assured myself with the contradiction, "Anti-aircraft has never hit me yet, they're damned close but they won't hit me now."

So climbing toward the haze, but imbued with the later thought, I felt secure from threatening destruction.

Crack! Crack! Crack!

The smoke puffs were so close—I could grab one if I wished; or two, or three, if I wanted, and let them sift through my fingers.

Black, curling, thick gobs which hung, spread, and spiraled into gray. They fascinated me! They seemed to hypnotize and hold me!

Close Shooting

Making no effort to turn or dive out of the menacing mass I watched them, still pointing the ship's nose up, and struggled to reach the clouds of safety.

C-R-A-C-K!

C-R-A-C-K!

My motor stopped and I pushed on the stick.

W-H-A-M!

Another shell burst and my plane, hurtled to the right, flopped over and started down in a side slip.

Falling

Shrapnel had struck my motor and hit my plane. Putting the stick to the right I pulled it back and in this position my Spad, answering the controls, started to spiral.

Frantic—I held my plane in this precarious tight turn, swiftly losing altitude. The anti-aircraft died away; no more shells exploded. What now? Were the gunners satisfied that they had fatally crippled me or was I falling too rapidly for them to aim their guns? Whatever reason the bombardment stopped.

I was dropping—fast.

In a last vain attempt to right the plane I cautiously and slowly moved the stick toward the center but, falling down again in a perilous side slip, quickly pulled back into another spiral, the only possible position in which the ship could be even partially controlled.

Tossing . . . tumbling . . . feverishly endeavoring to control the shattered plane . . . I lost my bearings. A crash was inevitable.

IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell this decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grouchy and no good for anything.

What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our bile juice can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless 2 pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and ¾ of our food decays in our 28 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every six minutes.

When our friends smell our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whipped tomcat, don't use a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice. But if "something better" is offered you, don't buy it, for it may be a calomel (mercury) pill, which loosens teeth, gripes and scalds the rectum in many people. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for—25¢. ©1934, C.M.Co.

What do you mean, three years from seed bed to cigarettes . . .

I mean simply this—it actually takes about three years to make a Chesterfield cigarette.

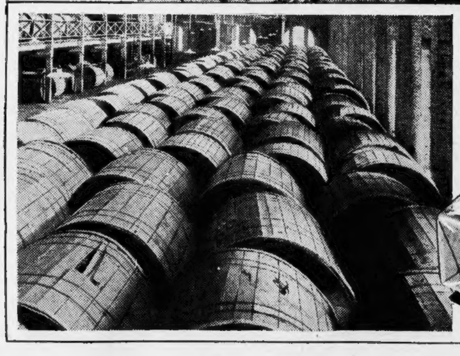
It all starts with these little plants, called tobacco seedlings. They are grown under cover and transplanted to the open fields in the early spring.

Then the warm Southern sunshine begins to get in its good work and as the plants grow and ripen the mild ripe leaves are cut and sent to the curing barns. The farmer then takes his tobacco to the auction warehouse where it is sold to the highest bidder. All of this takes about a year.

The tobaccos for Chesterfield cigarettes are then stored away for two years or more to make them milder and taste better.

It all takes time—just about three years—but there is no substitute for mild ripe tobacco in making a good cigarette. That's the reason smokers—men and women—say that Chesterfields are milder and that Chesterfields taste better.

Tobacco seedlings are transplanted to the open fields in the early spring.



For two years or more the mild ripe Chesterfield tobaccos are stored in wooden hogsheads to age.

AUSTEN LAKE on

The Moochers Are Coming To Town

Austen Lake

IN THE BELIEF THAT BOSTON is virginal territory with an unspoiled sucker trade, New York's frowsy swipes of the horse and dog tracks, the professional "race counsellors," are fixing to swoop into the city next month.

These moochers, who are bye-blows of legalized pari-mutuel betting and fungus growths on the race business, usually style themselves Colonel Somebody, the internationally famous handicapper who, at a modest fee or percentage, will furnish aids to intelligent track investment for a selected clientele.

They are characters with a thick breath and leaky eye who set up shop in some downtown loft where, with a soap box, telephone and rented typewriter they peddle dubious forecasts to a credulous people.

It is a quick starting racket in which the chiseler sends free his one best bet, asking only that the lucky recipient kick back 10 per cent of the profit from this sure-fire, dead-center, bull's-eye pick.

These eenie-meenie selections are so cunningly varied that, while the large proportion of the investors will lose, a fair share are certain to win and cut the chiseler in on the winnings.

And from day to day, the winners always advertise the moocher's keen foresight among their betting friends and thus, what he loses among his failures, he gains among his successes.

This is only one of a hundred variations of the racket. So that, if Boston horse and dog players feel shy of personal picking judgment, they will be safer in studying the forecasts of the newspaper clockers, which, if often faulty, at least are honest estimates openly arrived at.

Baer's Cupboard Bare

HAVING SQUANDERED HIS earnings on various forms of frivolity, Max Baer confesses he is now rolling on his financial rims, living on credit and mortgaging the future.

Like Primo Carnera, who last year filed a petition in bankruptcy while still the heavyweight champion and who is now the ward of the Irving Trust Co. of New York, Baer is cut into so many shares and hobbled by attachments, writs and levees, that he says $1.10 of every dollar earned goes to his creditors.

Unlike Carnera, who never handled any of his money and was denied all the little luxuries, Baer has been a sensational spendthrift who frittered thousands of dollars on inanities, because he could not realize that this was really money.

Yet Baer has made more money in a year than the average business man, in good times, could lay up in a life of hard work.

Max says he has no regrets. He made it and spent it, and now he meets more cautious men of his time who saved their money, forbidding themselves folly and frippery, and wound up broke anyway when their investments vanished.

Like Benny Leonard, who was a cautious man with a dollar and had shrewd financial advice that seemed, at the moment, infallible. And though Benny did not consume more than $2 worth of food at a sitting, wore ready-to-wear clothes and had no expensive vices, he ended up just as busted as Baer is now.

Without much effort I could compile a roll-call of many glove fighters who made a quarter of a million in their day and now are haunting the scenes of their old glory to grub a little hard-money for living expenses, like Paul Berlenbach, Jimmy Maloney, Luis Firpo, Jimmy Slattery, Tom Heeney, Rocky Kansas, Paulino Uzcudun, Jess Willard.

A quarter of a million is a lot of funds, even when the boom was roaring. But the fault with a quarter-million is that it withers and must constantly be recharged like an auto battery.

Free Board for Babe

HALF A DOZEN OF BOSTON'S best hotels are petitioning Babe Ruth to install himself in their apartments when he returns with the Braves this week. Realizing the rebound of free publicity that would come with the Babe's presence, at least two of these have offered to house and feed him free of charge.

Thus does fame furnish perquisites to fortune.

At the height of his career Babe had indorsed commercial products, lent his name to phony newspaper articles, performed on stage, screen and radio, made gramophone records, etc., to the total income of a million dollars.

Yet, as a sentimental type, particularly about the ragamuffin kid who hangs around the ball parks, he has given away many more millions of free publicity to charitable works, especially being a beloved sucker for crippled children and the peaked kid patients in hospital wards.

Frisch Hears Old Echo

IN SCOFFING AT DIZZY Dean's promise to quit baseball after next year and live on his trust fund, Frankie Frisch, the Cardinal manager, may be turning back the pages of his own memory to the day when he did the same thing.

At least, it was the summer of 1925, when Frankie, as a surly, mutinous disciple of John McGraw, sulked in the lobby of Boston's now defunct Hotel Brunswick. He had told me then, "This is my last season in baseball. I've got enough money to retire. I don't like the game, and I don't like the people in it."

And then too, McGraw had scoffed and said, "That is the steam, blowing through the whistle in his hat," just as now, in his elder adult stage, Frisch says, "Dizzy is as surprised at what comes out of his mouth as anybody who happens to hear him."

Thus does the history of growing pains repeat.

CRONIN, Johnson LOST

SOX IN POOR SHAPE

By Bill Grimes

Knoxville, Tenn., April 8—The Red Sox pulled in here early this morning, with Roy Johnson suffering from a serious attack of shingles, "Doc" Legett with a broken first finger and Manager Joe Cronin still hors-de-combat as a result of a lame wrist.

Johnson has been out of the game since the Sox played in Lakeland, where he wrenched his right shoulder. In order to keep in condition Roy worked out daily and threw with his left hand.

He complained in Atlanta that his back was bothering him and was informed he had pulled a muscle

Roy Johnson

For two nights he did not sleep. When he arrived in Birmingham he was suffering to such an extent he demanded a doctor.

Dr. L. E. Sorrell, brother-in-law of Tom Yawkey, examined Johnson and diagnosed his trouble as shingles.

Roy will be out of the game for at least ten more days, but he has received permission to don his uniform daily in order to keep his legs in condition.

Legett injured his finger two weeks ago in Tampa. Although it has been giving him trouble daily, he did not have it X-rayed until last Saturday.

The plate showed the digit was broken and it will be a week or more before he gets into a regular game.

Although Manager Cronin declares his wrist is coming along in fine style, he will not take any more chances until he is absolutely confident there will not be a repetition of the set-back he underwent by playing in the first game with Atlanta.

With Cronin and Johnson out of the lineup the Red Sox are just another ball club.

Although they are both trying to make light of their infirmities, there is a possibility that either or both may not be available when the regular season opens one week from tomorrow.

Mae Passes Up Channel

May Elwell of Revere, long distance nymph, has definitely abandoned plans to swim the English Channel this year, she announced today from her Revere home.

Instead she will prepare for a 20-mile swim along the shores of Cape Cod, she said.

The Cape attempt will be made in August.

BABE Makes Big MISTAKE

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service Sports Editor

New York, April 8—It can't be that we, the sterling moulders of public opinion, are wrong, so the mistake must be Babe Ruth's. He seems to think that he is not through, in spite of all the trouble we've taken.

After what happened over in Newark I suppose he'll go right on through the entire season of 1935 never knowing how wrong he is.

He was so wrong, in fact, that he got himself confused with the Ruth of 1927 and hit two home runs for a total of well over 800 feet, drew a pass and tried to step into a three-and-nothing ball, flying deep to left center—all inside of six innings.

They took him out after that, probably figuring that further misunderstanding between Ruth and the ball writers might lead to endless disorder. First thing you know we'll be getting him mixed up with some ball player.

It is characteristic of Ruth that he reserved his first outburst of the 1935 season for his first appearance in the north. It is also characteristic that, once he hits a couple, he usually becomes unreasonable and just won't stop.

That's something for eight American League clubs to worry about this morning and so is the fact that Ruth and the Boston Braves drew 10,000 in Newark.

It shows that the Ruth of the Southern exhibition games was hardly as harmless as the record—and the performance—seemed to indicate. Only Ruth himself and Dale Alexander have been able to carry the right centerfield fence at Newark.

Therefore, until further notice, you'll have to assume that the writer's opinion—and Ed Barrow's, by the way—that Ruth has lost his eye is just a trifle on the bias, if not wire-haired.

SARAZEN LEADS WOOD AT 18TH

Augusta, Ga., April 8—Gene Sarazen shot sub-par golf today to take a four-stroke lead over Craig Wood on the first round of their 36-hole playoff for top money of $1500 in the Augusta National Golf Club's invitation tournament.

Sarazen carded a 71, one under par, while Wood lost control on the incoming nine and scored a 75.

Both were on the 400-yard first hole with a drive and pitch, but Sarazen carded a five to Wood's regulation four.

Gene got the stroke back on the long second. Sarazen holed his putt for a birdie four while Wood missed

On the 350-yard third, Wood missed a 20-footer for a birdie. Both had fours.

They had regulation threes on the 190-yard fourth. Wood overshot the fifth green with a long iron, but pitched two feet from the cup and got a par four. Sarazen also foured.

Wood took the lead again with a three on the 185-yard sixth. Sarazen pulled his tee shot to the left edge of the green, 60 feet from the cup and took three putts.

Sarazen pulled up even again by running down a 20-foot putt for a birdie three on the 340-yard seventh. Wood got a regulation four. Both sliced their tee shots into the rough on the long, uphill eighth, and took fives.

Wood outdrove Sarazen by 40 yards on the 420-yard ninth, getting a fine four after Sarazen two-putted.

Sarazen took the lead for the first time on the incoming nine. Gene canned a 20-footer for a birdie three on the 430-yard 10th hole, while Wood shot par.

Both missed the 415-yard 11th green with their approach shots. Sarazen sank a six-footer for a four and Wood lost another stroke by taking two putts from 15 feet for a five.

Sarazen picked up another stroke on the short 12th, where he got down in two putts for a three. Wood took a four.

Wood hooked into the creek twice on the troublesome 13th. He saved a six by pitching within three feet of the pin. Sarazen, in the rough off the tee, played the hole safely for a par five and assumed a four-stroke lead

The carded Orthodox fours on number 14. Playing the 485 yard 15th, where he got his spectacular albatross deuce yesterday, Sarazen took a five. Wood had a five.

Both got regulation threes on the 145-yard 16th.

Both flirted with the cup. Wood from 15 feet and Sarazen from 30, on the 17th, but took fours. They were both down in regulation fours on the 18th.

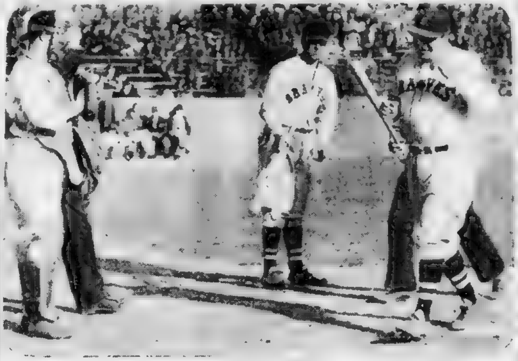
RUTH SUN PUTS OTHER BOSTON ACES IN SHADE



WALLIE BERGER BABE RUTH

"I'm an old wreck, am I," thinks Babe. So he crashes out two homers for the Braves against Newark. Here he crosses the plate while Berger waits turn. Note expression on Berger's face. He'll have to step to be Boston's homer ace this year.

He's still the best loved sports hero, the Babe. Here's why. Never too busy to laugh with the youngsters, and give his treasured autograph. In this scene he delights the group of Newark children, before the game with the Bears. Braves won, 10 to 8.

Another Bear bites the dust as first baseman Ruth puts out Bell of Newark in the fifth frame. A poor throw pulled the Babe away, but he made the putout just the same. Babe isn't a very graceful infielder now, but if he can get the putouts, who cares?

Cathedral Run

The 25th annual Cathedral Y. M. C. A. 10-mile annual open handicap run will be held Saturday, April 27, at 3 o'clock.

The start will be made as usual in front of the Cathedral Club headquarters on Union Park street.

BASKET FINAL

The fifth and final game of the Greater Boston Basketball League series will be played Thursday evening in the Mary E. Curley School, Jamaica Plain.

In the last two games Presentation Club of Brighton won by a single point. The first two games were won by St. Thomas.

Dedham Treat

Lawton Robertson Penn and Olympic track and field coach, may officiate at the Dedham-Norwood school track meet the evening of May 31.

SUFFOLK Champs AT BIT

EAGER TO GET TRACK UP

By Jack Conway

There was to be a showdown today between the owners of the rival New England race tracks.

Suffolk Downs in East Boston, still waiting for a permit from the Massachusetts Racing Commission, was to be represented at a meeting in this city of the racing chiefs by Charles F. Adams, Bayard Tuckerman and Bruce Wetmore.

An effort will be made to arrange for racing dates so that there will be the least possible number of conflicts.

"I still consider Walter O'Hara a friend, and will not class him in the ranks of those persons who are opposing racing in Massachusetts until I have proof of hostile action on his part," said Charles F. Adams.

"O'Hara has written me he is prepared to give every possible co-operation to Suffolk Downs. I shall know how he stands after today's meeting."

C. F. Adams

They are ready to go ahead with the work of constructing a track in East Boston at once.

It is pointed out by members of the Eastern Racing Association that work on the proposed track must be started at once if it is to be ready for the racing season here early in July.

Sheldon Fairbanks, "Tack" Hardwick, Ernest Soucy and other supporters of the Readville track will be granted a hearing by the Racing Commission tomorrow.

Tufts Goes Outside

Disappointed at the cold weather which has prevented him from leading his Tufts nine outdoors for practice, Judge Nash was prepared today to hold the first outdoor session this afternoon on the Tufts Oval.

Thus far the squad has been confined to the Cousens gymnasium cage except on Saturday afternoon when Coach Nash took Jack Lillis, Ed Donnelly, and Joe Philpot onto the freshman field and kept them chasing flies for a half-hour, indicating that these three are favored to play the outfield berths.

Cripples Recover

By Associated Press

Memphis, Tenn., April 8—With the National League season only eight days away, the New York Giants' cripples are showing signs of recovery.

Mel Ott's sore foot no longer troubles him; Joe Moore's charley horse has departed; Hal Schumacher no longer is troubled by a sore arm; Allyn Stout has recovered from measles; and Leon Chagnon's wrenched shoulder is on the mend.

Orlando, Fla.—The most improved player in the Brooklyn Dodgers' training camp is Tony Cuccinello. The veteran second baseman not only has been fielding spectacularly but leads the club in hitting with the amazing average of .545. He has garnered 30 hits in 55 times at bat.

Atlanta—If Charley Ruffing were in shape Manager Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees wouldn't have a thing to worry about. As it is, Ruffing's poor showing has "Marse Joe" worried. The big right-hander was 10 days late reporting and then ran into a stomach disorder.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—Billy Herman, regular second baseman, remained in Chicago today for treatment of a heel injury as the Chicago Cubs tackled the New York Yankees. In the event of warm weather, Lon Warneke aimed to pitch the whole game.

Nashville, Tenn.—Manager Walter Johnson of the Cleveland Indians is more than pleased with the work of his pitchers. In 46 innings against the New York Giants they have allowed only 37 hits and 12 runs. The Tribe was rained out here yesterday.

Columbia, S. C.—Recall of Frank McCormick from the Toronto club loomed as a possibility today as the Reds prepared to meet the Tigers. McCormick would replace Johnny Mize—$55,000 rookie first baseman—who may be laid up for some time by a leg injury.

Columbia, S. C.—Marvin Owen, third baseman for the Detroit Tigers, has been ordered by Mickey Cochrane to stand closer to the plate to improve his batting average.

* * *

St. Louis—With no game scheduled for today, the Cardinals and the Browns will use the day, weather permitting, for practice. Rain washed out yesterday's contest between the two teams.

Eagles Have 54 Out for Track

Coach Jack Ryder of Boston College has over 54 trackmen working out daily on Alumni field pointing for the annual spring interclass meet which takes place on the 20th of this month.

PARK LEAGUE Entries Out

Applications for membership in the Boston Park Department baseball league were to be sent out today to 700 managers of local nines.

Managers of teams desiring to enter the loop can obtain application blanks at the office of Billy Mullen, director of the league, at 440 Park Drive or by calling Kenmore 2211.

League season will open May 13.

SPILLS BRING CHILLS ON CHARLES

A practice spill in the chilly waters of the Charles sent Ethel Basso of the Crescent Canoe Club home with the jitters after she had been bested by Mary Duckworth in a canoe tilting match. These girls will participate in the Guides' tournament at the Garden which starts Thursday.

DI NATALE Promising PILOT

Toni Di Natale of Belmont, clever freshman halfback whom Coach McNamara has converted into a signal caller, looms as the pilot for next fall's Eagle eleven, according to the B. C. coach.

Di Natale has been displaying a keen knowledge of football, facility at both kicking and passing, and above all, in Dinny's estimation, willingness to learn and play anyhere on the team.

Although not heralded as much as one or two other freshman backs last fall, Di Natale was the steadiest performer on the Eaglet eleven and was the best man on the team according to the youthful coaches, Bill Boehner, Randy Wise and Ike Ezmunt.

In the St. John's Prep and Holy Cross '38 contests in particular, Di Natale showed remarkable talents.

Tom Brennan and Paul Flaherty, the two juniors, who have been hailed as the next quarterbacks for McNamara's team, have fallen way below their expectations in Dinny's opinion, and he has gone on the record that Di Natale, a 170-pound freshman, is the leading candidate for the post.

Horse Show to Aid Melrose A. A.

Melrose High School Athletic Association will benefit from the proceeds of the fifth annual Bear Hill horse show to be held May 4 at the athletic field, according to an announcement by Edward W. Rhodes, general chairman of the show and president of the Bear Hill Riding and Driving Club, with whom the athletic association will co-operate.

An unusually large number of classes for children and junior riders will be offered among the 25 competitive classes.

Ribbons and trophies will be awarded in each class and a special trophy will be offered for annual competition for the first time this year.

GAMBLING BILL UP IN FLORIDA

THE CASE OF COLONEL BRADLEY

By Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service

Miami, Fla., April 8—An enterprising Florida statesman has introduced a bill in the Legislature, now in session at Tallahassee, to legalize gambling in this state.

Of course gambling on horse racing is already legalized here, as in many other states, but the gentleman presumably has in mind such speculative didoes as roulette, and "old tige," or faro bank, and the nimble celluloids.

Many citizens seem to feel it will fall of passage, though they agree that it would simplify life a great deal for a large number of persons in these parts and lessen headaches.

The headaches were most prevalent among the gentlemen who came here to open establishments for the encouragement of the speculative instinct among the winter visitors and discovered that they could not operate.

There is a marked division of opinion on this question of gambling in this part of Florida. Some want an open town during the winter season; others oppose the idea.

WHAT LAW?

The stately Mr. Joseph E. Widener, who owns the Hialeah race track, has sometimes been accused of preventing the gambling, though there seems no direct evidence on this score.

Indeed, Colonel Bradley is perhaps the only man in Florida who does not bother his head about whether gambling is to be permitted or not.

He just goes on gambling anyway, and one of the most profound mysteries of the empire of the sun is how the good colonel can keep his wheels going year in and year out when the rest of the state is closed to similar enterprises. It must be the colonel's personality.

Including initial investment, and overhead, upwards of $1,000,000 must have been lost by the establishments that hoped to have gambling here this year. Not one made a dime.

Three Sophs In Terrier Lineup

There will be three, possibly four, sophomores in the Boston University lineup Wednesday when the Terriers open their season against Harvard at Cambridge.

Tom Murphy will be in center field, Charlie Carroll in left field and Vincent Sandercock at shortstop. The fourth newcomer who may break into the lineup is Irving Gordon, pitcher.

Gordon was an outstanding freshman prospect two years ago, having defeated Harvard freshmen and several other strong teams. He left school last year, but returned this past fall.

In the early workout he has shown that he is pitching as well as ever and he stands a fair chance of receiving the nod Wednesday.

New Commodore

Ira F. Griffith has been chosen commodore of the Wollaston Yacht Club for the coming season.

SIX N. E. Ringmen Off FOR NATIONALS

Six of New England's eight amateur boxing champions left today for St. Louis to participate in the national championships there, starting Wednesday.

The team, in charge of Frank Facey, Jr., and Tam Sheehan, consisted of Albert Mancini of Providence, R. I.; Sam Garcia, Quincy; Abe Denner, West End; Phil Salvatore, Chelsea; John Studley, Brockton, and Dessa Debryant, Springfield.

Cleo Calls Out St. Anselm's Squad

Manchester, N. H., April 8—Cleo O'Donnell, the man who brought Holy Cross up to be a power in eastern intercollegiate grid circles, starts anew here today.

This time, O'Donnell will be the guiding hand which is expected to make St. Anselm's College a similar power in collegiate ranks.

Fifty candidates were expected for the opening session.

TECH LACROSSE

Technology's lacrosse team, which opens its regular season on Saturday against Brown, planned a stiff practice scrimmage this afternoon at Tech field.

Coach Tommy Tucker saw his charges in action Saturday against the Boston Lacrosse Club, and the Beavers made the best showing in the history of the sport at Tech.

SMEAR Class in THIRD

STANDOUT ACE IN FIFTH

By Dave Wilson

BEST BET—ALWINTOUR, 1ST

Bowie, Md., April 8—Alwintour, a superior mudder, is entitled to a five-star rating in the six furlongs of the first number here tomorrow afternoon at Bowie. Selections are made for a muddy track.

FIRST RACE
ALWINTOUR, LUCKY TURN, BEAU GOVANS

ALWINTOUR is dropping down where he can hardly miss earning brackets. LUCKY TURN, a Florida campaigner, is strictly the one to fear. BEAU GOVANS will be dangerous.

SECOND RACE
PARADE GIRL, EVENING HOUR, FESTOON

PARADE GIRL, a comely daughter of Display and Panoply, will be facing the barrier for the first time, but the work tab suggests that she will stand a world of beating. EVENING HOUR turned in a clever second at Tropical Park. FESTOON is a strong possibility.

THIRD RACE
SWEAR, VENETIAN, MOUNTAIN ELK

SMEAR will have a track made to order for him. The one-time Whitney star was beaten a questionable decision by Zulu Lad last trip. VENETIAN placed to the top one last time out and again shapes up as the main danger. MOUNTAIN ELK may be underrated.

FOURTH RACE
HOW STABLE ENTRY, STOCKS, SLIPPER KING

The HOW STABLE ENTRY of Sang Froid and High Torque is entitled to top rating in an affair of this sort. Both are capable mudders. STOCKS, another good mudder, was fit as hands could make him before he shipped from Miami. SLIPPER KING is another first-rate mudder.

FIFTH RACE
STANDOUT, CAPTAIN JERRY, FLAT ROCK

STANDOUT appears to be all that his name implies. The fleet son of Catalan is at his best in the mud. CAPTAIN JERRY, the main danger, drubbed a cheap field only a few days back. FLAT ROCK may break into the picture.

SIXTH RACE
ATMOSPHERE, FRIEND WHITEY, COUSIN GEORGE

ATMOSPHERE, second last two times, has only to run back to either of those efforts in order to grace the winner's circle. FRIEND WHITEY, a bad-legged old fellow, has been raced into condition and should be up to a good effort. COUSIN GEORGE likes mud.

SEVENTH RACE
REVONAH, POPO, OLD JUDGE

REVONAH was weakly handled when Xandra drubbed him the other day. An intelligent rider would just about clinch top honors for him. POPO is reported to be good in heavy going. OLD JUDGE is a superior mudder, but his recent races have been very poor.

Yank Tank Team Has Three Stars

By Associated Press

New York, April 8 (AP)—Japan won the first three places in the back stroke swimming event of the 1932 Olympic games. The United States natators were so far back they didn't even figure in the score.

Today Uncle Sam can boast of three youngsters who can safely be expected to challenge seriously the Nipponese supremacy in 1936 when the nations gather in Germany to contest world's sport titles.

They are, in order of their present ratings, based on performances in the current 47th senior national A. A. U. indoor championships, 16-year-old Adolph Kiefer of Chicago, 20-year-old Danny Zehr of Fort Wayne, Ind., and 18-year-old Albert Vande Weghe of Paterson, N. J.

Three years ago Zehr was the infant prodigy of the American Olympic team, two years ago Vande Weghe broke into the limelight and last year he went to Japan and conquered all of the rising sun's dorsal stroke artists, and now comes young Kiefer with promise of developing into America's outstanding all-time back-stroke speedster.

Kiefer gave a superb exhibition in winning the 150-yard back-stroke title in the record-breaking time of 1 36.1. Kiefer was pushed to a new record by Zehr, who in finishing second also was credited with breaking the old mark. Zehr was caught in 1.36.3. Vande Weghe, the defending champion and former owner of the world's record at 1 36.9, tired rapidly after setting the pace for the first half.

Card Off

Bay Meadows Rained Out

San Mateo, Cal., April 8 (INS)—Rainy weather and a soggy track today caused cancellation of the racing card at the Bay Meadows track.

Horsemen with entries for today's program made so many scratches that the entire card was called off. Officials said efforts would be made to resume racing tomorrow.

Tech to Fete Dick Harlow

Dick Harlow, new coach of football at Harvard, is to be the guest of honor at the annual banquet of the M. I. T. boxing team, which is to be held Wednesday evening at Riverbank Court Hotel, Cambridge.

Harlow, former coach of the Western Maryland fighters, who have won several intercollegiate titles, is well know to Coach Rawson of the Cardinal and Gray boxing team.

At the banquet, the members of this past season's varsity team will cast their ballots for a new leader for the season 1935-1936.

Elmer Wirtz, a sophomore who battled in the 155-pound division, and Phillip Norton, a veteran of three years, are the two outstanding nominees for the captaincy.

Boys' Club Play Starts 2d Week

The Boys' Club of Boston annual basketball tourney goes into its second week of competition this evening with 12 games scheduled at the Eben D Jordan Memorial gym.

Although one week's card of games has been played, the first three days of this week will be devoted to first round encounters.

Stoughton Boys' Club meets the Eagle A. C. of South End House, and Waltham All-Stars play the Stanley Cubs in feature contests.

Cubs Dinner

Boston's hockey season comes to a close officially tonight when the Bruin Cubs, Fontaine Cup winners, are dined at the Hotel Manger by President Weston Adams.

The Cubs have been asked to remain in town for another day until the result of the second game of the Vancouver-Detroit series is learned.

If Vancouver should win again the Cubs very likely will make the trip west to meet the Northwestern League champions.

Test Entries Opened

By Bill Connell

Entries for the Braves' Babe Ruth Identity Test continued to pour in this morning as the staff started work of opening, checking and tabulating the hundreds of award bids already sent to the Contest Editor.

Awards are 250 pairs of free tickets for National League opening day at Braves Field, one week from tomorrow when the Braves tackle the Giants.

Judging from the numbers of entries flooding the office a large percentage of New England baseball fans are determined to see that first game of the season.

Others apparently put in much time and effort in writing their 50-word letters on "What Babe Ruth Will Do for the Braves."

With closing time midnight last night, all the entries are expected to be opened soon. Final judging will follow, then the awards will be announced and mailed the 250 lucky winners.

A corps of 500 fans thus will attend the N. L. opener without any ticket cost. Adding much to their enjoyment of the day, and of Babe

Mr. Boston Dubuc Endorses Ruth

By Jack Conway

AROUND town with Mr. Boston:

Jean Dubuc, one of the master minds of the defeated Providence Reds, taking time out to say he believes Babe Ruth will have a good season with the Braves.

"The big guy can still hit," said Jean. "If he gets the ball on the inside of the plate in the games at the Wigwam, he will drop it into the right field stands.

Mr. Boston

"If the pitchers try to cut the outside corner of the plate, the Babe will get his share of home runs into the center field bleachers."

DUBUC says Ruth's value to the Braves will be decided by his legs.

"If Ruth can still stand up, he can win plenty of ball games," added Jean. "I can see him bouncing the agate over the short left and right field fences in Philadelphia.

"Remember the day in Tampa when as a member of the Red Sox the Babe drove the ball a mile over Benny Kauff's head in center field? That is his record home run."

DUBUC, a famous pitcher with Detroit in his day, says baseball is slipping.

"The youngsters are turning to other sports," declared Gene. "The minor leagues are all having their troubles, and as a result there are few promising ball players coming up to the majors.

"The veterans, many of whom are well past 30, can play rings around the young fellows.

"When baseball was at its peak 15 and 20 years ago the youngsters would run you out of the big leagues when you hit 30. Few players then lasted in the big leagues for more than ten years. Rip Van Winkle could get a regular job with some of the major league clubs nowadays."

RACING HOLDUP

CHARLES F. ADAMS asking me my opinion of latest racing delay. The handling of the racing situation in Massachusetts has been laughable.

Numerous forces are moving to prevent the construction of a race track in this state this year. Which will give Rockingham Park and Narragansett Park cause to cheer.

If the Racing Commission had granted a license for a track weeks ago, it would have been impossible for the foes of racing to throw so many obstacles in the path of the sport of kings. Now the football of politicians.

* * *

Meanwhile thousands of workmen, who had expected to get wages helping to build race tracks, are on the welfare. Their families only have the bare necessities of life.

The Racing Commission and its rather elaborate staff does not have to worry about the welfare situation as they are anchored to the state's payroll.

Work and wages! Let the men who work by the sweat of their brow and who are willing to give an honest day's effort cut in on this program.

Suffolk Downs, Readville, Norwood, Springfield say they have money in the bank which they are willing to spend for the construction of tracks. Open these bank accounts for the payrolls of the workers.

Even though this action hits some selfish racing group, I know Governor Curley is for our program. Let's have action and fewer silly words.

RIGBY HERE

EL Rigby, manager of Strangler Lewis, parading around town with a flock of poison pens. He's here to ruin youthful Dan O'Mahoney, Irish heavyweight champion, if possible.

Rigby has made a comfortable living down through the years attacking those persons in the high and lofty places in athletics.

Gus Sonnenberg, Ed George and Henri DeGlane used to be his pet hates. You always find Rigby with the opposition whether it is in wrestling, boxing or in some other sport.

Rigby was affiliated with Jim Londos, Ed White and Ed Shikat when they tried to wrest control of the mat game in this city from Paul Bowser. The latter succeeded in running Rigby & Co. out of town.

Bowser doesn't want any part of Strangler Lewis for O'Mahoney. He is fortunate in having the necessary ammunition to keep Lewis out of range.

He can pit Gus Sonnenberg against Danno in the event the old Dynamiter blasts Charley Strack over at the Arena on Wednesday night. Sonnenberg is a New England favorite, and would sellout the Garden if pitted against O'Mahoney.

B. C. ELEVEN STRONG

Dinny Mac Does Well In Head Coach Role

Heavy Team

WITH ROSEATE PROSPECTS FOR NEXT FALL

By Walter Kiley

The football picture at Boston College begins to look hopeful as the third and final week of University Heights spring gridiron work opens today.

Two weeks of intensive drilling have accomplished much. The new head coach has thoroughly inoculated his principles of work and more work in order to stay on the team. The loafers are out.

So that when the Eagles open against St. Anselm's next fall they may not be the greatest team in the East but at least they will be aggressive.

More than 100 candidates have been uniformed and have appeared daily. Some contact work has been attempted. The real tests, however, come on Wednesday and Saturday when scrimmages are scheduled.

In fact on Saturday morning, the final day's session, a full game is to be attempted.

Naturally the coaches have not settled on a lineup. They have been tinkering with several combinations.

The one which has been getting most attention is the heaviest and has the finest possibilities of any team in recent Boston College history.

Re—Red O'Brien, sr., 190, Hyde Park.

Rg—Alec Pazenny, jr., 180, Salem.

C—Fred Moore, sr., 175, Boston Latin.

Lg—Nel Owens, jr., 200, Lynn Classical.

Lg—Dimy Faitz, sr., 205, English High.

Lt—Oscoe Gilman, jr., 205, Newburyport.

Le—Joe Killion, soph., 175, Brookline.

Le—Ed Furbush, sr., 178, Waltham.

Qb—Tony DiNatale, soph., 175, Belmont.

Rhb—Pat Avery, jr., 185, St. Anselm's.

Lhb—Attilio Ferdenzi, jr., 160, Ashland.

Fb—Oliver LaRonde, soph., 180, Cambridge Latin.

Fb—Cap Bryan, soph., 190, North Quincy.

In addition there is a wealth of other material, several of whom are veterans engaging in baseball.

Ted Galligan of Rindge, Joe Keaney of Lynn, John Janusis of Lexington and John O'Callahan 6 feet 4 inch sophomore of 205 pounds from Latin School are tackles; Vin Keough is a veteran center and McSweeney of Brighton a guard.

DATED

Lou Smith, owner of Rockingham Park, who will sit in with Charles Adams and Walter O'Hara to scale dates for New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Rhode Island race meetings this year.

Wins $58,000 on 50 Francs

Lyons, France, April 8—A new French pari-mutuel record for winnings had been recorded today, but nobody knows the man who turned the trick.

An unnamed plunger pyramided a 50-franc win and 50-franc place four-way parlay into 481,542 francs ($58,181 77).

His bets were on Perseis, Hanoi, Rentenmark and Folle Passion at the Longchamp track, and all finished first.

LUCY RECS In Cup Final

Lusitania Recreation gained the final round of the state soccer cup championship by defeating Clan MacGregor in a semifinal round encounter at Lincoln Park. The score was 3-2.

The Rabbit Proves It

Faith and Prayer Perform Miracle, Doctors Said Wouldn't Happen

By Joe Cashman

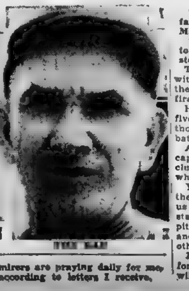
A week or so ago Rabbit Maranville and your envoy sat in rockers outside the West Coast Inn at St. Pete, all alone except for the man in the apricot moon peering down through the gently swaying palms.

And the little guy revealed for the first time why he persisted in his comeback predictions while every physician who had studied his leg injury and every critic who had seen him in action declared he could never play again.

"I don't blame the doctors or the writers for feeling the way they do," he said. "I realize I look quite helpless out there now and that every law of nature insists I must remain so.

"But they make the mistake of thinking nature passes final judgment. If I felt that way about it, I wouldn't be down here at all. I'm convinced there's a greater Power. That's why I'm so confident.

"Thousands of friends and admirers are praying daily for me, according to letters I receive.



"Those supplications and my faith that they'll be heard by the Man above will pull me through.

"In about a week I'll prove it to you. Then you can write the story."

He played five innings, handled five chances and hit the ball hard, though not safely, in four times at bat.

A slight limp which didn't handicap him in the least was the only clue the 10,000 customers had as to which leg the midget had broken.

Yet it was only the morning of the day he unburdened himself to us that a noted surgeon on the staff of a large mid-western hospital had watched him work out and told him he'd never play another game.

If faith and prayer didn't perform the miracle, the explanation will never be furnished.

WOMEN Bowl in LYNN

PRELUDE TO NATIONALS

By Ed Cogswell

Women bowlers start the ball rolling in the Lynn annual candlepin tournament, which starts today as a prelude to the national tournament opening next Monday.

The singles, doubles, team and mixed events keep the women busily engaged till well into the week when the male portion of the entrants monopolize the alleys.

Through her sensational skill demonstrated in league bowling this season, all eyes are turned to Miss L. Tatraut of the Queen City Alleys, Manchester, N. H., as to how she may perform in the coming tournaments.

Miss Tatraut

Only four years on the alleys, Miss Tatraut has improved so rapidly that this season she was made captain and anchor of the City Hall No. 1 team in the City League.

How well she merited this distinction is illustrated by having an individual string average to date of over 97. In practice it is always in order for her to reel off strings above the 100 mark.

In the Lynn and National tournaments, she meets the pick of women bowlers from every section where the candlepin sport is known, but her Manchester followers have confidence she will finish with the leaders.

Referring to the art of bowling it was "Old Brad" who, back in 1912, declared the sport consisted of 50 per cent science, 25 per cent nerve and endurance, and 25 per cent the breaks, or luck of the game. To this day "Old Brad's" version of the ratio is counted a fact by all experts.

Roscoe Has Appendicitis

New Haven, April 8—Neither end of Yale's famous 1934 forward passing combination will participate in spring football this year.

Larry Kelly, receiver par excellence, is with the baseball team. Jerry Roscoe, dispenser, is a patient in a Long Island hospital recuperating from an operation for appendicitis.

Roscoe is not expected to return to Yale for two weeks and will not be permitted to don a uniform until next fall.

RADIO GYPSIES ANNIVERSARY ON AIR

By N. F. T.

There hasn't been much fanfare or exploitive ballyhoo attending the broadcasts by the well known chain store Gypsies each Monday night (WEEI) come 9 o'clock. They have won public patronage because of "mike" merits.

Twelve years on the air is a long time. Any network performer or sponsor will be quick to state that a radio attraction must have something out of the ordinary in the way of listener appeal to last that length of time.

Such is the unique distinction enjoyed by the aforementioned musical aggregation. Tonight the baton of Harry Horlick will be raised to celebrate the observance of his dozen years as director of the gifted group. They are what might well be called "Old Standbys" or "Old Reliables" in the sound sanctum realm.

"N. F. T."

What's more, it is the plan to alter policy a bit with the starting of the 13th twelve month span. Guest artists will move into the weekly program picture. Conrad Thibault, Phil Baker, "Molasses and January" and Mary Small are to be presented during the half hour settings to come. Even so, the popular tenor Frank Parker and the band boss Harry Horlick continue to be the mainstays. It is good to note the sponsor perseverance. They selected the "Gypsies" at the outset. They have steadfastly stuck by them, even as the toothpaste folks have maintained "Amos n' Andy" and it may interest other broadcasting backers to know everybody is happy. The effort is considered very worth while in every way. Long may Horlick's baton wave!

Because of the great number of requests that Kate Smith sing more numbers on her revues each Monday night (WNAC), her sponsor has decided to discontinue the "new-star" talent on the program for the time being.

The broadcast this evening from 8 30 to 9 00 therefore finds Kate as the starring performer, assisted by the Three Ambassadors, the Wallace Sisters and Jack Miller's Orchestra.

James Melton, young radio tenor is coming to visit the "Haydns" and to sing with them at their weekly musicals beginning tonight (WEEI) at 9 30 p. m.

Melton, star of many a radio series, is being written into the cast of "Music at the Haydns" and will have a regular role in the weekly dramatic and musical scripts.

Written by Otto Harbach, noted Broadway librettist, "Music at the Haydns" already has a cast consisting of Harbach himself, Francis White, Eunice Howard and other well known air performers.

The game of hearts, as it is played along the French Riviera, is portrayed in the three-act comedy "Love's Press Agent," which the "Princess Pat Players" will broadcast (WBZ) this evening between 9.30 and 10, as their play-of-the-week.

The cast will include Joan Blaine, Alice Hill, Arthur Jacobson and Douglas Hope.

RADIO ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS OF READERS

Q. Is [illegible] of Ben Atwell who [illegible] and was with Fred Allen [illegible] any program?

A.—Not regularly, although he is doing guest artist duty quite often. Keep an eye and two ears on the Rudy Vallee, The Showboat and the Paul Whiteman hours.

Q.—What became of Kay Fayre who sang songs over WPZ at 11 15 nights not long ago? Can we hear her? What became of Baby Rose Marie and can you tell something about her?

A.—Kay is believed in New York, working on irregular schedules, also said to be negotiating for an important series to start shortly. Rose Marie Curley is in Hollywood with her parents, posing for pictures. She will be back on the air but will not use "Baby Rose Marie" since her folks feel she is too big for the nickname now.

Q. [illegible] of the J. Har [illegible] who was with Jack Ben [illegible] here is the [illegible] who sang on the "Rio Rita" [illegible] Doc Fred Huf[illegible] regular program [illegible] of Roxbury.

A.—Yes, he is the same singer. He was in the "Rio Rita" stage and picture production as well. He is to take over a new twice weekly spot very soon. Details later.

Q. Does Will Rogers speak from [illegible] just [illegible] things come [illegible]

WONDERING of Waltham.

A.—He does not use full script, but often refers to notes and plans his topic well in advance even if it doesn't sound that way.

Q. Do [illegible] actually splash water to create [illegible] sound effect in programs? If so, how is it done?

H. P. W. of Hyde Park.

A.—Yes, usually a large tub is used and a heavy object dropped in it. However, they have been making records of the effect lately, to keep from wetting the studios and the characters.

Q. Do the comedians submit their comedy to stations before going on the air in order to prevent jokes from being off color—or do they just do as they please?

S. B. C. of Cambridge.

A.—Yes indeed they do show them first. Many times their humor is changed completely so as not to be in bad taste.

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

"Terror on Street Car"

Arlington Lad's Plight Funny to You —Not to Him!

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO, EVERYBODY!

Today, boys and girls, the 10-dollar prize goes to 15-year-old EDWARD KENNEY OF 30 AMSDEN STREET, ARLINGTON, for a yarn that rivals my old fiction favorite, Horatio Alger, at his best.

FLOYD GIBBONS

Remember "Ned, the Newsboy" and how hard it was to keep him down?

Eddie was six years old when he decided to step out into the world and make himself some money. Of course he didn't have to—he was living home with his dad and going to school too—but he had a lot of time in the mornings before school, if he got up early enough, so he made up his mind he'd go to work.

Now there are not many professions open to a fellow of six who has to go to school most of the day and come home to meals, but Eddie knew of one and that was selling papers. So he became a newsboy.

Eddie says he didn't have any trouble at first, cleaning up from two to 10 cents clear profit a day and he had been able to sneak out of the house before six in the morning and get back in time for breakfast and school without his family being any the wiser.

But one day his dad caught on.

"One morning," Eddie writes, "I got out of bed before six and found my father waiting for me in the kitchen. He had always objected to my chosen career and I wasn't surprised when he sent me back to bed with a lot of baby talk about how I'd catch a cold, get killed or hurt or something.

"He had a wicked looking belt in his hand and he told me he would use it on me if I dared go out to work another morning."

Well, sir, I don't believe in anyone disobeying his parents but on the other hand what can you do with a guy like Eddie?

That very night, he says, he slipped a pair of sneakers into his bed and he was up with the milkman ready for another morning's work.

Eddie says his new system worked to a "T."

He used to pick up his papers at the Milton Spa around the corner and sell them to his regular customers on their way to work, then he would sneak back through the window and step out of his bedroom right in time for breakfast.

This went on for about three weeks, Eddie says, and he was saving up to buy a new house for the folks when, by golly, he got the biggest scare that he had ever had IN HIS WHOLE SIX YEARS!

It all happened because his father's night shift of work in the Cambridge Gas House started and Eddie says his father's return home conflicted with Eddie's early morning start. He used to keep his eyes open at the Spa for fear that he would run smack into his dad at the corner. Wait until you hear what happened.

"I went out as usual that morning," Eddie says, "and it was my custom to jump on a street car and ride as far as Harvard square and then take a home bound car back.

"I was on the home bound car yelling 'papers' and had made a few sales and was hoping that I'd beat my dad to the corner and get in without his seeing me when I got so scared that I almost dropped my papers on the floor.

"There was my dad sitting right in front of me and what's more he asked for a paper. Talk about a thrill! I could almost feel that leather belt of his right through my pants! The strap around my papers, too, seemed to choke me.

PAPER! BOY?
DAILY S..
MOY.

"I could feel my cap rise right off my head and cold drops of sweat, enough to wash my face, started oozing out of my forehead. I stood there rooted to the spot for a few seconds until I realized that he hadn't recognized me.

"That was a break and I pulled my cap down so he wouldn't see my face but no matter how hard I pulled it down that cap would rise right up again!

"Dad was deep in conversation with another man and lucky for me didn't look up. He gave me a nickel and told me to keep the change but the other man waited for his change and I had to stand there and count out the pennies!

"Boy, what a thrill! I thought he would spot me any minute and I was shaking like a leaf—but he didn't. Instead he started talking about how he had cured his young son of selling papers and I slipped into the seat in back of them and listened.

"Well, I had gotten by so far in the most thrilling moment of my life but I wasn't clear yet by any means. I had to get off that car without his seeing me and get home before he did or all would be lost.

"When we came to our corner I let him get off first, then I hopped off and quickly left my remaining papers at the Milton Spa. Lucky for me he didn't come in the store.

"Out the back way I went and over fences as fast as I could run and slipped in the cellar door. I had a bathrobe and a pair of slippers in the cellar and I quickly changed and came up just in time as though I had been fixing the furnace.

Well, sir, Eddie says he went on dodging his dad FOR TWO WHOLE YEARS but he was never in so tight a fix as that first morning on the car.

Of course Eddie's father realizes now that you can't keep a good man down and Eddie is still selling papers for the Milton Spa but his dad allows him to now because you see in all those years EDDIE NEVER MISSED A DAY OF SCHOOL!

Talk about your adventurers who almost get eaten up by lions in Darkest Africa, why, by golly, they never got a bigger thrill in their whole lives than Eddie did when he sold that paper to his dad.

Lions and tigers are duck soup to a man of six compared to getting caught by your dad in a spot like that.

Why, doggone it, I don't believe that Eddie will EVER be as scared as he was at that moment and I mean it.

Eddie winds up his swell letter by saying that he would like to hear the adventures of other newsboys—and so would all of us. His motto he says is "Earn thy bread and spare the butter" and he adds "Any boy of six can do it."

Thanks, Eddie, old man, and if you don't make a success in life I'm an Indian! And give my regards to your dad.

Tomorrow read "Stranded in the Air." It's by Edwin C. Johnson, of 827 Washington street, Brighton.

$10.00 EVERY DAY and $100.00 EVERY MONTH is what Floyd Gibbons will pay American readers to prove that more thrilling and interesting TRUE adventures happen in YOUR life and in the lives of your friends than anything fiction writers can invent. DAGWOOD, THERE WAS A TICKET PASTED ON THE WINDSHIELD OF OUR CAR WHEN I CAME OUT OF THE STORE TODAY. WHAT WAS IT?
THAT WAS A NOTICE FOR YOU TO APPEAR IN COURT FOR A TRAFFIC VIOLATION.. QUICK! LET ME SEE THE TICKET!
OH, NOW, DON'T GET SO EXCITED! WE DON'T HAVE TO WORRY.. I LOST IT!
THAT DOESN'T LET YOU OUT OF IT.. THAT MAKES IT WORSE...HOW LONG DID YOU PARK?
OH, I GUESS I WAS IN THE STORE ABOUT TWO HOURS!
YOU'RE ONLY ALLOWED TO PARK 45 MINUTES THERE! YOU KNOW THAT I KNOW IT, BUT I CAME OUT THREE TIMES AND BACKED THE CAR UP AND PUT IT BACK IN THE SPACE!

CARROLL'S New "Vanities" May Open in Boston

By GEORGE HOLLAND

New York, April 8—Earl Carroll has not decided whether Boston or Philadelphia will see his impending "Vanities" before New York.

It is possible that both cities will get the production before New York.

George Holland

Mr. Carroll will reach a decision about his booking plans this week. He was busy last night getting ready for today's first rehearsal. The Earl of Seventh Avenue I suppose we should call him the erstwhile Earl of Seventh Avenue because his magnificent theatre the Casino, is now in new hands and the old Carroll Theatre is razed), is one of the canniest of the theatrical traders.

Hence he was not insensitive to the record of Boston this season, and that record includes the items that two revues "As Thousands Cheer" and "Life Begins At 8:40" and two musical comedies, "Anything Goes" and "Roberta" attracted capacity business.

And Mr. Carroll's new "Vanities" would have a Boston monopoly in the merry month of May. There is not a single positive booking following Tallulah Bankhead in "Something Gay," at the Plymouth, beginning April 20.

Gracie Barrie and the Ritz Brothers are in the new Carroll show and Boots McKenna who directed the dances at the Cocoanut Grove two years ago is drilling the Carroll beauties.

There are fifty-six (56) Carroll beauties by the way in the Earl's new venture. That is thirty-two (32) more beauties than any recent musical show has employed.

* * *

Katharine Cornell opens tonight in John Van Druten's play, "Flowers of the Forest" and on Wednesday night, Osgood Perkins of Newton will open in a play by Frank Wead called "Ceiling Zero."

New York motion picture critics agree that Warner Brothers' new picture "Black Fury" is one of the strongest stories brought to the screen. It will play the Paramount and Fenway Theaters in the near future.

Ed Smith boss of the Metropolitan Theatre and Charles Koerner, boss of the Keith Theaters, are in New York.

Ed is completing arrangements for the Rudy Vallee engagement at the Met for the theatrical week, beginning April 26.

Mr. Koerner has returned from Cleveland, where he saw the "Folies Bergere" and scheduled its opening at the Boston theater for April 20 instead of April 12 as was planned first.

Joseph Calleia Will Star in "I Am Joaquin"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles, April 8 (US)—I was that surprised today to hear that quietly, almost secretly I might say, plans are going forward on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot to produce "I Am Joaquin," based on the life of California's colorful Joaquin Murietta, the famous bandit and picturesque adventurer.

Louella O. Parsons

RKO planned a year or so ago to produce a Murietta drama with Francis Lederer in the leading role. John Considine Jr., who made several big box office hits last year, is now working on the play and the plan is now to put Joseph Calleia who gave such an outstanding performance on the stage in "Small Miracle" into the picture as Murietta.

They tell me over at Paramount that ever since Sir Guy Standing appeared in "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" his fan mail has increased by leaps and bounds. They also tell me that requests come from all over the country to see him in some more military pictures. So here goes.

He will have the lead in "Annapolis Farewell," which Richard Wallace will direct. With Sir Guy will be Wendy Barrie and Kent Taylor, who will play the juveniles, but the big moment in the picture is really Sir Guy, whose aristocratic bearing and excellent performances always entitle him to the applause of the theater going public.

Marion Davies, whose songs with Bing Crosby in "Going Hollywood" were distinct hits, now will do a little warbling in "Page Miss Glory." A special song has been written for her and Dick Powell and together they will sing a number. Dick has been held up for a few days on "Broadway Gondoliers" but he will start work early next week.

Meanwhile Lyle Talbot steps into the reporter role because William Gargan will not finish in the "Gondolier" picture in time to play the part originally assigned to him.

Chatter in Hollywood: Rosamond Pinchot who has been in Hollywood off and on for about a year, will leave for New York, I hear, without ever having made a picture. Seems her contract is up and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has not taken up her option. The fault is not hers since MGM had no story for her.

It was unfortunate that there was never a part suitable for Miss Pinchot so that she could prove what she could do on the screen. However, I have seen it happen where players have left town without facing a camera that they have returned and really done something worthwhile on the screen.

A line or two: Jayne Shattuck and Jack Kirkland, who can't live with or without each other, may be reunited again, so their friends say. She is leaving for a trip to Honolulu and he will be at the boat to see her off. "And," said one of Jack's pals, "Maybe at the last minute he will go with her." William Wellman will direct "Riff Raff" with Jean Harlow and Spencer Tracy.

Snapshots of Hollywood

The GRETA GARBO-GEORGE BRENT romance on again; GEORGE'S Toluca lake neighbors that surprised to see GRETA slip into his house after an absence of some weeks; TOBY WING the real vamp of the younger set, dancing every dance with ARTHUR LAKE, who took her stepping at the Cocoanut Grove; FRANCIS LEDERER and MARY ANITA LOOS more and more thata' way about each other, lunching; WILLIAM FRAWLEY who used to sing in Broadway musicals, promising to do his stuff one of these nights.

FRANCES MARION back from La Quinta with a nearly completed script; talk is that JAMES BLAKELEY is trying to persuade BARBARA HUTTON to visit Hollywood when her divorce from PRINCE ALEXIS MDIVANI is granted; VAN SMITH and NANCY CARROLL at a table at a night club; at a nearby table AL ROGELL and BETTY BURNS; KING VIDOR and BETTY HILL King's clubbing also; ROBERT RISKIN and FRANK CAPRA have gone to Palm Springs to finish "Lost Horizon," FRANK'S next. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Snyder Returns to Howard

"The Blue Rhythm Girls" burlesquers are Bozo's companions, adding songs, dances and their considerable charms to a lively and entertaining program.

The entire cast includes a company of 50, with the beauties among the principals headed by Billie Hughes, known as "the gay soubrette," Dolores Green, a striking Titian haired dancer, and Margie and June White, Hollywood footlight favorites.

Diane Logan, a favorite in Boston and formerly with the Earl Carroll Vanities, Dorothy Ahearn, Alice Donaldson, Mignon, dancer from Paris, Elsa Lang, prima donna and a chorus of 24 pretty girls are all featured in the big and colorful revue.

A rollicking crew of fun-makers have been rounded up for "Vampire Girls," headed by Al Golden and Sam Raynor. The rest of the comedy ranks are filled by Joe DeRita, Murray Briscoe, Happy Hyatt, Murray Green and Stanley Simmons.

Gayety's Bill

Attractions on the new program at the Gayety are "Broadway Bill," Mark Hellinger's race-track drama, with Myrna Loy, Warner Baxter and Walter Connolly in the leading roles, and "Tomorrow's Youth," featuring Dickie Moore, John Miljan and Martha Sleeper. The program includes five vaudeville acts and short screen subjects.

A "Vamp" From Burlesque

Outstrip EMPLOYMENT Figures

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

There have been some queer quirks to the spring recovery of 1935. Payroll figures, for instance, are hard to reconcile with employment reports.

Using the Alexander Hamilton Institute studies we find that employment in February was only slightly better than last year. At the same time payrolls showed a rise of 14 per cent for the same month. No permanent progress, it would seem, has been made toward solving the employment situation. It is a fact that all the fancy schemes for putting people to work have not worked. Of the whole new deal regime the first six months were the best.

A breakdown of employment and payroll figures for this year lends substance to the above thoughts. The decline in unemployed in February as compared to January was small. Yet the 7.8 per cent rise in payrolls for February as compared to January was the best for the two months, with the exception of 1934, since 1919. The NRA was supposed to keep payrolls and employment in balance. The evidence that it has failed is incontrovertible. Unemployment stood at 12,913,000 within six months of the advent of the new deal. It has not fallen as low since.

Richard Whitney

Note book: But the desire for new deals is not over . . . Today Wall street has one of its very own . . . Mr. Richard Whitney steps down as president of the stock exchange and makes way for Charles R. Gay . . . As a policy-making change we leave conclusions and deductions to others . . . But as a practical matter it is just as well . . . Mr. Whitney had a troublous term of office . . . His duties were manifold . . . His position unenviable . . . His has been a job of defense . . . A new administration can devote all of its attention to building up business through regaining public good will.

The outlook for consumer goods is better at present than in many years. With a good three months behind and Easter falling late in April, retailers are confident the first third of 1935 will find them enjoying the best period in some time. Consumer buying of spring merchandise, according to reports, is beginning to be heavy. Price is a factor, as always, in volume from a tonnage standpoint. It is thought that unit prices in the majority of cases are fair in relation to purchasing power.

* * *

Shorts: The return of President Roosevelt to Washington will be watched closely . . . It is expected he will solidify the ranks of those seeking holding company legislation . . . That would mean a few more shocks for the market . . . Unless offset by good news on the railroad pension plea . . . But the latter is and must remain in the realm of the unforecastable . . . Until the news is out, it does not seem possible to make any use of it for trading purposes.

BOSTON PRICE
Trend Is Higher

Industrial shares contributed the bulk of activity with Torrington up ⅜ at 74 and United Shoe adding ¼ at 75¾.

The utility section was quiet and Eastern Gas & Fuel stood out with the common up ⅛ at 38⅜ while the preferred scored an advance of 1½ at 61.

Industrial Rayon

Cleveland—Industrial Rayon Corporation and subsidiaries report for quarter ended March 31, 1935, net profit of $296,301, equal to 49 cents a share on the 600,000 shares.

Towle Mfg.

Towle Manufacturing Company directors declared regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share, payable April 15 to stock of record April 6.

PRUDENTIAL
Assets Are Lower

Report of Prudential Investors, Inc., states that on March 31, 1935, net assets of the corporation amounted $7,666,932, against $8,075,250 on Dec. 31, 1934.

These net assets are equal to $165.61 per share on 46,296 shares of $6 preferred stock outstanding as of March 31, 1935, against $174.43 per share on the same number of shares outstanding at the close of 1934.

Bar Gold

London, April 8 (AP)—Bar gold advanced 10 pence to 144s 11d (U. S. equivalent $34.94).

Pittsburgh Glass

Pittsburgh—S. S. Wherrett, president of Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, announced an additional program for plant extension, improvements and new equipment calling for expenditure of $1,905,000.

This, together with previous factory expenditures authorized this year, brings total appropriation for plant improvement to $4,580,000.

Bar Silver

DRY GOODS
Shows Gain

This is equal to [illegible]7.25 per share on 134,364 shares of 6 per cent first preferred shares outstanding on which dividend accumulations now amounted to $12 per share on Jan. 31, 1935.

In the preceding fiscal year net profit was $202,154, equal to $1.50 a share on the first preferred stock.

SELLING WELL ABSORBED

New York, April 8—The stock market was a hesitant affair today pending the expected Supreme Court ruling on the rail pension case.

Union Pacific dropped a point to 87½. New York Central, Atchison and Lackawanna dropped fractionally.

Industrials were mixed with U. S. Steel and General Electric heavy while American Can and Dupont were fractionally higher.

Utility leaders such as National Power & Light, Columbia Gas & Electric, and Public Service of New Jersey were fractionally easier. American Telephone, however, edged nominally higher.

Motors were heavy, with Chrysler and General Motors fractionally depressed.

Timely Events

As stock dealings got under way Wall Street took some encouragement from two refinancing operations:

The first $162,000,000 Federal Land Bank bonds, was one of the largest issues in years with the exception of government bonds. Purpose of the issue is to reduce interest charges.

The second, $5,000,000 debentures of National Biscuit Company, was seen as a trickle of funds into constructive work inasmuch as part of the money is to flow into plant construction and improvement work.

Less assuring were week-end reports from the continent citing determination of the gold bloc nations to cling to the yellow metal. Observers saw in the reported decision the possibility of further stress and uncertainty centering around the currency situation.

Unsettling also to sentiment was the growing probability that rubber workers in Akron would stage a walkout this week, backed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Opening foreign exchange transactions found the pound sterling down 1½ cents at $4.83. The French franc was up .00¾ of a cent at 6.59½. The guilder was up .12 of a cent at 67.47 cents.

MACY EARNS
$1.95 a Share

R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., and subsidiaries, report for 53 weeks ended February 2, 1935, consolidated net profit applicable to common of R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., of $2,926,705, equivalent to $1.95 a share on 1,501,613 shares of common outstanding at close of year, excluding 7943 shares held by company.

This compares with net of $3,034,622, excluding $383,033 net proceeds from life insurance, or $2.02 a share on 1,499,813 shares of common for 52 weeks ended January 27, 1934.

UN. BISCUIT
Bonds Offered

New York, April 8—Baking interests are offering an issue of $5,000,000 United Biscuit Co. of America 5 per cent debenture bonds, due 1950.

The proceeds will be used for retirement at 103½ of $2,980,000 6 per cent debentures and the cancellation of other corporate indebtedness. Any balance remaining may be used for construction, expansion or improvement, it was understood in financial circles.

ALABAMA
Reports Income

Pamphlet report of Alabama Power Company and subsidiaries for year ended December 31, 1934, shows net income of $2,760,269, equal to $7.52 a share on 367,187 shares of combined $7, $6 and $5 no-par cumulative preferred stocks outstanding at the end of the year and compares with $3,276,291, or $8.92 a share on 367,207 combined preferred shares in 1933.

COTTON EASY After Firmness

New York, April 8 (INS)—Cotton futures eased off somewhat from a firm opening today but maintained gains of a few points despite easiness in Liverpool cables.

Futures firmed again toward noon, with May quoted at 11.02 up 5, July 11.09 up 5, October 10.74, up 6 and December 10.81 up 8 points.

Gen. Electric

The Boston Stock Exchange says: "In conjunction with the retirement of all the outstanding special stock of General Electric Company on April 15, the transfer books for the stock are to be closed permanently at the close of business on April 12, 1935. Accordingly all transactions on April 11 and 12 will be for cash."

First Liberty Loan Bonds

NOTICE OF CALL FOR REDEMPTION BEFORE MATURITY

To Holders of First Liberty Loan Bonds of 1932-47, and others concerned:

Public notice is hereby given:

1. All outstanding First Liberty Loan bonds of 1932-47 are hereby called for redemption on June 15, 1935. The various issues of First Liberty Loan bonds (all of which are included in this call) are as follows:

First Liberty Loan 3½ percent bonds of 1932-47 (First 3½'s), dated June 15, 1917;

First Liberty Loan Converted 4 percent bonds of 1932-47 (First 4's), dated November 15, 1917;

First Liberty Loan Converted 4¼ percent bonds of 1932-47 (First 4¼'s), dated May 9, 1918; and

First Liberty Loan Second Converted 4¼ percent bonds of 1932-47 (First-Second 4¼'s), dated October 24, 1918.

2. Interest on all such outstanding First Liberty Loan bonds will cease on said redemption date, June 15, 1935.

3. Full information regarding the presentation and surrender of First Liberty Loan bonds for redemption under this call will be given in a Treasury Department Circular to be issued later.

4. Holders of First Liberty Loan bonds now called for redemption on June 15, 1935, may, in advance of that date, be offered the privilege of exchanging all or any part of their called bonds for other interest-bearing obligations of the United States, in which event public notice will hereafter be given.

HENRY MORGENTHAU, JR.,
Secretary of the Treasury.

Treasury Department,
Washington, March 14, 1935.

CITY OF BOSTON
In Board of Street Commissioners
April 4, 1935.

ORDERED: That due notice be given, that this Board is of the opinion that, in said city, public improvements should be made, consisting of:

The laying out and construction of Lindall street, West Roxbury district, as a highway, from Cummins Highway to Murray Hill road;

Substantially as shown on plans in the office of this Board, that it intends to pass orders for making said improvements, and that it appoints 11 o'clock A.M., of April 17, 1935, and the office of this Board, 401 City Hall Annex, as the time and place for public hearings in the matters.

Owen A. Gallagher, Walter A. Murray, Thomas A. Fitzgerald, Street Commissioners.

A true copy of an order passed by said Board on said day. Attest:

CORNELIUS A. REARDON,
Secretary.

The excellent epic-picture "Roberta" will be shown all this week at the popular RKO Keith-Boston Theater, where it is attracting New Englanders who are seeing this splendid picture for a third and fourth time. The stage at this famous RKO Keith-Boston Theater presents a list of prominent Broadway stars, in person, headed by Buck and Bubbles and "Toto," the clown.

Use the letters "T" and "N" and share in the many valuable gifts offered YOU by the Boston Evening American. Three weekly Grand Awards consist of three beautiful Keystone movie cameras. They make for a "living album" which can be shown years later on the screen at your own home. Watch your beloved ones grow up with these ideal luxurious Keystone movie cameras.

YOU can win one easily. All you have to do is correctly identify the "About Faces" stars as they are portrayed daily in the Boston Evening American.

Save your ENTIRE six clippings from Monday to Saturday and mail them all in to the About Faces Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.

Anwser the daily question asked concerning your favorite movie star and YOU cannot help sharing in the many awards offered by the Boston Evening American weekly. Additional awards consist of $15 in cash and 30 guest theater tickets each week.

Backdown on NRA

Cause of Confusion

ANY well-wisher of the Administration cannot but feel hurt and confused by the Government's crawl-down in the Belcher case.

This was a case selected by the Government to vindicate the constitutionality of the New Deal laws, particularly the NRA.

The Government initiated a prosecution in Alabama, accusing the head of a lumber company of violating the code adopted by the NRA for regulation of the lumber business.

The defendant did not attempt to evade the issue, but, admitting the facts charged, pleaded in defense the unconstitutionality of the code.

The lower court sustained the defendant's plea and the Government appealed to the Supreme Court, where the case was argued and submitted in January last.

THEN as the time drew near for a decision to be handed down, the Government, apparently scenting defeat, asked the court's leave to withdraw and abandoned its complaint.

We are supposedly under a government of laws. The Administration is supposed to uphold the Constitution. It is supposed to legislate within its constitutional power and to observe the constitutional rights of the citizen.

It is not reconcilable with our theory of government that an Administration should seek to govern illegally or make and enforce regulations which the courts will not sanction.

THE Government, however, simply cannot continue to enforce a law which it believes unconstitutional.

It cannot ask the people to obey a law which it is afraid to have a court review.

A belated recognition of this dilemma seems at last to have come over the Administration.

A case has been discovered, among the numerous pending cases involving the constitutionality of the Recovery Act, on which the Government announces its willingness—somewhat reluctantly reached—to take a chance with the Supreme Court.

It is the case of the Schechter Poultry Corporation, decided favorably to the Government on several, but not all, of the points involved.

If it presents the broad question of the constitutionality of the NRA, then well and good.

To have rested on its record in the Belcher case would have gravely undermined the Administration in public respect and confidence.

Cutting the Cost

County Reforms Needed

Tucked away in one of its brief summaries of significant court decisions The Corporation Journal prints the following from the Supreme Court of Appeals of West Virginia:

> "The present arrangement of counties was made practically a century ago, in the day of foot and horse travel and to accommodate that method of transportation. The arrangement is no longer required in this day of swifter communication.
> "Because of the automobile, the telephone and radio county officials could give better service now to a citizen who lived a hundred miles from the county seat than was given to the citizen ten miles from the courthouse at the time the present county lines were established.
> "There is unquestionably much sentiment in favor of present county divisions.
> "But PRESERVATION of COUNTY LINES will not be PREFERRED by the people to PRESERVATION OF THEIR HOMES."

Should citizens elsewhere strive to preserve homes and to build more and better homes and schools or preserve their counties, most of which are superfluous, just for the benefit of politicians?

Pony Express to Airplane

All In a Lifetime

Three-quarters of a century ago when two horsemen opened the Pony Express service between Sacramento, California, and St. Joseph, Missouri, it took ten days for a letter to cover the distance, and cost $10 in gold.

Now airplanes cover the ground in ten hours and carry your letter for six cents. Indeed, it costs no more from farthest northeast Maine to farthest southwest California—double the distance.

The change has occurred within the lifetime of Broncho Charlie Miller, an old Pony Express rider who took part in a celebration of the 75th anniversary of the foundation of the Express recently.

Yet ten hours is far too long, and six cents too much.

Within the life-spans of our children, improvements in our transportation service will be made as great as the change from the Pony Express to the airplane.

What will they be? We can't tell. But we can have faith in our continued progress, and thereby help bring them about.

Levy on Autoists

Wisely Rejected

The House on Beacon Hill has wisely rejected a bill to increase the levy on Massachusetts autoists.

The proposition was to make them pay an additional cent every time they purchased a gallon of gasoline.

The argument advanced for the plan was that excise levies on autoists are hard to collect.

It was stated that one in every five Boston car owners failed to pay last year.

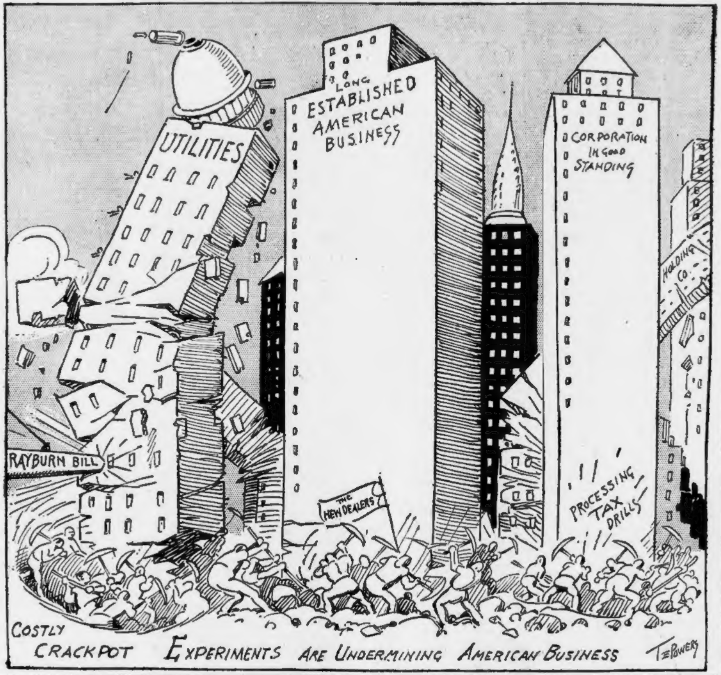
One Month's Showing

Nearly a million pounds of mail went by air in a single month. That's almost fifty per cent more than last year.

We hope that means that Americans are fifty per cent more air-minded. Now let's make it 100 per cent.

The Wrecking Crew—Experiment May Be Costly

By T. E. Powers



COSTLY CRACKPOT EXPERIMENTS ARE UNDERMINING AMERICAN BUSINESS

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Don't try to think when you're blue!

Don't try to think when you're blue or bewildered. Don't try to size up a situation or make a program.

Elsie Robinson

Above all don't make decisions. For nothing that you think, say or do when you're in the dumps is reliable. And the reason's plain—

HOW WE THINK

We don't know much about our thought-machine yet but we have made one important discovery.

We now know that we think with our whole bodies instead of merely with the brain. The glands of our bodies—scores of them, little and big—are as necessary in the construction of thought as the gray matter within our skulls.

These glands produce, and pour into the blood stream, the mysterious essence ("hormones") which make emotion, color thought, largely determine the trend of personality.

Mr. Robert Browning had a fine forehead. But two fatty lumps, astride his kidneys, probably had far more to do with his famous poems than that majestic expanse of forehead.

"Master Minds" is an imposing title but it would be nearer the truth to refer to these superhumans as "Master Parathroids."

CAUSE OF BLUES

"But what has all this to do with my not thinking when I'm blue?" you ask.

Plenty! Your glands are the reason why you're blue. You're not sunk because you had a row with your wife over the grocery bill.

The Blues aren't merely a depressed mood—they are the certain symptom of a chemical kick-up. And while that kick-up continues you can't possibly think or act normally.

So what?

SO GET AWAY FROM YOURSELF! DON'T TRY TO THINK — DON'T PERMIT YOURSELF TO ACT. DO SOMETHING THAT WILL MAKE YOU FORGET YOURSELF AND YOUR PROBLEM TEMPORARILY!

"Yes, that sounds fine!" you retort peevishly. "Lovely advice for millionaires who can go off to Florida when they're low. But how about us poor people who have to stick on the job no matter how we feel? You can't 'get away from yourself' when you're in a jam like that."

Yes, you can—and you've done it many a time. Barring a really desperate situation, which entirely wrecks your control, there's no blue mood you can't lick by the use of spunk and sense.

It isn't "going off to Florida" that cures the millionaire's blues. It's doing something, seeing something that TAKES HIS MIND ENTIRELY OFF HIMSELF.

DO SOMETHING

But he could have done that —and so can you—quite as well without ever leaving his home or office. How? In multitudes of ways, depending on your own taste and leisure.

Play a game of solitaire. Trim a hat. Try to write a story. Bake a new kind of cake. Borrow some of little Jimmy's toys. One of those slick little things that come with directions for whittling and painting—a bombing plane, covered wagon, or old carival. Or one of those mechanical building sets. Me?

When I'm feeling completely washed up—I dress a doll! Laugh that off if you want!

AND THESE SEEMINGLY SIMPLE, FOOLISH EXPEDIENTS DO TURN THE TRICK. They turn the trick by relieving bewildered brain and glands from pressure and holding your whole system steady until it can return to normal.

For you can't whittle the wheels for a bombing plane—or roll the seams on a diminutive negligee—and think of your troubles at the same time. Willy-nilly, the slow, precise handwork makes you forget Exhibit A.

And self-forgetfulness is the only medicine needed for just about ninety-nine and ninety-nine one hundredths per cent of your ailments!

Words of Wise

Every great and commanding moment in the annals of the world is the triumph of some enthusiasm.—Emerson.

There is no duty we so underrate as the duty of being happy. —Robert Louis Stevenson.

Truth is discovered by the highest minds a little before it becomes manifest to the multitude.—Macaulay.

Let us have faith that right makes might and in that faith let us dare to do our duty as we understand it.—Lincoln.

Our dead are never dead to us until we have ceased to think of them—George Eliot.

New York Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, April 8—Diary: Abroad with my lady and ran spang into Earl Benham, who stood treat for a soda at Maillard's. Then wandering in the shops and a five and ten most fun of all. So back into my slave cage and news that George Buckley has left a Palo Alto hospital fit again.

O. O. McIntyre

Also a check from the Reader's Digest for using something with credit from my column I did not know about. The nearest I ever came to finding money. And in quite a dither. Later saping farewell to the Will Hayes against their journey to the cinema capital. And stopped at the Robert Rubins' tea.

A buffet at Lolita and Ed Coblentzes and found Denise of a sudden a young lady. Later to the Biltmore to see Frank Vance of Gallipolis and put in at William Gaxton's dressing room and Hugh Herbert, the movie comic, there. And I admired Gaxton's dressing robe so fervently he tossed it to me.

Ed Sullivan skims the cream of Broadway friendships and finds much of it curdled. There's a long line of the once intimate who no longer bow as they pass. George Jessel and Eddie Cantor, whose companionship was a legend, now look the other way.

The Jack Bennys and Goodman Aces look through each other. Burns and Allen cannot see Block and Sully with a spyglass. George White and Lew Brown exchange the stony stare and Abe Lyman and Ben Bernie have become total strangers.

No one knows the exact why of such professional pouts. Temperaments the usual alibi. Stillness is better.

Flo Ziegfeld, in his day, likely nursed more professional dislikes than anyone in the theatrical world. He was a fly-wheel of temperament whirling with grievances, real or imagined. Those for whom he acquired sudden aversion would be taunted with utterly childish telegrams, mysterious telegrams and hand delivered notes with the familiar and fiery red borders.

A temperate fellow these salty set-tos were his method of acquiring buoyancy. He was happiest when knee deep in a row. One day he gloomed to Sam Kingston: "I'm slipping. Somehow. I'm beginning to like actors."

John V. A. Weaver, poet, drama critic and husband of Peggy Wood, has added a dissenting voice to the almost universal accolade for the talents of Katharine Cornell. He finds her tedious and hoots the idea she is first actress of her time.

But if box office standards prevail, Miss Cornell remains the biggest drawing card. The only actress likely to run away with the Cornell sceptre lately was the kittenish Elizabeth Bergner, and she is an importation who had many dissenters, including this one.

A subway ride at rush hours, provides a perfect bolster for faith-in-the-future reflections. When the world seems a spoiled apple and man a wretched worm, an express ride from Times Square to Bowling Green is perk-upper. No one, however spiritually myopic, can fail to derive a sense of uplift by such close—and how close it is!—contact with humanity in the raw.

The patience, good humor and intolerance exhibited by a weary crowd of workers struggling to stand in the milling jostle is irrefutable evidence there's a lot of sanity and decency left among the harassed multitudes. They can take it in more ways than one—and smile!

I once went with H. T. Webster on a subway ride with the gorgeous Lillian Russell—her first. She was a guest at his dinner party and remarked she had never ventured into the tubes. He insisted on escorting her home that way.

It was the packed after-theater hour and no one rose to give the great beauty a seat. But she loved it. At least so she said.

Bagatelles: Monte F. Bourjaily, syndicate chief, was born on the Mount of Olives . . . Mrs. Ring Lardner is occupying an isolated estate near Ridgefield, Conn. . . . Feg Murray, cinema cartoonist, occupies H. C. Witwer's home . . . Warren Williams is a crack ping pongist . . .

Tony Sarg has joined the artist colony on W. 67th st. . . . Elise and Tom Yawkey are bear hunting in Alaska . . . Merrill Blosser, creator of "Freckles," begins work at 7 a. m. and quits at noon.

There was a great flurry at the Waldorf's 50th st. entrance. The curb was piled high with blond and crested luggage and a regal looking limousine stood purring by. "Royalty?" I asked the doorman. "Yessir," he said, "Prince—" But I hurried on. The Mdivanis have spoiled my zest for princes.

Isn't It So?

Some people cannot so much as lift a finger without asking somebody else to lend a hand.

We only truly listen to sense when we refuse to listen only to the senses.

There is a dawn every day, but the man with a grouch does not know it.

Silence is golden, especially when one hasn't anything edifying to say.

The people who live up to their ideals may have cause to feel high and mighty.

Clothiers' Trade Up

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Last year was a better year for retail clothiers than the year before. The average net profit for stores of more than $100,000 in volume of business was 5.29 per cent as against 2 per cent for 1933 —a gain of 160 per cent.

Edwin C. Hill

Sydney Jones, great London merchant of Joseph May & Sons, Ltd., visiting New York, is puzzled by this pick-up in days when everybody is supposed to be pinching pennies.

He takes a careful look around and reaches a conclusion highly complimentary to American manufacturers, stylists and merchants.

He finds that "speed, adaptability, efficiency, alertness and good advertising" are lifting the American clothing business over the hump. The trade didn't take it lying down.

VARIETY OF STYLES

There is disclosed here quite a slice of industrial America decidedly on the up take. This writer observed some kind of new galvanic forces at work at the annual fashion show of the Association of Merchant Tailors of America, in New York, a few weeks ago.

This show always makes a bit of a flurry in the men's style world but in the depression years, the clothiers have been pulling their punch.

But this year there was nothing tentative about the way in which they shoved out their new sharkskin, Glenurquhart plaid, pin-check and window-pane patterns—to say nothing of that bold splash of color in fabrics and haberdashery.

An unduly sensitive man would be rendered helpless by the new variety of styles—yolked, pleated, shirred, full and semi-free-swing sports coats; drape and semi-drape effects, broad chest and shoulder breaks, fitted waist and low button placements.

MACHINES LIMBER UP

Fabrics bolder and more varied in pattern or color, or as restrained as any one might want them.

This variety, this adaptiveness in style, this wide range to suit the most errant taste—can all this be the product of those supposedly inadaptable machines from which flows all the curse of standardization?

That seemed to be what Sydney Jones, the London merchant, was thinking about, and he has accurately noted that mass production in America is shaking itself out of a rut.

If Carlyle were writing "Sartor Resartus" here in America today, he would be overwhelmed with new and fascinating material.

People do dress up when they're traveling. And that flares out the modes and, in a big way, the population, which is always hot-footing north or south, builds up style consciousness.

Another thing is leisure. Many leading stylists have noted this.

The shorter business day and the five-day week not only make sport wardrobes more important, but they allow time for shopping, for strolling and for big observation; time to look around and see what diversity, charm and heightened assurance may lie in a well-selected wardrobe.

The old-time, hard-driven banker with the Dundreary whiskers and his twelve-hour day used to have a pepper and salt suit which would last him five or ten years.

Walter B. Pitkin, prolific of keen observation on public trends, notes in his several timely books, the keying up and heightened conditioning of men who get jobs, contracts and advancement in the stiffening competition these years. That also is giving the innings to fit and personable men and, of course, clothes count heavily here.

All in all, there are many factors which are contributing to a new, informed, selective demand for good clothes, and merchant tailors and retailers are meeting it intelligently and aggressively.

Here one may note one of those encouraging economic reconciliations —natural and spontaneous demand getting together with effective and suitable supply and maybe, if we get enough of this here and there, along the lines, this depression will soon be as outdated as a pair of peg top pants.

Yes, and What of It?

By Hendrik Van Loon

Answer to a Question Difficult Yet Easy

Here is a subject that seems to have a great fascination for the editors of our popular magazines.

"Will you write us an article describing the emotions of a man or a woman of the year 1935 who should be able to return to this planet in the year 2035?

Or (which after all is only a slight variant on the original theme)

"What would Aristotle or Julius Caesar say if they were suddenly dropped in the midst of our present civilization?"

I am sorry that I have had to decline all those flattering offers, for magazine writing is infinitely more profitable than book writing, but for the life of me I could not write that story.

For I am firmly convinced that all they would say would be some polite and non-committal "Oh, yes?"

CHOOSING AN EXIT

Whenever I give the answer, the editors pull heavily upon the long black cigars which they have got to smoke (whether they make them sick or not) because they have been smoked by editors since the days of the Great Editors, and they ask sarcastically, "and how do you know that that is the way they would feel about it? For you seem to be quite positive about it."

Whereupon I choose my exit and make ready to run and not to walk when the moment of the great disaster shall arrive, and answer:

"Because if you had an ounce of originality—but in that case you would be writing for the magazines instead of editing them—you would realize that you and I are those men you want me to write about."

Thunder and lightning! Exit one scribe in a cloud of dust!

I saw my first airplane in March in 1908. I went up into the air, but so did kites and birds.

And why shouldn't it go up into the air when you used an engine instead of a string? It all seemed much too reasonable to create much of an impression.

I don't want to depict myself as a hopelessly blase person who feels so superior to everything around him that he is incapable of any sincere form of admiration.

SO WHAT OF IT?

As a matter of fact, the good Lord has been very generous to me for He has given me ears and eyes that can derive tremendous, almost overpowering enjoyment from certain new forms of art and music.

But when it comes to purely material innovations, I am brother unto that famous Chinese statesman who refused to go to the Derby because, as he explained, in China they had known for at least 5000 years that one horse could run faster than another, so what of it?

I am sorry to have to make this confession, but it has always seemed perfectly self-evident to me that things could be invented, once man had hit upon the idea of the lever and the wheel, for after that, the rest was so simple as to be almost unavoidable.

And so all my life long I have done my best to be impressed, but never with very much success.

And I wonder how many of my readers happen to feel the same way? The super-salesman tells us to register a profound astonishment whenever he has a new gadget.

We try to. We sincerely try to. But all we can do is to say, "Oh, yeah?" and let it go at that.

Even as Caesar, taking his first ride in a flivver, or Cleopatra, being shown pearls made out of coal-tar:

"Yes, and what of it?"

Stars and Stripes

"Her heart is broke," said friend of lady at Reno. The poor thing ought to consult a banker.

The latest news from off the Florida Keys indicates that any forthcoming stories about fish will be "fish stories."

And here we are again—"The Greatest Show on Earth." What is spring without a Barnum?

If you want to know who the boss of Italy is, just see how Mussolini orders himself around.

The U. S. Senate has become so noisy nobody can hear himself talk until he reads what he said in the Congressional Record next day.
